The UIC maze: it's a job to get the benefits

Unemployment Insurance Canada

Working with you—between jobs

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

This is the parable of the two stationary engineers.

For years they had worked together in a mill in a small Vancouver Island town before the mill closed down, putting them both out of work.

Both applied for Unemployment Insurance benefits. Because the mill was the only place in town where they would be able to get a job, they were both waiting for the mill to re-open.

One filled in his form, in all honesty, stating that he was ready and available for work at any time. His claim was granted.

The second also filled in his form honestly, but, explaining his case more fully than the first, said he was waiting to be called back to the mill when it re-opened so he was really only available on a temporary basis.

His explanation disqualified him from receiving benefits.

Then there is the story of the cab driver who was laid off in Victoria.

He was granted benefits, and started looking for work, as all unemployed people must if they are to remain eligible for benefits.

There being no cab driving jobs in sight, he decided to move to new spheres and indulge in a life-long desire to write for a living.

There was no employment available in public relations so he set up his own company to work out of his home.

He hung out his shingle and was later cut off from benefits — and forced to repay money he had received from UIC after setting up the company.

He was classed as self-employed and therefore ineligible for benefits, although he had yet to make a penny out of his new business.

Such are the pitfalls for the unwary when they move unguided through the tangled bureaucracy called the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

It is a fallacy to imagine that the laid off worker has a right to unemployment insurance, commission officials say.

In order to qualify, the worker has a number of rights and obligations, with the emphasis on obligations — and the rights are a vague it - all - depends - upon-circumstances collection.

In a general way the worker must be prepared to take any kind of job, at any time or place or wage, in order to be eligible for benefits — and must be actively seeking such work.

"In fact a worker could be cut off benefits for refusing to scab," says Al Carle, an official of The International Woodworkers of America.

And in a cautious sort of way UIC district manager Alison Fink confirmed the statement.

Argentina clamped by Isabel

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The Argentine government of President Isabel Peron clamped the country under a state of siege Wednesday to combat a mounting wave of political violence.

Interior Minister Alberto Rocamora announced the government decision after a meeting between Mrs. Peron and the three commanders-in-chief of the armed forces.

A state of siege — a lesser form of martial law — empowers security forces to search and detain without warrant and hold detainees without charges.

At least 130 persons have been killed since Mrs. Peron took over from her late husband Juan Peron last July.

A previous state of siege was lifted shortly after the Peronists returned to power in Argentina in May, 1973.

The violence, between rival factions within the Peronist movement and between Marxist guerrillas and security forces, burst into the open on the day Juan Peron returned from 17 years in exile.

Small-mill chip aid promised

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bill will be introduced during this session of the Legislature to protect small sawmill operators and their employees against price manipulations in the lumber chip industry, Premier Barrett said Wednesday.

Speaking before 700 delegates at the B.C. Federation of Labor convention here, Barrett said "lumber cartels are using chip prices as loss leaders."

The premier later refused to specify what action the bill will propose, only saying it would be introduced "very shortly."

"We intend to take action on behalf of the small indigenous operators and their employees to prevent the kind of huge cartel profits in this field that are currently being ripped off by the international oil cartel," Barrett told the delegates.

Interim measure today

B.C. set to crack teacher impasse

B.C. teachers and school trustees could find themselves legislated to agreement today in their dispute on contract bargaining procedure.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said Wednesday she will introduce interim measures in the Legislature today "with reference to the present situation as it exists re teacher-trustee bargaining."

She declined to say what the legislation will be, but added "it is obvious that if I am introducing legislation it is certainly my intent to provide legislation which will prevent any further crisis from developing."

Trustees are insisting on province-wide bargaining or at least regional bargaining, while teachers want to continue the present system of local negotiations.

Mrs. Dailly said her main concern is to see that B.C. schoolchildren receive their education.

She stressed that the legislation "would be interim," applying only to the present situation.

The B.C. School Trustees Association, representing 68 of the province's school districts, reacted bitterly to the announcement of forthcoming legislation.

"There is no precedent for government intervention in a labor dispute before the bargaining processes have been completed," BCSTA president Eileen Madson said.

"When the school trustees met with the minister in 1973 and asked for changes in legislation, we were told that legislation could not be changed in the middle of bargaining."

Mrs. Madson added that, regardless of the nature of the legislation, the government should have waited for the report of its 17 conciliators "before deciding that intervention by the Legislature is necessary."

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn expressed fears that the legislation "will reflect the power of the teachers' union. I expect a decision based on political expediency, not education needs."

The dispute has led to rotating strikes by teachers in Co-

Those job-creating trips

A scoreless tie

Opposition leader William Bennett asked Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk in the Legislature Wednesday how many jobs his spring industry-seeking trip to Japan had created for British Columbians.

"More than your daddy's trip to Europe created," answered Lauk.

"Am I to take it then that no jobs were created?" retorted Bennett.

And the house collapsed in laughter.

Canada may double grain aid to hungry

ROME (CP) — Canada told the United Nations food conference Wednesday it plans to pump much more grain into hungry poor countries and revamp its aid program to help them grow more of their own food.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the conference that Ottawa will commit an average of a million tons of grain — about 37.5 million bushels — to aid needy countries annually for the next three years.

And in Ottawa, government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday that Canada might be able to give more than its pledged one million tons of grain annually in international food aid over the next three years.

Sharp, acting external affairs minister in the absence of Allan MacEachen, said in the Commons the government "hasn't closed the door" on more aid if it is possible to give it.

Canadian grain aid came to 600,000 tons this year. The million tons a year merely returns food aid to the level of 1971-72, when Canada last had large unsold reserves.

MacEachen told reporters the Canadian International Development Agency will buy the grain — all wheat — from the government's marketing

Chartered 707 brings widow, horses to B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A wealthy German widow, now a landed immigrant in Canada and owner of the Empire Valley Ranch in the Cariboo, arrived here Tuesday aboard a Boeing 707 jet, specially chartered for the trip, with her daughter, 13 horses, a cage of live pigeons and crates of household goods.

Mrs. Sophie Stegemann bought the ranch, one of the largest in B.C., in August for an undisclosed price from Robert Maytag of Woodland Park, Colorado.

She moved to the ranch with her son and daughter shortly after buying it but took several months to arrange flying her horses and household goods to Canada.

The cost of transferring her animals and possessions was estimated from $38,000 to $55,000.

Mrs. Stegemann has grazing permits allowing her to run 2,000 head of cattle on the ranch, which includes 500 square miles of crown land.

She stayed aboard the jet an hour after it landed at the Vancouver airport to avoid facing the press. Later she refused to speak to reporters except to shout at photographers in German.

'Ambassador' makes bid to Alaska

Take us, Island's north asks

PORT HARDY — The northern part of Vancouver Island wants to secede from British Columbia and join Alaska — or at least that's what some northerners say.

The threat of secession has become so serious that Mount Waddington Region Board last week named an "ambassador" to Alaska.

He is Port Hardy Mayor Brian Klaver and already he has forwarded his credentials to Alaska Governor William Egan.

Klaver, at the same time, asked Egan if Alaska is interested in 8,000 square miles on the northern tip of the Island and a small piece of the mainland coast.

Egan couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday night but Klaver had lots to say about the move.

Real reason behind it, he explained, is that the north Islanders are testing the provincial government, trying to find out how much the government thinks they're worth.

No premier has ever visited the north end of the Island, and government promises are still only promises, Klaver said.

Sewer, water and the ferry systems are inadequate in the area, Klaver claimed, and he added that the Kelsey Bay-Port McNeill highway, promised in 1928, has been stalled until 1978.

"On the mainland the essential services are installed and then the property is sold — up here we're lucky to see those services," the 28-year-old mayor and ambassador said.

Ferry service between Kelsey Bay, the end of the Island Highway, and Beaver Cove, 40 miles away, can't handle the traffic and so gives preference to passenger vehicles, he said.

Klaver said 13,000 people in the region want to know how important they are to the provincial and federal governments.

Asked if Alaska would help them more than B.C., the ambassador said "probably not ... but at least we'll get our message across."

The 13,000 residents are unconcerned that the nearest Alaskan point is 350 miles away, while the provincial capital of Victoria is only 250 miles away.

Barrett vows small-mill chip aid

His announcement was the first firm commitment by the Barrett government on intervention in the chip market. Last weekend, Resources Minister Robert Williams said the government was studying the situation to see if action was warranted.

The promise of the bill was a surprise interjection in the speech, which dealt primarily with the Premier's concern for federal action to limit international oil company profits.

Barrett called for a federal public inquiry of the national tax structure "to find out why these huge companies are making such large profits and getting out of the taxes they should pay."

He said the finance ministers of all the other provinces agreed with him at their last Ottawa conference that such a tax study should be made, "although they didn't agree with what I felt might be the conclusions of such a report."

The premier said federal Finance Minister John Turner promised to study the joint request but has taken no action. The province, he added, does not have the authority to conduct such a study on its own.

The premier said 90 per cent of all oil and gas in Canada is foreign-owned, preventing federal or provincial governments from doing long-term planning for non-renewable natural resources.

The matter is crucial, he added, because Canadians have only 12-15 years of known natural gas reserves. He said the National Energy Board has misled the public by saying reserves are unlimited.

The premier pledged the province would relinquish its battle with Ottawa over resource rights and would surrender all B.C. resources to the federal government if Ottawa put all Canadian oil and gas rights under public ownership.

UIC maze: job to get benefits

Asked if a person could be cut off benefits for refusing to take a non-union job behind a picket line, she said: "It all depends."

"If the pickets threatened violence then I'm sure he wouldn't have to cross," she added.

But if Canada Manpower had sent him to the job, and solely because of his beliefs he refused to take it, what then?

"Well then, I would think he would be involving himself in the labor dispute, and wouldn't be eligible. Of course we would really have to consider the case on its merits if it ever arose."

What about the married woman who leaves a job to go with her husband to another place where he has employment? Would she be eligible for unemployment benefit?

"That all depends."

"She would be given a reasonable time to find a job in the new city."

What is a reasonable length of time? Could she restrict herself to her own occupation as, say, a legal secretary, or to secretarial work in general?

"Well, if she moved to Tahsis, where there is little work for women, she would pretty soon be off benefits."

In addition, UIC can demand money back, if at any time officials decide a claim should not have been allowed, even if the error in payment was made by UIC.

There are some bright spots — most of them for union workers.

For instance a union man who gains employment through a union hiring hall is exempt from the provision of doing continual job searches.

In general UIC expects the unemployed to spend his full time — that is eight hours a day — looking for work and talking to prospective employers. A list should be kept of places visited in case UIC should ask.

However, for such people as construction laborers, carpenters or electricians, registration with an approved hiring hall, which meets UIC criteria, is sufficient.

And there is some talk that in future engineers or school teachers should be allowed to stay on benefits until jobs are available in their profession.

There is some leeway for the unemployed in the type of job they must look for, at least initially

Taking into consideration the time that a worker has spent in one particular line UIC allows him to restrict his searches to that field for a variable period.

At some unspecified time — "it all depends on circumstances when this happens" — he is expected to "broaden his scope."

At any time during the period of unemployment the worker may be called into the office to be interviewed by a benefits rights officer.

At this interview he is not entitled to have anyone with him to give advice, although an interpreter is allowed for those who don't speak English.

He is expected to sign a statement giving details of his availability, and of his job searches and expectations, but does have the right to take the statement away with him before signing it.

This is exactly what union officials such as Carle suggest such people should do.

"Too often workers are cut off benefits simply because they didn't understand the interpretation that could be put upon statements made at that interview. It's not that they are really ineligible but that they are signing a quasi-legal document where wording is very important."

Equally important, says Carle, is for the worker to understand that he has a right to appeal a ruling if he is cut off benefits — and that he can have an adviser with him at an appeal hearing.

Again the unionized worker has the advantage — he simply turns to his business agents who have, of necessity, learned a lot about the ins-and-outs of UIC and will appear with him to argue the case.

But in any case no worker may appeal the retroactivity of a ruling which has cut him off benefits, and forced him to pay back money to the UIC.

"There should be some consideration given to this," says Carle. "It is obviously unfair to expect an unemployed man to repay $1,000 or more if he sincerely thought he was entitled, and if UIC initially thought he was entitled.

"I can see the point in getting money back if there is some evidence of a conscious attempt to defraud UIC, but in my experience this is a rare thing."

The issue of retroactivity is one that upsets Carle and other union officials.

It has been ruled that if a worker receives retroactive pay from an employer after he has been laid off, that money disqualified him from receiving benefits for a week, even though he may have earned it months before. In this case, says Carle, the worker is penalized for an employer's tardiness.

And the worker who receives holiday pay when he is laid off is also disqualified for the period of holiday pay he has received, although once again, he earned that money during his period of employment.

"There are a number of changes we would like to see in the regulations," says Carle, "But most of all we would like to see that claimants get plenty of help so that they do get the money they are entitled to."

Alison Fink agrees here, and suggests that claimants visit the UIC office and talk to an agent there when making the first claim.

gorde hunter

YOU REALIZE, of course, that our members of parliament are making those strange noises again. Their stomachs are growling, they are lining up 264 deep for swilling privileges at the trough of public expense.

The present remuneration for members is $18,000 per year, plus another $8,000 per year, tax-free expenses. Which, when you base it on a tax percentage of 35 per cent, works out to a total of roughly $28,600.

Add on free transportation, free mailing and money to run an office in their constituencies. It makes a sizeable bundle.

GO BACK to the last election. Every candidate worth his salt preached restraint, preached belt-tightening, preached for sane government spending. And every candidate knew, at the time of that election, what pay he or she could expect if successful at the ballot box.

Now, just before the Christmas recess, they are expected to vote themselves an increase in salary and expenses totally perilously close to 45 per cent.

The word has leaked to the Outback they are rubbing hands in glee in anticipation of a salary of $26,000 and tax-free expenses of $12,000 — $38,000 total, but about $42,000 in actual cash when you consider the tax-free loophole.

OUR AREA MPs are Allan McKinnon and Donald Munro, two hard-working gentlemen of the Tory cloth, who are not worth that kind of increase. Nor are members like Eldon Woolliams, Simma Holt, Jack Horner, George Hees, Tommy Douglas or any other member from any party.

They work hard? I'll buy that, but remember, nobody promised them a bed of rose petals. They were not conned into accepting the jobs under a premise of easy times down there on the Hill. I somehow doubt if a single one of them had an arm twisted into running for public office. As a matter of brutal fact, they were scrapping like alley cats for the privilege.

IT IS ALSO a recognized fact that a very strong percentage of our MPs would have trouble earning half their present salary out there on civvy street. Some of them are endowed with a good gift of gab and precious little else.

It is not the intention of this column to be vicious or venemous in the approach to MP salaries, but it is difficult to remain sweetness and light in the face of the fact those members, without leave from me or thee, are about to pick my pocket. The increase will add up to something approaching $4 million, which is a rather different definition of restraint than the one in my Funk and Wagnall.

THERE WILL BE a few — precious few, mind you — who will get up in the House and argue against such a whopping pay hike, but really, they will be the token dissenters and even their protestations will be suspect. They'll be absolutely safe in the knowledge, their arguments will fall on deaf ears and that yes, they too will share the swag.

There is too, the side advantage of being able to go back to suffering constituents and saying, "... but I argued against it, I was trying to keep your expenses down." Tongues, however, will be planted firmly in sides of cheeks and they'll be laughing all the way to the teller with the rest of them.

IT WOULDN'T BE so bad if the recipients would promise to chop at least as much money from government spending as they'll be taking in. Supposedly they are there in Ottawa to manage our finances and on this basis alone, they should all be fired and charged with gross incompetence and mismangement.

There can be no doubt of the incompetence. Right from Pierre Trudeau down to the newest member. Government waste is a disgrace, a festering sore on our economy and all the promises of cutbacks, restraint, sweeping reform, have been hollow. Crumbs of hope thrown to the great unwashed.

MEMBERS of parliament often wonder why their calling doesn't command greater respect from the public. Respect if they earn it, yes, but they have not been earning it. The barbs directed their way are well and truly plated.

They work for us and therefore, should respect us as employers. Too many of them have it the other way around — they expect to be treated in a special manner and such special treatment is not warranted.

We are being short-changed at $28,600 a year. And they would add insult to injury by taking $42,000 a year.

agency, the Canadian wheat board.

At current prices, one million tons would cost about $210 million.

The Canadian representatives appeared to join a ground-swell of opinion at the conference against creating new international institutions to co-ordinate the fight against hunger, as called for Tuesday by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger.

The gift will supply 10 per cent of the 10-million-ton aid flow urged by the UN food conference secretariat from all grain donors.

Meanwhile MacEachen also announced that $50 million in aid funds already authorized will be diverted by CIDA from non-agricultural programs into food programs, which already account for about $66 million in aid.

That money will be used for both food and projects aimed at increasing production in recipient countries.

The Canadian pledge will go some way toward reversing recent trends in food aid, which has fallen by half in the last year.

The UN Food and Agriculture Organization aid sank to less than seven million tons in 1973-74 from a peak of 18 million tons in 1964-65, aggravating an already serious condition of famine in several parts of Africa and Asia.

Your good health

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm terrified. I have a very regular menstual period usually once a month, but I haven't has one for six weeks.

I don't see how I could be pregnant, I haven't been near any males. I don't feel sick at all. How do you tell? Could it be something besides pregnancy? I haven't told anyone yet and I'm desperate. I'm 14 years old.—G.R.

Under the circumstances you can stop being so desperate. You haven't been near any males, so you aren't pregnant. At your age, unpredictable variations in menstrual rhythm are very common.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson has a tattoo on his arm. Now he wishes he hadn't. Is there any way to have this removed? Several people have told us no but they may not know. Mrs. J.L.

The soundest answer I can give to such a question is that you (or rather your grandson) consult a dermatologist (skin specialist or possibly a plastic surgeon. It is entirely possible to remove or obliterate a good many tattoos, but a good deal depends on the depth of the tattoo and other technical considerations.

Signalling the future

This Canadian-made communications technology satellite is prelude to breakthrough in broadcasting satellites predicted for 1980s that will enable homes anywhere in world to pick up television images relayed from United States or Russia. This experimental broadcasting satellite, built for $57 million, is to be launched by U.S. rocket in December, 1976.

Rail bargaining lasts into night

MONTREAL (CP) — Railway union and company negotiators, tired after long hours of talks, ended a late-night bargaining session Wednesday as they tried to iron out details of a new working agreement for 1975, and get trains running again in the Montreal area.

Negotiations were to resume at 10 a.m. today.

Earlier, a union source said a tentative agreement had been reached between the parties representing 11 railway companies and 100,000 workers. The settlement would provide pay increases of 15 per cent in a one-year contract, the source said.

Average pay to the largest group of the employees, 57,000 non-operating workers, now stands at $4.39 hourly.

The tentative agreement, which must be ratified by members of 18 unions involved, also provides for a cost-of-living increase to cover inflation in 1974.

The settlement also includes an improved pension based on that negotiated last year between the unions and the companies.

Curtain call

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Prison guards checked "muffled noises" coming from behind a stage curtain in a co-educational jail here, and a man and a woman, prisoners in the jail, are awaiting disciplinary action for making love.

Barry Rafus, acting director of the jail, said there had been problems since the jail became co-educational in April.

"When they're sitting together during recreation they rub knees or try and hold hands," he said. "We tell them to 'get some air between them.'"

Hard talks on for coal pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. coal industry negotiators have settled down to hard bargaining in hopes of reaching an agreement to keep short a predicted country-wide miners' strike.

Negotiators for the United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association spent Wednesday carefully analysing each other's proposals.

Guy Farmer, the industry's chief negotiator, said late Wednesday the two sides should be able to reach an agreement "in two or three days," provided no new snags develop.

Clawson quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has announced the resignation of Ken Clawson, a press aide closely associated with Richard Nixon's Watergate defense in the closing months of his presidency.

Grow more food U.S. tells meet

ROME (UPI) — U.S. agriculture secretary Earl Butz told the world food conference Wednesday all nations must grow more food before they think about building up reserves.

India and Iran said years of colonial neglect caused the current food crisis in developing countries and it was the duty of rich nations to help feed the poor.

Butz said the "number one responsibility" facing delegates was to increase world food production, especially in developing nations. Questions of food aid, reserves, storage and distribution were "issues that arise after food is produced — not before."

But he said the United states would join "in reasonable international efforts" to sustain food reserves to meet emergencies."

Jagjivan Ram, agriculture minister of India, which suffers most from the food crisis, said "The condition in which the developing countries find themselves today has not been brought on by their inaction or lack of adventure. It is obvious the developed nations can be held responsible for their plight."

French general knocks Mirage

PARIS (UPI) — The fight for the $20-billion aircraft replacement "contract of the century" took a new twist Wednesday with charges by a former French air force chief of staff that the vaunted French Mirage fighters were technologically inferior to U.S. jets.

"The accusations," made in a confidential note by Gen. Paul Stehlin, immediately grew into a political storm in France, where the retired 67-year-old air force man serves as National Assembly vice-president.

Stehlin said the single-engine Mirage F1-M53 was vastly inferior to its two twin-engine U.S. rivals, General Dynamics' YF16 and Northrop's YF17.

He said the American jets were several years ahead of the Mirage because of overwhelming technological and financial means at the disposal of the United States.

Revenue sharing

DAN CAMPBELL, a former Social Credit municipal affairs minister, is rumored to be thinking about going to work on a new concept of federal-provincial-municipal revenue sharing. And he thinks the record of the present New Democratic Party government on revenue-sharing has been "dismal." Furthermore Mr. Campbell says, "It's an open secret that the minister isn't too enthusiastic about revenue sharing and has said so . . . "

Come on, Dan. The municipal affairs minister, James Lorimer, is most enthusiastic about revenue sharing. He wants more revenue from the municipal taxpayers.

It has now been disclosed by Saanich Mayor Ed Lum that Mr. Lorimer said at a recent meeting that all municipalities in the Capital Region Transit System — formerly known as the B.C. Hydro bus system, and still operated by B.C. Hydro — will be assessed two mills next year as their share in running the buses. For each property-owner, that's $2 of tax for every $1,000 of taxable assessment. Fortunately, the government has postponed its plan to bring assessments to full market value next year. But a lot of home-owners may find themselves paying $25 or so in transit tax anyway. Mr. Lorimer apparently has alternative methods of application in mind but they are vague.

The disclosure does not come as a surprise. It is almost a year to the day since we wrote that the municipal affairs minister seemed adamant on the property-owners of the Greater Vancouver Regional District having to pay a tax levy of up to two mills toward the operating losses of the buses. And even earlier, it appeared likely that the ratepayers of the capital region, as well, coud expect to pay an extra levy for public transportation as part of their local taxation — and, as we noted, "the fairness of the tax will be wide open to question. Should residents of parts of the district which have no Hydro bus service pay? Should owners of homes far from bus routes pay the same as those well served?"

The minister and his department are to be congratulated on the improvements that have been made in the bus services, and the further betterment that is in store.

But this does not alter the fact that the New Democrats came to power in British Columbia on a platform which included a new deal for cities and their taxpayers:

"Necessary services to people ... hospitals, schools, welfare, public transit ... are reduced to a crisis level as the tax burden increases beyond our ability to pay.

"Green belts give way to industrial belts. Moderate residential areas are turned into high-profit concrete jungles. And the inflated costs of land push people further away from the urban core.

"These trends will only be reversed when municipal revenues are shifted from the property tax.

"Under an NDP government, only services to property will be paid from taxes on property. Services to people will be financed by sharing the province's resource revenues and general revenues with municipalities and regional districts."

Blush, Mr. Lorimer, blush.

On behalf of the other half

THAT WAS A SORRY REPORT on women's lib that the provincial director of human rights put together for the B.C. Federation of Labor the other day. Kathleen Ruff would seem to have overdone it in her pitch to the union movement on behalf of the other half.

She told delegates to the federation's annual convention in Vancouver that, from the majority of the public the reaction to human rights (she really was talking about women's rights as you will see) is silence.

She said that occasionally there is a guffaw of ridicule breaking the silence, and this lead her to describe ridicule as the greatest form of contempt and a belittling denial of humanity. Then came the sock-it-to-'em: women's efforts to get human rights are surrounded by ridicule.

Come now, there still are areas of discrimination, but to say that women are being made a laughing-stock in their move for equality is to make an unfunny joke.

Ms. Ruff didn't stop there, either. She said human (women's) rights mean changes to "the whole pattern (of discrimination) that mars our society," and added that there is a long way to go before changes will be made.

This is utter nonsense. Either the human resources director has become so wrapped up in her high office that she can't see what is happening at ground-level, or she thinks exaggeration is a means to an end when, in reality, it will do more harm than good to the move for full equality.

At least the women's rights committee of the federation seems to be taking a level-headed approach to the subject. It is far from being happy with the performance of the union movement in regard to equality for women, and in a report to the convention said it is not good enough to say "we are against discriminatory contracts or we believe in encouraging women into jobs and trades that have only recently been open to them. The time has come to put action where the words have been and actively correct the flaws and omissions in collective agreements."

But the committee is not claiming that women's rights are being made a mockery, or that little or no progress has been made.

The convention, as a matter of fact, took some solid steps forward for women, with passage of a resolution calling for full implementation of recommendations from the royal commission on the status of women.

Another, which Ms. Ruff might find time to talk about with the minister of education, Eileen Dailly, calls for the introduction of study courses dealing with the role of women in the development of society into primary and secondary schools.

This isn't ridicule, really, but presumably the courses would have something to do with motherhood?

Bauxite levy

Guyana takes on mineral Goliath

By JOHN CROCKER from Georgetown, Guyana

Two ships, heavily laden with calcined bauxite, lay tied up alongside the Reynolds processing plant because they had been forbidden to sail with their cargoes down the Berbice river. Two more ships were anchored off in the muddy stream awaiting instructions.

The situation of these four vessels graphically highlighted the climax reached in October in the battle between a Goliath, in the person of an American-owned multinational bauxite processing giant, and a David, represented by the minuscule (population 760,000) Guyanese nation.

It also highlighted the battle which Guyana is waging against the calamitous effects of the oil crisis, which threatened in January to wreck the nations' economy. It also threatened the experiment in a new political format and ideology, known as a "cooperative republic," which Prime Minister Forbes Burnham has been conducting in recent years with considerable aplomb — and success.

At the end of last year Guyana was running a monthly trade deficit of the order of 80 million Guyanese dollars ($40 million) and foreign currency reserves were perilously low.

"One never knew when the electricity supply was going to be cut off or where you might be able to pick up a gallon of gasoline for your car," a businessman lamented. "The supply of many foodstuffs was also uncertain," he went on; "but the country's basic worry was how it was going to earn — or save — enough money to pay the mammoth 400 per cent increase in this year's bill for essential imported fuel."

Drastic measures were introduced. Imports were strictly curbed, an intensive drive was launched to increase local food production and exports; and restrictions were imposed on foreign travel to the extent that nobody was allowed to take more than $15 out of the country.

In August Prime Minister Burnham was able to report that the June trading deficit had been reduced to 12 million Guyanese dollars and that the value of exports in the first half of 1974 had increased by 83 per cent compared with the equivalent period in 1973. But the country was still not out of the woods. Fertilizer costs, for example, had quadrupled since January. It was essential that more should be earned from the country's major export, bauxite.

Accordingly, the government made an approach about a new tax agreement to Reynolds (Guyana) Mines Ltd., which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the American giant, Reynolds Metals, whose reported earnings in the first quarter of this year were $19,200,000. The company was asked to pay a tax, or levy, of $15.8 million by the end of the year, half to be paid by October 5.

Instead of paying, however, Reynolds filed a writ on October 3 in the Supreme Court challenging the constitutional validity of the tax and claiming that it was in conflict with an agreement between the company and the government signed in 1965.

Reynolds also reportedly took the view that there was no point in paying the levy because it expected to be nationalized by the end of this year.

Some observers say that this would not be a bad thing for Guyana because the government could presumably then take over and run the valuable bauxite plant, leaving the matter of compensation to be talked about later.

The Guyanese have already proved their ability to do this. In 1971 the Burnham government nationalized Demba, the wholly-owned subsidiary of an even larger multinational, the Aluminum Company of Canada (Alcan). Contrary to most forecasts, it has been run successfully ever since.

Apart, however, from the needs for additional revenue — and apart also from the fact that it has always been Burnham's declared policy that the people of Guyana should both own and control the resources of their own country — the assault on Reynolds is said to be justifiable for a number of purely pragmatic reasons.

It is claimed that Reynolds will fail to meet its agreed obligation to produce one million tons of bauxite per year by 1976. Last year the Guyana government received a smaller payment for every ton of bauxite mined by Reynolds than it did in 1970. Besides, the government has for some time been talking with Reynolds about getting majority participation and the time for procrastination has passed, say the Guyanese.

"Isn't all this stuff a gas? Charles' family, for generations, have been possession freaks."

Continuing inflation

Getting an uneasy feeling

By PAUL HELLYER from Ottawa

Do you remember what it feels like standing close to someone blowing up a balloon and expecting it to burst momentarily? An increasing number of concerned people are getting that uneasy feeling.

The meeting of first ministers (the prime minister of Canada and the premiers of the provinces) at 24 Sussex Drive was designed for frank discussion of the causes of inflation and possible remedies. Reports after the meeting suggested that little had been accomplished other than more gas in the old balloon.

Premier Davis, of Ontario, was concerned about interest rates. He wanted more federal money made available to the province for housing. This is a reasonable request but, once again, is symptom treating. If inflation were checked interest rates would come down and house sales increase. You can't solve the problems of the cities with expensive (10 per cent to 12 per cent) money and expensive money is a product of inflation.

Premier Blakeney, of Saskatchewan, suggested a $200 million food bank to preserve food that might otherwise be wasted for use in underdeveloped countries where protein is at a premium. A noble suggestion and one that is worthy of consideration on its merit. But the object of that exercise would be aid to developing countries rather than an attempt to arrest inflation in Canada.

The Atlantic premiers expressed concern that the federal government's restrictive monetary policy might create excessive unemployment in their region. Others thought non-essential construction should be curtailed and resources presently employed in heavy construction diverted to house building. None of these suggestions raised any fundamental disagreement. The only exception being the federal government's apparent determination to continue to disallow provincial royalties on oil and minerals as deductions in computing federal tax.

While these issues are all important in their own right, they skirt the fundamentals of inflation, i.e. the relationship between wages, profits, productivity and prices. The first ministers it appears, had the same difficulty in concentrating on the main issue that economists do. They talked about many things but refused to "face the music" because the music, like much contemporary composition, lacks both melody and harmony and grates on the nerves.

The cardinal issue avoided was the relationship between salaries and wages on the one hand and productivity on the other. It is a matter of record that each of us in the labor force produces, on average, 3 per cent more each year than we did the year before. Some of us who use big machines may produce 6 per cent more each year. Others such as journalists, politicians, teachers and public servants may not increase their output at all. But the average for all of us is 3 per cent approximately. Consequently we can each have an increase in real income of 3 per cent a year and no more — except at the expense of someone else.

Unfortunately — particularly in the last decade — the pecking order has been distorted. Some groups in society have been left behind. Consequently some "catch-up" must take place if we are to enjoy a "just society." But "catch-up," by definition, must be at the expense of those of us who have forged ahead in recent years.

Often you hear people say that oil producers have been selling their oil — a wasting resource — too cheaply and that they are entitled to more. They also say, and with justification, that the farmers have been getting the short end of the stick and that they should be adequately and fairly compensated. Similarly, it is claimed, poverty is a national disgrace and something must be done about it. The same people, often, want all these things accomplished without the necessity of personal restraint or sacrifice. It is a classic case of wanting one's cake and eating it too.

Meanwhile, the attempt to index wages to the cost of living is a guarantee that the problem will never be solved. This year's settlement based on last year's inflation becomes, automatically, the most important cost factor in next year's inflation. Because wages and salaries collectively represent the largest proportion, by far, of our Gross National Product, this practice of indexing means that the cycle will never end.

Until these cardinal principles are accepted by experts and politicians alike — with the backing of an informed electorate — there is no real hope of avoiding the paradox of "stagflation", i.e. high unemployment and high inflation at the same time.

The attitude of our first ministers is depressing. At almost the same moment they were indulging themselves in mutual back-slapping, Dr. Herbert Stein, former chairman of the U.S. President's Council of Economic Advisers, told a Winnipeg audience that "the prospects for the survival of the free market are shadowed and the outcome is by no means certain." In this context, the pollyanna approach of Canada's 11 top political figures is frightening.

Whether the "we are generally satisfied with the policies pursued by the federal government" attitude reflects the political fear of telling the Canadian people the truth or the liberal death wish of western civilization is unclear. The question remains as to how much worse the situation will have to get before politicians and citizens alike say "enough." Will it be before or after the balloon bursts?

Patrol failure

From The Gazette, Montreal

Failure of an RCMP patrol vessel to overhaul a lumbering British supertanker which fled Come By Chance, Newfoundland, for international waters raises questions about Canadian abilities to patrol our extended international waters.

The irony of this straightforward patrol failure looms large in light of Defence Minister James Richardson's plans for reducing Canadian defence forces. It is one thing to have justifiable claims to protect Canadian maritime interests, but another to attempt it without adequate air and sea patrol personnel and equipment.

All about those UFOs

By RON POULTON from Toronto

History has proven abundantly that man will fear anything he can't understand and shoot anything he fears. It's also a matter of record that there are 2.87 cameras for everybody on earth, most of which are owned by American tourists.

When these two seemingly unrelated statements are stuck together — as I'm about to do right now, at the risk of inviting the wrath of the gods — they speak a question.

How come nobody's every shot a little green man or taken a clear picture of a flying saucer?

It isn't as though Unidentified Flying Objects are rare. In the last few months, they've been arriving like suburban buses. Never on schedule, that is, but guaranteed to turn up if you shiver long enough in the right location.

The sky is so cluttered that, according to a Gallup Poll conducted last August, one out of every 10 "aware" Canadians has seen one — whatever "aware" means.

There's one guy who spends three hours every night sitting near Toronto's new zoo, looking for UFOs. So I suppose he qualifies as an aware Canadian. Like anybody who has ever been on sentry duty, he's seen some strange things. Naturally, considering the site of his roost, he's heard some too.

Not a week has gone by since one, two or three UFOs (depending on which paper you read) have been sighted floating over the power lines out in suburbia. One witness reasoned they were recharging their batteries at public expense.

If it were just this area that was getting a rash of visitors from outer space, it wouldn't be all that newsworthy. Visitors flock from everwhere because we've got a lot of strange specimens around here. But UFOs are dancing around like gigantic fire flies all over the place.

On October 22, an RCMP constable named Grundy swore he saw three flitting over the Rockies. One was supposed to be hovering over a farm 10 miles west of Calgary, which is ridiculous because Calgary has been expanding so fast no farm has been able to get 10 miles away from it for years.

Grundy filed a report, describing the object as being 60 feet in diameter and 25 feet high. It was obviously too big to be a figment of the imagination. Furthermore, a witness told Grundy it sounded "like a jet engine without the whine."

What makes all this deeply interesting (wake up and pay attention) is the fact that Grundy wasn't the first Mountie to write a report about flying saucers. An officer in a Saskatchewan detachment turned one in last summer.

What intrigues me, aside from their content, is that nothing is ever heard of these reports again. They go into the files and disappear. So do the officers, come to think of it.

They get transferred to Pasqua, or some such crummy place, and spend the rest of their lives typing out reports about stolen gopher traps in quadruplicate. The force has a way of muzzling its mouthier visionaries.

From all this evidence (not the evidence from here, where the bars close late, but the evidence from the Prairies) it is obvious that something out there keeps coming in for a landing.

Some time ago, I advanced the theory that they're delivering cats. My contention that cats were spies from outer space was widely derided by an assortment of buffoons unfil it became a subject for serious study in several leading colleges abroad.

For all that, most of the so-called evidence for UFOs is suspect, if only because witnesses insist on describing them in familiar terms.

They've all got windows and lights and they're all made of metal. Now we're told they sound like a jet engine without the whine; and if you roll that around in your mind, it doesn't make any sense at all.

The reason for this, of course is that your average Earthling's imagination can't envision anything he can't get fixed in his local garage. Galactic visitors don't need all that jazz. The one I think I saw last night looked, in fact, like nothing at all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR — In your opinion...

Something constructive needs to be done about it

Doggie 'by-product' huge

Last Sunday's local news page — which was devoted almost entirely to dogs — raises the interesting point that municipal authorities apparently eschew any responsibility toward cleaning up the vast amount of doggie "by-product" which now litters the beaches, roads, sidewalks and parkways of Greater Victoria.

Some elementary mathematical calculations based on the figures appearing in the Colonist related to dog food consumption shows that at least 5,000 lbs. of dog excreta is deposited daily throughout our immediate community.

This amounts to well over 900 tons a year — which even the most devoted dog-lover (I am one myself) must admit would make a sizeable mountain.

This problem calls for one of several solutions. One being that doggie comfort stations be set up throughout the area at strategic points, another being that all dog-owners be required to carry some kind of pick-up implement whenever they take their pets for a walk, and tidy up behind them.

As our parks officials seem to think that the "by-product" is a useful fertilizer perhaps the whole operation should be commercialized. After all, 900 tons of fertilizer should have some value.

P. B. PUBLICO

Report of doctors' earnings called 'invidious'

Medical specialist lashes out

When gross payments to doctors were originally published by Mr. W. A. C. Bennett as an anti-doctor manoeuvre, your paper invidiously published a list of all Victoria physicians and their gross payments. However, this was not as invidious as your singling out of certain local physicians in the Colonist (front page) of October 30.

You state that "the payments are gross figures out of which a doctor has to pay equipment and overhead costs and staff salaries", which is correct. You then say "doctors can, however, receive professional payments that are not included in the schedule such as fees from the Worker's Compensation Board, or from hospitals and other organizations," implying that the gross earnings of all doctors are considerably higher than the figures quoted.

In fact most doctors, other than a few specialists, get absolutely nothing from "hospitals and other organizations" and negligible amounts from the Worker's Compensation Board.

You single out Doctor Henry Jackh, a radiologist, (who incidentally, has not practised at Victoria General Hospital for about five years) for $195,000, omitting the fact that he is in private practice and has enormous overheads from the rental of several highly sophisticated x-ray machines, film costs, and staff costs.

You single out Dr. Peter Banks with gross payments of $30,000. What you don't mention is that his overheads are high, and that as a specialist he probably didn't earn much above the poverty level till the age of 30 to 35.

Most family doctors don't earn anything much till the age of 26 to 30. You omit the hours of work, which put any union to shame, the training, and the article in the same Colonist quoting salaries of government administrative assistants at $23,710 (with office hours, pension schemes and no overheads) then Dr. Banks, past president of the Canadian Medical Association, has been in the wrong job.

Let us have an article comparing take home pay per hour and lifetime earnings between various occupations instead of the innuendos of your recent article.

CHARLES A. SIMPSON, MB
1900 Richmond Road.,
Victoria, B.C.

● The facts in the Colonist report were taken from the official government schedule of the B.C. Medical Plan payments. Reporter Warren Caragata repeatedly tried to obtain comments from Drs. Garth Walther and Ross McNeely, who jointly received more than $800,000—the largest single payment made to Victoria physicians—but neither doctor would comment. The Colonist reported only facts supplied by the government, which makes the words "invidious," "implying" and "innuendo," incautiously used by Dr. Simpson, unfair, uncalled for and, of course, misapplied. In addition, Dr. Simpson's opening sentence is inaccurate. The Colonist was the ONLY newspaper in B.C. which, in 1970, did NOT publish doctors' names in connection with the first payments under the Medical Plan.—Ed.

'Policeman's lot' questioned

Your tear-jerking editorial on "the policeman's lot" (Nov. 2) was quite wide of the mark.

Let's keep in mind that police salaries are generally high while qualifications are low, that job security and working conditions are good, and the work is rarely unhealthy or backbreaking.

The high death-risk involved in police work is entirely mythical, being in no way comparable to the risks taken by many categories of industrial and resource workers.

Finally, no one is obliged to be a policeman.

In Toronto, the Metro police have long been unpopular because they have been used extensively (and perhaps predominently) to enforce arbitrary, but monopolistically lucrative traffic, liquor and drug laws.

Naturally, such laws often elicit hostile, and sometimes violent, reactions among the victims.

To further aggravate police alienation, Toronto has for years made a habit of recruiting officers in the U.K., rather than improve the force's image at home. The resultant police brutality has been a matter of public record for at least four years.

In fact, at a televised public forum in January of 1970, the president of the Metro policemen's association estimated at 150 the number of officers on the force who were too sadistic for the job.

The force's chief, the commission chairman and the provincial attorney-general were all present and declined to dispute the point.

The basic problem of police throughout Canada, however, is not a minority of sadistic officers.

The real cause of police brutality is the loss of self-respect and the resultant feelings of guilt, alienation and fear incurred by the policeman through his daily enforcement of laws he knows to be unreasonable, unfair, often harmful to the community and usually selectively applied.

If policemen really want to improve their status with the public, they had better start agitating for the "just society" somebody promised us a while back.

United Way

Canvasser's reception very mixed

Thoughts of a canvasser who has just finished her route for the 1974 United Way:

No matter when the canvasser calls, it always seems to be the wrong time for the housewife: she's in the kitchen cooking or cleaning out the oven; she's working in the garden; or she's entertaining guests.

But there are people who welcome the canvasser, who give generously, or explain that they have already sent their contributions by mail. For these gracious people this canvasser gives thanks.

Apartment-dwellers deprived

Ban on pets a hardship

I have read the article regarding dogs (Colonist, Nov. 3). I think the reason why most animals are not in a home is that most young couples, especially my husband and I who love dogs, actually all animals, live in apartments. Our apartment allows — get this — no children, no pets, no parties. What can you do?

We hope to have a child within the next two years, which means finding a place that allows children. Lucky for us, my husband being in the service may be able to get us a PMQ, a house which we can rent from the service. Hopefully there will not be a waiting list, if so apartment jungle here we come.

We want very much to have a pet for our child and for us. We are from Ontario. I had a beautiful cat, which I had to leave behind to come here. I was lucky to find him a good home and was frantic leaving him. He was a part of me. It sounds dumb to a person who feels animals are just animals, we feel animals are like people, a person.

We only wish that apartment owners were not so cold. Perhaps their reasons for no pets etc. are valid, but it is so hard to understand, being lovers of pets as we are. And unfortunately, houses are out of our reach.

If there is anything we could do to try to change these rules, let us know.

It really makes us sad to see situations like this. It really bothers us as we were both raised in a house and both had dogs.

'Strange are the ways of parents'

Things are going from the sublime to the ridiculous.

We are asked for ideas to prevent traffic accidents and everyday we see children from nine to 12 years of age riding mini-bikes on the public highways. No licence plates, no insurance and no right to be on the road at all.

This medley of mini-bikes operates within one block of a police officer's residence and yet no charges are laid against the parents. Very soon one of these children will be killed and what a sad day that will be.

I phoned a mother to ask why my morning paper was not delivered and was told that it was "dark this morning and my child is not going out in the dark."

This 12-year-old delivers his papers on a mini-bike — no licence, no insurance, no right to drive. This same child is permitted to collect his money after dark! Strange are the ways of parents.

Drag racers continue to use residential areas as drag strips and in spite of several deaths from drag racing they publicly announce they will continue to do so until somebody provides them with a drag strip.

Parents join in and say the young people should be given a drag strip.

If they would put some of their excess energy to work they could purchase an acre of land and build their own strip.

At the rate some of these cars go up the road at night nothing walking on that road would have achance to survive.

Chances for war in Mideast 50-50

By KEVIN DOYLE
From London

The outcome of a recent Arab summit conference in the Moroccan capital of Rabat has fuelled growing international fears of a new outbreak of war in the explosive Middle East.

Already, diplomatic sources in the West are reporting significant increases in the amount of United States military aid going to Israel and in the amounts of Soviet assistance to Syria.

A major commitment of Soviet aid to Egypt is also widely anticipated after Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev visits Cairo in January.

Diplomatic observers say that both the Israelis and the Americans now secretly believe that the chances of another war breaking out before next spring are about 50-50.

The latest international uneasiness has been sparked by the main resolution passed at Rabat by which the Arab states recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), as the sole representative agency for the Palestinian people.

This means that the radical PLO leaders, committed to the ultimate destruction of Israel, become responsible for the Palestinians on the west bank of the River Jordan, captured by Israel from Jordan in the 1967 war.

Previously, the relatively moderate government of Jordan and Jordanian King Hussein, who recognize Israel's right to exist, had acted as spokesmen for the Palestinians on the west bank and a negotiated settlement of their status seemed possible.

Israel now refuses to talk to PLO representatives and efforts at reaching a peaceful, lasting settlement in the volatile Middle East seem to have reached a deadly stalemate despite the furious attempts of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger to promote a breakthrough.

Israel's foreign currency reserves now have shrunk to about $900 million, barely enough to pay for two months of non-military imports. At the same time, the inflation rate is running at nearly 40 per cent a year.

To combat the economic crisis, the government is expected to impose a 35-per-cent increase in gasoline prices, institute one or two days a week when cars cannot be used and introduce a sharp cut in foreign currency allowances for Israelis travelling abroad.

The government is clearly alarmed by the deteriorating economy and many observers are becoming worried that Israel may soon feel compelled to strike first against the Arab states in the hope of winning a decisive victory in a short war before things get worse.

Israel's agonizing dilemma

Switch or fight

By KENNETH FREED
From Washington

Israel has fallen between a rock and a hard place in the diplomatic manoeuvring over the next phase of Middle East negotiations with the only clear escape a fundamental change in policy.

The problem is one that has been the downfall of many negotiators in diplomacy and business: inflexibility.

In this case Israel says it will never deal with the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO).

While Jerusalem was repeating that constant refrain, the PLO won overwhelming approval from the UN general assembly to participate in a debate beginning in mid-month on the Palestinian question. And in last week's Arab summit at Rabat, Morocco, the PLO was designated the sole and legitimate representative of the West Bank Palestinians in any negotiations.

While the Israelis kept saying never, their only important ally, the United States, began reappraising its support of the Jerusalem position.

The U.S. is plainly moving to accept what some U.S. and Egyptian officials describe as a new reality — the PLO as a permanent participant in the talks.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said this week that Israel and the Arabs must "make an effort to bring their position closer to each other." An Egyptian official in Washington said Egypt and Israel can resume efforts to widen their disengagement on the Sinai peninsula without simultaneous talks between the Jewish state and the PLO over the fate of the West Bank.

But the Egyptian diplomat added that there must be progress on the entire Middle East negotiating front, apparently meaning Israel must acknowledge the PLO.

U.S. officials, heartened by the Egyptian statement, indicated that Israel will be hard pressed to keep to its position.

There is one other alternative for the Jewish state, and that also would require a fundamental policy shift: ignore American pressure, refuse to budge in negotiations and fight another war.

American officials say that course of action by Jerusalem would risk a loss of the all-out support always given by Washington in the past.

One American source said: "We would never abandon Israel but I don't know that the American people would be as sympathetic in the face of apparent Egyptian reasonableness; particularly when any new war would mean another oil crisis much worse than the last one."

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market closed with only a modest gain Wednesday after a rally ran out of steam in late trading. Volume was moderate.

The industrial index, widely-based indicator of market trend, was up .33 to 163.97, its first gain in five days. However, the index had been up more than a point at its high for the day but began losing ground in response to a decline on the New York market.

Trading was halted shortly after the open in shares of Electronic Associates at the request of the company, pending a release of information. Prior to the half, the stock traded at 92 cents, off three cents.

Genstar, which reported higher nine-month earnings, was up ¼ to $14⅞.

Traders Group reported higher nine-month profit and the class A stock was up ⅛ to $10.

Among the largest price changes, Provincial Bank rose 1 to $13½, St. Lawrence Cement A 1 to $16, WCI Canada 1 to $8 and Moore 1 to $40½.

Fraser A was off 1 to $21¼, MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to $23¾, Toronto Dominion Bank ¼ to $33½, Inco A ¼ to $22¼ and Imperial Oil A ¼ to $26¾.

Sigma Mines gained 1⅞ to $34½, Pamour ½ to $11½ and Falconbridge Copper ⅜ to $8½. Dome Mines lost ½ to $56 and McIntyre ¼ to $33¼.

Dunsky Advertising:

Low profile but high returns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dunsky Advertising Ltd. of Vancouver doesn't go out of its way to advertise itself to the people of B.C.

It doesn't have to because the new agency is handling an estimated $3 million annually in taxpayers' money.

From a humble beginning two years ago in a converted Gastown railway car, the organization now handles more provincial government advertising than any other B.C. agency.

Since the New Democratic Party came to power provincially in 1972, Dunsky's has been awarded accounts for the departments of travel industry and consumer services, the Insurance Corp. of B.C., B.C. Railway and the Western Lottery.

The advertising community estimates Dunsky's handle more than 50 per cent of provincial government advertising. But they still have quite a way to go before they reach the estimated 70-per-cent figure reached by Baker Loviek under the former Social Credit administration.

Dunsky's rode into town along the same trail they had followed when the NDP took over the governments of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

As elsewhere, the firm seems to go out of its way to keep apart from the rest of Vancouver's advertising fraternity.

Vancouver manager Michael Botnick, 27, admits "we are very quiet about ourselves.

"We do try and maintain a fairly low profile.

"It's not from any sense of shyness . . . If our clients get good publicity then we have done our job well," he said.

Corporately, the firm's Vancouver office is an off-shoot of Dunsky Advertising Ltd. of Montreal, headed by "social democrat" Menahem Dunsky.

Manny Dunsky launched the firm in 1963 working mostly for companies in the women's garment industry and later for the Quebec Federation of Labor and other unions.

The NDP role emerged in 1965 and he has organized the ad campaigns for the party during the last four federal elections and 13 provincial contests.

Dunsky's helped achieve the two Manitoba victories since 1969 and directed the successfull Saskatchewan and B.C. campaigns.

Manitoba accounts now include the provincial departments of tourism, agriculture and finance and the government-owned Manitoba Telephone System, Manitoba Marketing Commission, Manitoba Beekeepers Commission, Manitoba Liquor Commission and Manitoba Federation of Labor.

In neighboring Saskatchewan, Dunsky's Regina office handles the departments of agriculture, industry and commerce, tourism, natural resources and youth and culture, the highway traffic board, legislative broadcasts, Saskatchewan government's insurance office, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool and Saskatoon Industrial Development Office.

The B.C. department of travel industry account is estimated at $1 million a year, as is the IGBC account. And the agency has attracted a number of private B.C. accounts with its government popularity — for example, the $12,000 B.C. Hotels' Association account, Canadian Breweries corporate advertising and Translite Plastics Ltd.

Accountancy honors

It was night for honors in local branch of Certified General Accountants Association of B.C. Tuesday. Presented with 25-year-membership tray was Jerry Stevens, left, while Jim LeMarquand, right, was second member ever to be given honorary life membership. Scholarship award winners announced were Mae Peterson, Eric Druce and Alex Wotherspoon.

Bond details Nov. 19

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner has said he will announce on Nov. 19 government plans to deal with $525 million worth of government bonds due Dec. 1.

The government must pay out the $525 million and Turner will announce whether the government will be making a new loan.

The loan due Dec. 1 is made up of $400 million of 5½ per cent bonds and $125 million of 4½ per cent bonds.

The announcement on the bond issue will be made after the Nov. 15 deadline for purchasing new Canada savings bonds without loss of interest.

business george gibson

The young lady in the bank selling some Canada Savings Bonds Wednesday said that it might be a couple of weeks before she could turn them over to the customer.

"We've sold so many we've had to send back for some more 500s," was the way she put it.

Another bank manager said that his security department advised him that indications are that sales of CSBs could exceed the biggest year of 1970.

Payroll savings plans buying again seems to have eclipsed previous years. Average purchase alone, according to one of the Vancouver Island organizers, has risen roughly $90 to $100 per employee to about $750.

But the big rush for the 9¾ per cent bonds could be all over as soon as Friday, Nov. 15.

Finance Minister John Turner could slam down the barrier on the sales wicket on that date or on the next business date, Monday, Nov. 18, which by no coincidence, is the date of the federal budget announcement.

Normally CSBs could be purchased long after the Nov. 15 date if the buyer was willing to pay accrued interest from Nov. 1. However, they have been cut off early before with the earliest on record Nov. 26, 1971, when 8 per cent bonds were being offered in a declining interest rate period.

The bond-buying public has been taking heed of the falling prime lending rates in U.S. banks and guessing that the same things are about to happen in Canada. The 9¾ per cent rate that some sniffed at when announced last September suddenly doesn't look all that bad.

Rolling over older issues for the new one has also played a large role, undoubtedly, but one of the qualified bond-watchers, McLeod, Young and Weir, has revised its estimate of the total new money that rolls into the federal treasury on CSB sales to between $1.3 and $1.8 billion. The investment firm earlier had guessed the sale to be between $700 million and $1.2 billion.

Record sale was in 1971 and reached $2.3 billion, the year of the ultra-quick cutoff.

Short-term rates fall

MONTREAL (CP) — Royal Trust Co. announced Wednesday it is lowering interest rates immediately by one-quarter to one-half of a percentage point on its short-term deposits.

A Royal Trust spokesman said the move reflects a "general easing in the short-term money market." This means more money is available and the companies do not have to pay so much to attract it.

The new rates are (old rates in brackets): 30 to 59 days, 10.125 per cent (10.375); 60 to 89 days, 10.25 per cent (10.5); 90 to 179 days, 10 per cent (10.25); 180 to 269 days, 9.5 per cent (10); and 270 to 364 days, 9.5 per cent (9.75).

All other rates remain unchanged.

Merger talks end

TORONTO (CP) — Marshal Stearns, chairman of the brokerage firm of T. A. Richardson and Co. Ltd., said merger talks between his firm and A. E. Osler, Gentlon Ltd., another Toronto-based firm, have been terminated. No reason was given. About two weeks ago Osler said it had reached agreement in principle for the merger. Late last week, Osler announced it had reached agreement in principle with Collier, Norris and Quinlan Ltd., of Montreal, for a merger of their brokerage and underwriting businesses.

Good times 'almost over'

TORONTO (CP) — Morton Shulman, millionaire author and New Democratic Party member of the provincial legislature, said Tuesday inflation will probably force many car dealers out of business in the next few years.

Addressing the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada, Shulman said inflation will force the public to buy food and shelter instead of cars.

"Enjoy the good times — they're almost over," he told the almost 1,000 car dealers in attendance.

He said people can still buy cars, stamps and antiques as a hedge against inflation, but in a few years they will only be able to afford the necessities.

The best investment is a farm on which food can be grown to provide for present needs and sold for housing in the future.

David Watt, federation president, doubted Shulman's prediction, because, he said, most people buy cars out of necessity—for transportation.

"After all, if you buy that farm, you have to get there somehow."

Value up in pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — The asset value of pension plans administered by trustees totalled $16.655 billion at mid-year, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The total was 12.1 per cent higher than the $14.857 billion in assets held at mid-1973, the agency said in a quarterly review of pension funds.

The consumer price index went up by 11.4 per cent during the same period.

Opposition melts to realization of regional plan

Approval of the Capital Region development plan became an unexpected probability Wednesday, following a special meeting of the Capital Region Board.

Opposition to the plan melted away as regional directors labored through a multitude of minor and major amendments recommended by municipalities, the regional planning department and the public.

The biggest threat to the regional plan came from Saanich but the three aldermen representing that municipality on the regional board dropped their opposition after some of their demands were met.

Their biggest concern was that the regional plan would ultimately ruin Saanich's tax base by restricting the municipality's future development.

Saanich's tentative plans foresee a population growth from its present 70,000 to 225,000. The regional plan, on the other hand, places the limit at 140,000.

Only after aldermen William Noel, Fred Severson and John McDonald were assured that these figures are only "projections," and would be flexible, did they indicate likely support for the plan.

Another area of concern was a section of the regional plan which made submission of "official community plans" mandatory for the Capital Region's seven municipalities.

That problem was overcome by a proposal from Victoria Ald. Michael Young which was accepted by the board.

Young's proposal was to file community plans with the regional board, rather than the provincial government. This would require a change in the B.C. Municipal Act, as well as in the regional letters patent which spell out the rules under which the regional board operates.

The board finally decided not to make the community plans mandatory for another two years. If, at the end of that time, the region has jurisdiction over community plans, they must be filed with the regional board.

If the province retains the right to keep community plans under its jurisdiction, a two-thirds majority of regional board votes will be necessary to compel municipalities to file community plans with the province.

Explaining his proposal, Young told the meeting he didn't like the idea of the provincial government having the "key to the chastity belt" of community planning.

The community plans are to complement the regional plan by spelling out in greater detail how each municipality should be developed in the future.

Fears that the provincial government might blindly begin depeloping the Highlands, north of the city, were also a stumbling block for the regional plan.

Those fears were allayed by the board's decision to require detailed environmental studies prior to any development of the Highlands.

In a number of separate interviews following the meeting, directors from all areas of the Capital Region said they were satisfied with the results.

Regional board chairman James Campbell, who has been urging speedy approval of the development plan, said he is confident it will be approved next Wednesday on final reading.

In essence, the plan provides a framework for the orderly development of the entire Capital Region over the next 25 years.

It anticipates a total population growth from 225,000 to 375,000.

Much of this growth, according to the plan, is to be channelled into the western part of the region — Colwood, Langford, and Metchosin, including the Highlands.

Region urged to immunize for diphtheria

Eight cases of diphtheria have been reported in the Captial Region this year and chief medical officer Dr. Allan Arneil is predicting an outbreak similar to last year's when 90 cases were reported.

None of the eight "has been really ill, the most they've had is sore throats," Dr. Arneil said Tuesday and all are safely quarantined at home or in hospital.

Once again the health officer has urged parents to immunize children against what is still "a dangerous disease . . . this isn't a common cold we're talking about."

Arneil said that immunization — which ideally should start when the child is very young, say, three months old — does not stop children contracting the disease but only from suffering associated ill-effects.

This year's outbreak, which started in the middle of last month, appears to be "following the same pattern" as last year's diphtheria wave which began Oct. 1973 and petered out last April, he said.

Arneil says there is not as yet any question of mass immunization for adults because the fully-grown often seact quite severely to the injections. "The younger they are the less effects they get," is the general rule voiced by Arneil.

The number of school children immunized in the region is now running at 80 per cent of the total — which he says is "not as high as we would like" but is better than many areas in North America.

Cases are now being reported every second day, Arneil said, but there is no cause for panic.

First court test under Trade Practices Act

B.C. sues for buyer over car sale

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

In a precedent-setting move, the provincial government is taking a Victoria used car dealer to court for having "engaged in a deceptive act or practice."

Palm Motors Ltd., 2936 Douglas, is being charged under the Trade Practices Act, passed by the B.C. Legislature last spring.

The charge has been laid on behalf of a consumer, William Switley, of 2945 Colquitz, by the consumer services department's director of trade practices.

Trade practices director Michael Hansen confirmed Wednesday afternoon that a summons was served on Palm Motors earlier in the day and was registered in the small claims court.

This is the first time the government is enforcing a section of the Trade Practices Act.

It is also the first case in Canada in which a government has taken legal action on behalf of a consumer.

The summons charges Palm Motors with having sold a defective car to Switley on or about June 11, 1974.

It says that "at all times, the defendant represented the car (a 1966 Chevrolet Caprice) to be reliable and in a roadworthy condition."

The summons goes on to say that Palm Motors "failed to disclose that the car didn't have a reverse gear, and the defendant knew this or ought to have known this."

Switley, according to claim particulars, didn't know the car had no functioning reverse gear.

"Failure to disclose the lack of a functioning reverse gear was a deliberate and intentional act on the part of the defendant and constituted gross and wanton misconduct, much below the general industry standard," the summons said.

The director on behalf of Switley, is seeking $259 for repair of the car's transmission, plus $741 "punitive or exemplary damages."

The authority to launch a civil suit on behalf of consumers is given to the trade practices director under section 24 of the act.

Before taking such action, the director must obtain written consent of the consumer and the consumer services minister.

The Trade Practices Act is generally considered the most effective legislation of its kind in any province.

Several other provinces, including Ontario, are in the process of preparing similar legislation, based on B.C.'s Trade Practices Act.

The legislation was enacted to protect B.C. consumers against unethical and unconscionable trade practices.

Palm Motors has 10 days in which to pay the damages, or file a counter claim.

Talk planned on retiring

Dr. Herbert Otto, chairman of the National Centre for Exploration of Human Potential, will give a public lecture on preparation for retirement Friday at 8 p.m., in the Provincial Museum's Newcombe auditorium.

The Legislative Buildings will be closed Monday for observance of the Remembrance Day holiday. The Provincial Museum will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. that day.

Victoria's Basil Wallace

This rentalsman not the real one, only his legman

Basil Wallace is not the B.C. Rentalsman.

But the former manager of the defunct Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau finds a lot of Victorians think he is.

The phone in his Pandora Street apartment rings daily with requests for assistance in housing disputes between landlords and tenants.

Since Oct. 19, Wallace has "run errands" in Victoria and up-Island for Rentalsman Barrie Clark.

"I can't act on my own. I can't make decisions," he said in an interview Wednesday, "but I do the investigations and the legwork."

He is making about three investigations a day at Clark's request and receives $7 an hour plus expenses.

Deputy-Rentalsman Phil Barter confirmed Wednesday that a rentalsman office would be established in Victoria.

However, Barter refused to set a date for its opening, saying that depended on the availability of trained staff.

Wallace said that, at the age of 69, he was not interested in full-time employment with the rentalsman's office.

Barter said the Victoria office would not be a part of a rental service agency as Jim Nelson of Victoria Rental Aid Service had suggested.

Condition still poor after burns

Betty Blade, 39, remained in poor condition Wednesday at Victoria General Hospital with burns received in her apartment at 840 Craigflower Tuesday morning.

Esquimalt police said the woman fell asleep on a sofa while smoking and awoke to find her pyjamas and blanket on fire.

She was discovered by her husband Robert who returned home when he could not contact her by telephone.

Student wins scholarship

Lorie Bradley of Victoria, a student at the University of Waterloo school of optometry, has been awarded a $250 scholarship by the B.C. Optometric Association.

$3,000 salvage offer

The provincial government has made a $3,000 offer to a Nanaimo man seeking salvage fees for rescuing a drifting government ferry last July.

John Martin, along with Nanaimo lawyer Donald Bohun, towed the 77-foot Rolf Bruhn, which operates between Nanaimo and Gabriola Island, to a dock after spotting it adrift near a marine gas station. The pair then claimed salvage compensation of 10 per cent of the vessel's value.

In October the highways department offered Martin about $1,800 which, he said, was not enough.

Hospital board sees dark lifting

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

After years of frustration the Capital Region Hospital Board looks to be one week away from getting it all together — or at least two sizable chunks of it.

At its regular meeting next Wednesday, the board should take two significant steps towards shaping the future development of hospitals in the district.

The meeting should see regional hospital directors give their approval to the appointment of a new regional hospital planner now recommended at committee level.

The new man will fill the post left vacant since August when John Forrester, the region's first director of hospital planning, resigned to take a position with the Alberta government.

At the same time the board should have the necessary provincial go-ahead by next Wednesday to give first readings to a bylaw setting up a new hospital planning group — the hospital and health planning commission.

Regional hospital board chairman Art Young says the new commission should be ready to make "some fairly firm decisions" in the New Year.

The new commission will have a 12-person board, will have the authority to hire staff, and its executive director will be the region's director of hospital planning.

To date, hospital planning on a regional basis has been frustrated by the lack of an agency with sufficient muscle to be able to co-ordinate the often conflicting aims of special interest groups.

Young told the Colonist: "I feel this is the first step in actually giving the region the authority to move.

"Now the regional board will be really held responsible for any lack of progress and for decisions that will be made."

Most obey new 50 limit

Pat Bay Highway drivers are slowing down to the new 50-miles-an-hour limit and police are finding their pockets full of unissued speeding tickets.

Both Sidney RCMP and Central Saanich police reported Wednesday that fewer than usual speeding tickets had been issued on the highway since the new limits went into effect Monday.

A Sidney RCMP spokesman said the majority of tickets issued were for speeds in excess of the old 60-mile-per-hour limit.

He said traffic counts showed the majority of drivers were staying well below the provincially imposed new maximum.

Spoiled too long, says Lorimer

'Pay your share of transit'

The Capital Region has been "spoiled' too long and starting next year will have to pay its share of transit operating deficits, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer announced Wednesday.

The move, which also applies to Greater Vancouver, requires the district to pay 50 per cent of the operating losses for area bus service, up to an amount equivalent to what could be raised by a two mill assessment.

Other municipalities such as Nanaimo, West Vancouver and Nelson have long contributed to transit operations, Lorimer said, and before the NDP government was elected many municipalities provided transit systems without any provincial assistance.

Lorimer said the province will continue to pay capital costs for Capital Region transit service.

He added, however, that legislation will be introduced in the spring session to allow regional districts to assess commercial areas, such as shopping centres which benefit directly from transit service, for the total municipal share.

Lorimer explained that the districts would also be allowed to finance their share by a general assessment on all property, but said he is suggesting that businesses which benefit from transit service should pay the bill.

Changes in legislation would be required before municipalities could levy varying mill rates within the district, he said.

Despite the new municipal sharing arrangement, transit services will continue to be a provincial responsibility since capital costs are the biggest expense, he added.

Capital Regional board chairman Jim Campbell said he was informed of Lorimer's proposal more than a year ago and at that time asked the minister to reconsider.

The proposed arrangement, Campbell said, would put extra financial burdens on the district's taxpayers without giving any additional source of revenue.

He said he is eager to meet with Lorimer "on a moment's notice" to discuss the proposal, "but they are apparently not prepared to listen to our modifications.

"Ever since the board said it didn't like the financing formula there has been no more communication."

Streaking Sabres claim fair share of attention

New York Islanders and Los Angeles Kings have earned much of the early-season notice in the National Hockey League but Buffalo Sabres are making a strong bid for equal attention.

Unbeaten in six games, Sabres have had great success against pre-expansion opposition in the past two weeks, posting four wins and a tie along with a victory over the St. Louis Blues.

Their latest win came Wednesday in Buffalo, a 6-4 decision over the Chicago Black Hawks before a capacity crowd of 15,863.

Since losing to Los Angeles on Oct. 24, Sabres have posted wins over St. Louis, Montreal, Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, and New York Rangers and played to a tie with Boston Bruins.

Wednesday's win moved the Sabres five points up on second-place Boston in the Adams Division.

In other games, Montreal and Detroit Red Wings fought to a 4-4 tie while Toronto Maple Leafs added to the Minnesota North Stars' woes by registering a 7-4 victory at Maple Leaf Gardens.

At Buffalo, the French Connection line of Gilbert Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert scored four of the Sabre goals and it was Perreault's goal, early in the third period, which proved to be the winner.

The flashy centre also set up a first-period tally by left-winger Martin and Robert, who scored the first Buffalo goal on a brilliant rink-length dash, closed the scoring with an insurance marker late in the final period.

At Montreal, Red Berenson scored midway through the second period to pull the Wings into a 4-4 tie.

The goal came when Detroit pulled its goalkeeper in favor of an extra attacker as a penalty was about to be called on the Canadiens.

Marcel Dionne also scored for Detroit in the same period when the Wings enjoyed a two-man advantage.

Ever-improving Guy Lafleur scored two goals for the Canadiens, who inched to within five points of the front-running Kings in the Norris Division.

In Toronto, Darryl Sittler fired three goals and defenceman Jim McKenney added two others to give the Leafs only their fourth win in 13 starts.

McKenney, returning to the lineup after missing three weeks with a leg injury, added an assist on Sittler's third scoring shot.

Roberts' bid for injunction before Ontario judge today

By STAN COOPER

Victoria Cougars should know today whether or not defenceman Gordie Roberts will be allowed to resume his playing career with the Western Canada Hockey League club.

A Toronto judge will hear an application for an injunction filed Tuesday by lawyers for Roberts' father, John Roberts of Detroit, seeking a ruling which will allow the 17-year-old American citizen to play hockey here pending the settlement of a dispute with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The application claims the CAHA is denying Roberts his human rights by refusing to grant him the necessary east-west transfer form.

The promising defenceman, a member of Detroit Junior Wings of the Southern Ontario Hockey League last season, was selected by Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association in a draft of graduating 16-year-olds.

But Roberts, who was placed on the Cougar negotiation list on Jan. 28, agreed to join the WCHL club after visiting Victoria with his parents this summer.

Sudbury claims his Canadian playing rights and has filed a protest with the CAHA.

And Roberts, who played the first 10 games of the season for the Cats, has been under WCHL suspension since Oct. 22, pending a decision.

Cougars who obtained Roberts' release from Detroit have made several attempts to settle out of court but Sudbury officials have refused all offers and an emergency meeting of OHA governors in Ottawa, Tuesday, failed to break the deadlock.

"We're hoping Gordie will be allowed to play here at least until the matter is settled," Cougar-manager Pat Ginnell said Wednesday, "as this thing has dragged on for nearly three weeks now."

Cougars play their next game Saturday against the Flin Flon Bombers at Memorial Arena.

In other Wednesday developments, leftwinger Eric Sanderson, obtained Tuesday from New Westminster Bruins, arrived in camp while rookie defenceman Wade Smith, an 18-year-old from Nanaimo, left.

Smith, unhappy over the lack of action he's seen during the first 19 games of the season, has received permission to try out with Lethbridge Broncos. If the 190-pounder makes the Lethbridge squad, a suitable arrangement will be made, Ginnell said.

And Ginnell is recommending centre Mel Bridgman, leading the WCHL in scoring with 47 points, and defenceman Rick LaPointe as the two Cougars to represent Victoria on the WCHL all-star team which will play in the world junior hockey tournament in Winnipeg, Dec. 26-Jan. 5.

Ginnell and Jackie McLeod of Saskatoon Blades are co-coaches of the Canadian squad while Del Wilson of Regina and Ernie McLean of New Westminster will serve as managers.

The full 24-member team — two players from each club — will be announced following a governors' meeting, Nov. 17, in Calgary.

Teams from Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Finland, and the United States will also compete in the round-robin tournament which will be staged in Winnipeg, Brandon, Fargo, N.D. and Minneapolis.

In the only game Wednesday, Lethbridge scored a 7-4 win over the visiting Bombers.

Alex Tidey scored twice for Lethbridge and Bryan Trottier, Ben Richardson, Greg Woods, Don Eastcott, and John Lutz added single goals.

Rich Gosselin, Dan Kuntz, Tom Cullen and Scott Williams scored for Flin Flon.

Speaking briefly

Morris walks out of Dolphin camp

MIAMI (AP) — Injured running back Mercury Morris walked out of Miami Dolphins' camp Wednesday and may be suspended from the National Football League team, says coach Don Shula.

"I was very upset when I called him into my office this morning because he missed two days of treatment for a knee injury," Shula said at a news conference. "He told me he's ready to play.

"I told him I didn't think he was and he said, 'Go ahead and suspend me,' and he walked out.

"Suspension is one of the possibilities I am now considering. In the next day or two, I'll sit down face-to-face with him and discuss the situation."

The coach said Morris had been fined $600 for missing treatments.

Ali selected boxer-of-year

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Muhammad Ali was named boxer of the year Wednesday by the 10th convention of the World Boxing Council, in its opening session here.

More than 40 WBC officials, managers, and promoters from around the world are attending the conclave. Among the participants are representatives of the British Boxing Board of Control, the European Boxing Union, the African Boxing Union, the American Federation of Boxing, the Central American Federation of Boxing, and the South American Boxing Federation.

The convention will study modifications in the council's rules, and delegates are scheduled to discuss promoters' problems.

Tightest NHL race gets even tighter

Things tightened up considerably Wednesday night in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division.

Atlanta Flames, third in the already-close, four-team division, moved to within two points of leading Philadelphia Flyers by edging New York Islanders, 2-1, in Atlanta. The triumph also prevented the second-place Islanders from jumping over the idle Flyers.

And last-place New York Rangers rebounded from a 2-1 defeat at the hands of Vancouver Canucks on Tuesday to down California Golden Seals, 7-3. That moved the Rangers to within four points of the Flyers.

Tom Lysiak, who led the Flames last season in scoring with 19 goals and 45 assists, banged in a rebound from Curt Bennett's second-period shot to break the 1-1 tie.

Islanders, who have been one of the early-season NHL surprises, took the lead on Andre St. Laurent's first goal of the season, on a close-in shot which didn't give goalkeeper Dan Bouchard any chance.

However, a minute later in the opening period, Eric Vail tied the score on a power play, tipping in a blue-line drive by defenceman Dwight Bialowas.

Goalkeeper Billy Smith was often spectacular for the Islanders, making several tough saves to keep the New Yorkers close.

Smith finished with 28 saves while Bouchard stopped 19 of 20 Islander shots.

Rod Gilbert scored three goals to lead the Rangers, who snapped a losing streak at three games and a winless skein at four.

Gilbert opened the scoring, cashing in a rebound, but the stubborn Seals grabbed a 2-1 lead before the first period ended.

Goals by centre Jean Ratelle and Gilbert gave the lead back to the Rangers but Wayne King evened the score again.

Rangers then put the outcome out of doubt by scoring four times in less than seven minutes.

Marshall weighs baseball future

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Marshall, the first relief pitcher to win the Cy Young Award, says he will weigh his future until next March before telling Los Angeles Dodgers whether he will pitch in 1975.

"I'm putting off my decision about playing until March," said Marshall. "By making this statement, I do not mean to say, or to imply, that I do not intend to pitch again."

Marshall made the comments in a telephone interview Wednesday.

"What I'm saying is that I simply will weigh the various ingredients, my family, my academic pursuits, my feelings, and baseball at that time, then make my decision. Not before."

Marshall, who was named to the National League's top pitching honor after appearing in a record 106 games during the regular season, said he already has started his off-season regimen of running and throwing while he lectures and works on his doctorate in kinesiology at Michigan State University in East Lansing, Mich.

He polled 17 of a possible 24 first-place votes to outscore teammate Andy Messersmith, 96 points to 66, in the tally by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Marshall said the Cy Young Award and withholding his plans are not wedges to get a richer contract from the Dodgers. The Dodgers paid him $87,500 in 1974, when he reported late to spring training because of his educational commitments.

"I don't need it as a financial wedge. I'll get paid what I want, or I won't play. It's that simple," said the 31-year-old right-hander who came to the Dodgers in a trade with Montreal Expos last winter.

Next games: Wednesday — London Boxing Club vs. Stevens Interiors, James Bay Athletic Association vs. Victoria Junior Men, Victoria High School.

Victoria Junior Men put on a late charge Wednesday night at Victoria High but couldn't catch unbeaten London Boxing Club in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game.

The Boxers, who jumped out to an early, 18-2 lead, watched the new-entry Juniors pile in 15 straight points in the late stages but hung on for a 70-57 triumph.

Second-place Hotel Douglas kept pace by defeating Stevens Interiors, 79-62, with Tom Hatcher and Corky Jossul supplying most of the firepower.

Jack Robinson scored 16 points in the first half and had four more points before fouling out to lead the Boxers.

Doug Irving had 14 points to top the Juniors, who were trailing, 40-68, when they put on the spurt.

Hatcher had 24 points for the hotelmen, 12 in each half, while Jossul scored 14 points in the last half to finish with 20.

JUNIOR MEN (57) — Jim Griffin 3, Sean Flynn, Bent Hanson, 4, Kevin Worth 2, Steve Rothwell 6, George Lomas 1, Thad Newman 8, Vanni Barbon 8, John Hampton 6, Doug Irving 12, Jack Munch 5.

LONDON BOXING (70) — Jack Robinson 20, Dave Wirtanen 4, Loris Corletto 6, Daryl Glanville, Rich Connelly 12, Bill Hingley 2, Alf Hass 12, Jim McKay 10, Bob Wiley 4.

REGINA (CP) — The president of British Columbia Lions unsuccessfully suggested two weeks ago that this Sunday's Western Football Conference semi-final game be moved from Regina, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Lion president Wes Munsie, president of the WFC, wrote to Saskatchewan Roughrider president Al Sangster the day after Roughriders clinched second place in the conference, winning the right to have the semi-final playoff game in Regina.

The key sections of the letter, a copy of which was obtained by The Leader-Post, were:

"You will recall at the last Western Football Conference meeting I indicated my concern on behalf of the conference as to the small revenue derived from the 9000 people who attended the semi-final game in Regina last year.

"You will also recall the reason given by Bill Clarke was that the fans thought it would be a cakewalk for the Roughriders.

"The purpose of this letter is to ascertain if the same review exists this year, and if it does it might be in the best interest of the conference and the league to play the game in a centre which would attract the maximum number of fans and to generate up to $200,000 in additional dollars for the conference."

Sangster said in an interview Wednesday that "Munsie has nerve."

"No doubt about that. I wrote him back and I was really quite gentle with him.

"I told him the people here are quite capable of supporting their own team."

Riders have already sold about 18,000 tickets for the game, aided by mild fall weather that contrasts sharply with the cold spell at playoff time last year.

Cutler leads West to edge over East

Western players held the edge on their eastern counterparts in Canadian Football League play this season, final statistics show.

Scoring, rushing, passing and receiving honors were all taken by players from the Western Football Conference while Eastern Conference kickers and punt returners held an advantage.

Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos won the scoring title with 144 points, only four shy of the CFL record 148 points held by former Hamilton Tiger-Cat Tommy-Joe Coffee. Cutler beat his old record of 32 field goals by two but Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders set a new mark with 36 and Ian Sunter of Hamilton managed 35.

A CFL record six players — all place kickers — exceeded the 100-point mark in league play.

In the rushing department, veteran fullback George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders charged past the 1000-yard milestone for the 10th time in 11 seasons in piling up a league-leading 1447 yards on 288 carries. Reed was followed by Roy Bell of Edmonton and the B.C. Lion duo of Lou Harris — CFL touchdown leader with 12 — and Monroe Eley, all with over 1000 yards rushing. Steve Ferrughelli of Montreal Alouettes was the only EFC rusher to beat 1000 yards, counting 1134 on a leading 298 carries.

Quarterback Peter Liske, who played for Calgary Stampeders and joined the B.C. Lions last month, topped the throwers with 228 completions for 3259 yards. Saskatchewan veteran Ron Lancaster threw the most passes (395), for the most touchdowns (20), and was second to Liske in yards gained with 2873. Mike Rae of Toronto Argonauts led the EFC with 171 completions and 2501 yards.

Calgary's Rudy Linterman led all receivers with 64 receptions, three more than teammate Tom Forzani and EFC-leader Tony Gabriel of Hamilton. Johnny Rodgers of Montreal gained the most yards (1024) via the pass.

Toronto kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn again led the league in punting with 6653 yards on 142 kicks for a 46.9 average.

And Ottawa's Dick Adams led in punt returns (92) for a league-leading 608 yards.

Braefoot, Douglas take race honors

Braefoot had the best of the girls and Sir James Douglas the best of the boys, but Braefoot wound up with team honors.

Braefoot girls won three of four divisions and led their school to the Greater Victoria elementary school cross-country championship Wednesday at Beacon Hill Park.

Shelley Deryck won the 12-year-old division, Sandy Dick the 11-year-old and Patricia Wellman the nine-year-old and Braefoot took team honors with 98 points, 29 more than runner-up Sir James Douglas.

The Douglas boys also won three of four events. David Carlyle was first in the 11-year-old division, Dick De Goede in the 10-year old and Larry Dennis the nine-year-old.

Terri Van Nice prevented a Braefoot sweep in the girls meet by finishing first in the 10-year-old girls race and Jamie Bain of Northridge-Glanford broke up the Douglas domination by winning the boys' 12-year-old race.

Points were awarded to the top 10 finishers in each race with the winner receiving 10 and the second-place runner nine down to one for the 10th runner.

Braefoot had three third-place finishers and Sir James Douglas had one second and one third.

Following are the team results and top three finishers in each event:

Reynolds' top striker will miss cup final

By REG REYNOLDS

Reynolds Roadrunners go after their second straight Colonist Cup Friday, but they'll have to do it without their No. 1 striker and second-highest scorer.

Drew Finerty, who scored 17 goals in league play and one goal in the Roadrunners 3-2 semi-final victory over Oak Bay, will have to watch from the sidelines when Reynolds takes on Spectrum in the Inter-high school soccer championship starting at 8 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park.

Finerty was injured in a collision near the Oak Bay goal in Monday's semi-final. He stayed in the game, however, and scored the tying goal late in the second half.

But on Tuesday his injury was diagnosed as a concussion and the small-wiry striker was informed he would have to miss the championship game.

To compensate for the loss of Finerty on the forward line, coaches Henry Kuyhvenhoven and Tony Fantillo will move high-scoring Greg Booth up from mid-field.

Booth, who played the first half of the season at striker and the second half at mid-field, finished third in league scoring with 20 goals and scored twice against Oak Bay in the semi-final.

Both Finerty and Booth played on last year's squad, which edged Mt. Douglas, 1-0, in the Cup final.

Kuyhvenhoven said the rest of the team was in good health for the final and Eric Jones appeared to be recovered from a leg injury that put him out of the second half of the semi-final.

The Roadrunners will need all the strength they can muster against the Spectrum team, which plays a rough brand of soccer and makes up in weight what it lacks in height.

It's one of Spectrum's lighter players, Dan Hood, however, who handles the bulk of the scoring. Hood led the league with 24 goals and scored once in Spectrum's, 4-2, semi-final victory over Vic High.

Two Spectrum players — Dalgeet Ghag and Doug Vincent — suffered knee injuries in the rough semi-final and Ghag is not expected to play Friday.

Reynolds won the Cup, which is the oldest trophy in high-school sports, for the first time last year. Spectrum, which replaced Mount View a nine-time winner of the Cup, is in the final in its first year of competition.

Blazers unable to mount threat

Vancouver Blazers are off to a better start than last season, but they still don't appear to be a threat for a division title.

The Blazers failed in a bid for a share of third place in the Candian Division Wednesday, by dropping a5-2 decision to Quebec Nordiques before 8890 fans at a World Hockey Association game at Quebec.

The loss was the fifth in nine games for Vancouver, which lost eight of its first 10 games last season, and it dropped Blazers four points behind Quebec.

Rob Walton scored twice in the second period for the Blazers, but the Nordiques got second-period goals from Rejean Houle and Renald Leclerce and third-period markers from Houle, Pierre Guite and Serge Bernier.

Ron Chipperfield got Vancouver's final goal with just more than five minutes remaining in the game.

Don McLeod made 33 stops in the Vancouver nets, while Richard Brodeur stopped 29 for Quebec.

Cosell discounts fake-call claim

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Cosell said Wednesday he knows Muhammad Ali's voice when he hears it and insists that it was Ali calling from Zaire during the American Broadcasting Co. broadcast of a Monday night football game between Pittsburgh Steelers and Atlanta Falcons on Oct. 28.

And a London, Ont., college student insists he knows Ali's voice too, and faked it so well on the phone that he duped Cosell into believing he was talking to the heavyweight fighter.

Ali, the only man who really can solve the mystery, was unavailable for comment.

But in Los Angeles, Cosell was more than willing to comment on the report in a Toronto newspaper that he had been fooled by Michael Banks, a 20-year-old student at the University of Western Ontario.

"What's the big deal?" an ABC spokesman quoted Cosell as saying. "If he did that, he ought to be in jail instead of being glorified by the press."

Bank's account, according to a Toronto Globe and Mail columnist, Dick Beddoes, is that he spent 45 minutes getting to Cosell and that when he reached the broadcaster, "I really laid it on him."

Banks, mimicking Ali, said he told Cosell he had made up a new poem for Foreman, and then offered it to the broadcaster.

"Georgy Porgy, puddin' 'n' pie.

"Devastatin' punch and heap big thigh.

"When Georgy Porgy come out to fight.

"I'm gonna knock him outta sight."

Banks said that Cosell believed him and reported the conversation during the football broadcast.

When it was suggested that people might not believe Banks' boast, the student had a quick comeback.

"Well, I've got tapes of my Ali conversation with Cosell," he said. "I'll also get a bill from Bell Canada to prove I was on the line to Pittsburgh."

Vic High has another league title to its credit and the distinction of having two undefeated teams in Inter-high school volleyball competition.

The Vic High boys downed Dunsmuir, 15-10, 15-6, at Dunsmuir on the final day, to capture the league title with a record of eight wins and no losses.

The girls won their league by going undefeated in 18 games.

In Tuesday's games played at Oak Bay, Esquimalt nailed down second place with a 15-3, 15-0 pasting of the home team, and Mt. Douglas grabbed third place by beating Claremont, 17-15, 15-4 and Spectrum, 15-2, 15-6.

Claremont and Spectrum tied for eighth place, which is the last playoff spot, but Claremont gained the playoff berth because it defeated Spectrum in their only league encounter.

Reynolds was given the sixth place berth over Oak Bay for the same reason.

Two four-team round-robins will be held on Tuesday to decide the four teams that qualify for the Island tournament. The top two teams from each round-robin advance to the Island tourney and will meet in more round-robin play Thursday to find the Lower Island champion.

Cowichan nips Belmont in exhibition

Cowichan Thunderbirds opened the high-school boys' exhibition basketball season with a 49-45 victory over Belmont Braves Wednesday at Duncan.

Al Williams, with 14 points led the Thunderbirds, who held a 29-28 lead at halftime.

Bruce Robertson was the top Belmont scorer with 15 points.

The Braves will have a chance for revenge when the rematch is held next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Belmont.

Royal Roads nips visitors

Jeff Young booted four penalty goals Wednesday to lead Royal Roads to a 12-11 exhibition rugby victory over visiting St. Michael's University School.

David Wasylynko and Bruce Moore scored one try each and David Olson kicked a penalty goal for St. Michaels.

Bowl game set

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Coach Tom Osborne of Nebraska said Tuesday his team would play Florida in the annual Sugar Bowl football game on New Year's eve.

Leeds, Derby advance

Leeds United and Derby County were the only successful United Kingdom soccer teams in European competitions Wednesday.

Leeds scored a 3-0 victory over Ujpest Dozsa of Hungary in European Cup play to win the aggregate, 5-1, and advance to the quarter-finals. Gordon McQueen, Billy Bremner and Terry Yorath scored for Leeds, which has been erratic in English League play.

Alos in European Cup action, Ararat Yerevan of the Soviet Union blanked Ireland's Cork Celtic, 5-0, to win the aggregate, 7-1, and gain a berth in the quarter-finals.

Derby County gained a 2-2 draw with Spain's Atletico Madrid in UEFA Cup competition, tying the aggregate at 4-4. But Derby took the round on penalties.

Juventus of Italy scored a 4-0 triumph over Hibernian of Scotland to take the aggregate, 8-2, in another UEFA Cup match.

In Cup Winners' Cup, second-round play Wednesday, Bursaspor of Turkey edged Dundee United of Scotland, 1-0, taking the aggregate by the same score.

Yugoslavia's Partizan Belgrade held Northern Ireland's Portadown to a 1-1 draw and took the aggregate by a 6-1 margain.

Anderson told to drop bill debate

Liberal leader David Anderson sat down in frustration in the Legislature Wednesday after a long procedural wrangle with Speaker Gordon Dowding and Industrial Development Minister Gary Lauk.

Anderson had just started his speech on the Natural Products Marketing Act, with quotations from Premier Barrett and Agriculture Minister David Stupich, when Lauk asked Dowding to rule him out of order because Anderson was going to comment on a case now before the courts.

For the next 45 minutes, Anderson and other Liberal MLAs argued that Dowding's ruling — prohibiting discussion about matters relating to the B.C. Supreme Court case of the B.C. Egg Marketing Board versus Savo Kovachich meant that the bill could not be fully debated.

Anderson claimed the NDP drew up the legislation because of the Kovachich case and added that because of Dowding's ruling, the origins of the bill can't be discussed.

If Dowding followed his own logic in making the ruling, Anderson said, the entire debate of the bill should be out of order and the government should withdraw it.

He said outside the house that Dowding's decision was wrong, in his opinion, but he didn't challenge the ruling because government members would support the Speaker.

An independent speaker (Dowding is the NDP MLA for Burnaby-Edmonds) would never have made such a ruling, Anderson charged.

Six unions nod to pact

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six of the seven unions of the Joint Council of Newspaper Unions have now approved a proposed one-year contract with Pacific Press, which produces the Province and the Sun.

Some Spectrum pupils leaving early Fridays

The weekend will soon become longer for some pupils at Spectrum community secondary school.

Starting Nov. 29 pupils will attend classes through the noon hour Friday and be dismissed at 1:30 p.m.

The change is primarily for the benefit of some 300, out of about 800 Spectrum pupils, who hold part-time jobs over weekends.

Other pupils will have the extra time free for special classes, intramural sports competition and pupil-teacher meetings.

Overseer bill nearer

After three days of debate and an impassioned plea Wednesday from Agriculture Minister David Stupich, the government's Natural Products Marketing Act received second reading in the Legislature.

Roy Cummings (NDP-Vancouver-Little Mountain), rejoined government ranks during the vote, after voting with the opposition on first reading because he said the legislation does not formally protect consumers.

The act sets up a new marketing agency to oversee other marketing boards and provides for government appointment of its 10 members.

The government says consumers will be appointed to the board but Cummings said he wants them to fill half the positions.

All opposition parties voted against the bill, with Liberal Pat McGeer the only MLA absent from the chamber.

Gerald Anderson (NDP-Kamloops) said during debate Wednesday that opposition attacks on the legislation were a cover for attacks against Stupich who, Anderson said, has done more for agriculture in the last two years than the previous government ever did.

Debate on the bill had been neither "intelligent or interesting," Anderson said.

Lebanon jobs 'slavery'

LONDON (Reuter) — British women are taking jobs in Lebanon and finding they are the virtual slaves of their employers, says British Attorney-General Sam Silkin.

He released Wednesday a letter from the deputy foreign secretary, David Ennals, which reported that the British consul in Beirut was discouraging young women from accepting "slavery employment."

"It appears the Arab governments enforce harshly the work contract signed by these women in ignorance . . ." the letter said.

Silkin said the department of trade and a local city council were investigating employment agencies recruiting women for work in the Middle East, and one of the agencies had already stopped its recruiting.

Ennals' letter to Silkin said: "Most of these unfortunate girls go to work in night clubs in Beirut, attracted by advertisements in British publications which suggest that they can earn higher pay than in Britain in return for an easy job in the agreeable climate of Lebanon."

Why male attendants only?—MLA

Even NDP members sometimes have difficulty in getting their questions answered in the Legislature.

Rosemary Brown (Vancouver—Burrard) said Wednesday she noticed quite a few new legislative attendants around for the current session. "And I notice that they are all male," she added. "I would like to know why no females are hired for these positions?"

Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall said he would take the question as notice and seek the answer from Speaker Gordon Dowding.

Under legislative rules, such questions cannot be asked directly of Dowding who has jurisdiction over the hirinbg of attendants.

'Egg agency will work'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency is overcoming growing pains and will become effective, an Alberta official told the special inquiry into egg marketing Wednesday.

"Sure we have a few rotten eggs but it's in its initial stages," Dave Guichon of the Alberta Egg and Fowl Marketing Board told the inquiry.

"We believe in CEMA and it's going to work."

He said that since 28 million eggs were found rotten earlier this year provinces had undertaken head counting to determine the size of production. Alberta had hired 10 men in July to count laying hens.

Alberta never produced beyond its allocated quota and most of the year was importing from Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Later, Bob Rose, manager of the Manitoba Egg Marketing Board, said eggs imported from the United States were probably responsible in some measure for the surplus that led to the rotten-egg fiasco.

But, Manitoba was in agreement with Alberta in supporting the national marketing board system, he said.

After victory, co-operation

Democrats seek out Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats, their congressional muscles bulging following mid-term elections, have been rearmed for clashes with President Ford over the right way to handle U.S. economic ills.

There was Democratic talk of such confrontations, but on the morning after their election victories Tuesday, party leaders put the emphasis on possible compromise and co-operation with Ford.

Ford, whose party was stunned by the Democrats' landslide, readily agreed.

"We will meet Congress more than halfway," he said through an aide.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield came to the White House to talk co-operation and compromise with the Republican president. And a source close to the House of Representatives leadership said: "We may make suggestions, but if anything is to be done, Ford is going to have to agree. The name of the game is going to be compromise."

With virtually all votes counted, Republicans faced this gloomy picture:

- Democrats had captured 43 extra House seats for a total of 291, a clear two-thirds majority just short of the 295 seats Democrats won in Lyndon B. Johnson's landslide a decade ago.
- Democrats had picked up three Senate seats, for a total of 61.
- They had scored a net gain of four governorships, including the biggest states of New York and California, for a new total of 36.

Ford, in office less than three months, was described by aides as philosophical about the outcome. "He's seen good years and bad years and this was a bad year," a spokesman said, adding that the Republican setbacks "didn't come as any great surprise."

Ford had warned that big Democratic gains could result in a "dictatorial . . . veto-proof Congress." But even with Democrats holding a two-thirds edge in the House, the wholesale overriding of Ford vetoes is not a realistic prospect because of philosophic differences within both parties.

An analysis of the returns did indicate a new Congress more liberal than the current one and more likely to press aggressively for its solutions to domestic issues.

Air guard took part in skyjack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A turncoat sky marshal and other unidentified gunmen Wednesday released a Jordanian airliner and passengers seized nine hours earlier in a bid for sanctuary in Libya, reports from that North African country said.

The Caravelle jet, hijacked to Benghazi, Libya, returned later to Amman with its passengers and crew.

The number of hijackers who seized the airliner or their whereabouts, was not immediately known.

An official Libyan communique said the hijackers, who called themselves The Free Jordanian Officers, had asked for political asylum in Libya.

The plane was hijacked on a Jordanian domestic flight from Amman, the capital, to Aqaba on the coast. An airline official identified one of the gunmen as a sky marshal assigned to guard against hijackings.

At Beirut airport, where the plane tried to land before heading for Libya, sources said the skyjackers spoke in Arabic with a Palestinian accent.

Pregnant woman must be guarded

Superstition still rife in Philippines

MANILA (Reuter) — Superstitious beliefs die hard among the 40 million people of this deeply religious republic in southeast Asia.

Despite the advance of education and penetration of the rural areas by radio, older folk in towns and villages throughout the 7,000 tropical islands still talk about spirits.

Sometimes these sirits are visible, superstition says. They can make a person sick, drive him insane or direct him to buried treasure.

The spirits vary across the country.

In the central Philippines people talk about the asuwang which can suck the blood of a sleeping person by poking its needle-like tongue through the roof of a house.

A pregnant woman must always be guarded by her husband, especially at night when the asuwang is near. He must cut the evil tongue with a knife before it reaches his wife's skin.

In the northern Philippines, villagers speak of a headless priest or a beautiful girl, immaculately white at midnight, who can turn into a pig or a dog. Only the flare of a quickly struck match can drive the spirits away.

The mamaidam, a human being empowered by a spirit, can make his enemies, and even members of his family, fall sick. The victim can only be cured by the mamaidam or by a quack doctor, not licensed to practise medicine.

There is the sairo who cries out in the middle of the night. The cry must be ignored or sickness will follow. Less fearsome are the mischievous kibban, tiny beings who steal chickens or food from the kitchen.

There are also benevolent spirits which at midnight give a favored one direction to find a buried jar of coins.

Superstition surrounds marriages, deaths, buildings and practically anything in the life of country folk.

For instance, the dark outline on the moon is St. Michael, who is jotting down the actions of God's creatures.

A pregnant woman who sees a solar or a lunar eclipse must immediately rinse her hair with rice straw to prevent a miscarriage. She is also advised not to leave the house at twilight without a head scarf, to prevent having a bald child.

When a mother has to leave her sleeping child, salt, garlic and a knife must be left with it to scare away evil spirits. A maiden must never sing in front of the stove or she will marry a widower.

In the north, farmers offer the dead cooked rice to ensure a good harvest.

In the central Philippines, if death is followed by heavy rain or a thunderstorm, people say the deceased was a good man because even the heavens weep for him. If a persons sneezes in front of a corpse, he will also die soon.

Many people believe that a year which starts on a Tuesday or a Friday will be one of poor crops, pestilence, earthquakes or typhoons.

On New Year's Eve, farmers pile seeds on their stove, carefully covering them with coconut shells so the cats will not get at them. If they are found scattered the next morning, the harvest will be lean.

At the stroke of midnight on New Year's Eve, people listen for the mooing of cows and carabao water buffalo, portending a prosperous year ahead. If a dog is heard howling, the year will be marked by misfortune.

When building a house, a comb and a coin should be placed in the hole dug for the first post. This means good luck for the family. To drive witches away, a wooden pestle must be placed below the bamboo stairway.

Judge orders return of children to U.S.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — A high court judge has ordered the return of six American children to the United States after two years in Rhodesia. They allegedly were abducted from their homes in Richmond, Va.

Seven children were brought to Rhodesia by Edward and Helen Duggan. The seventh, Edward Duggan Jr., 14, will stay in Rhodesia with his father, Justice Beck said.

Three American parents, all from Richmond, arrived three weeks ago for the custody case which ended Tuesday after a two-day hearing.

Five of the children were from Duggan's previous marriage. Their mother, Mrs. Sybil Crone, accompanied by her husband Glenn, said the children were abducted by Duggan on the pretext of taking them on a vacation in the fall of 1972. Two other children are from Mrs. Duggan's previous marriage to Dennis Wilburn, also of Richmond, who came to Rhodesia with the Crones.

Provincial COURT

A 26-year-old Victoria area man who still has time to serve from convictions in 1971 and 1972 was sentenced Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court to a total of four months for two new offences.

William Harold Mack, no fixed address, was sentenced by Judge William Ostler following a guilty plea to a charge of possession Oct. 29 and 30 of known stolen property.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said Mack pawned a stolen $275 guitar for $100 and also pawned an $80 tool box for an unstated amount.

Macdonald said Mack was still on parole from a three-year prison term received in 1971 for possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking and possession of heroin, as well as from a consecutive eight-month sentence received in 1972 for false pretences.

The prosecutor said Mack's parole from those terms "is being revoked."

The week of March 3 in Judge Harold Alder's section was set aside by Ostler for preliminary hearing of a six-count charge laid Oct. 30 under the Combines Investigation Act.

Nick Lapshinoff, of Victoria, and Golden Products Canada Ltd. face four counts dealing with Victoria newspaper advertisements in 1972 and 1973. Gary Ernest Willis and the company face two counts dealing with similar ads.

The two men, no longer a part of the company, chose trial by judge and jury. They were represented by lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood while court was advised a Vancouver lawyer will appear for the company.

Bail was refused by Ostler for Edward King Krobel, 27, no fixed address, who was charged with break-in and theft Oct. 31 at the McGill and Orme dispensary in the Medical Arts Building, 1105 Pandora. Krobel was remanded to next Tuesday for further hearing after he asked for representation through Legal Aid.

Richard Paul Howard, 27, of 532 Dallas, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of possession of a small amount of marijuana Tuesday in his apartment and was fined $150 by Ostler. Prosecutor James McLellan said Howard had a 1972 conviction for possession of marijuana in Victoria.

The question of how many judges will be needed to hear separate charges laid by Colwood RCMP against seven men after a July 21 incident was cleared somewhat in the courts of Ostler and Judge Harold Alder.

Alder has started the trial of one man charged after Constable William Biden received a seven-stitch cut in one ear on the grounds of Dunsmuir high school in Metchosin. Wednesday, he declined to start a second man's trial until after the first was finished later this week.

The second man's trial was deferred until Feb. 24 before Alder while trials of three other men were set for Friday and Feb. 17 before another judge.

Ostler, who made the ruling, did not say whether one or two judges would be needed for those two cases. Still undisclosed is the trial site and judge for the remaining two men facing charges in the complex case. One of these is due before Alder Thursday and the other next Tuesday.

Snow would put city in red

The men who pay the bills at city hall aren't dreaming of a white Christmas.

In fact, they hope there will be no snow on city streets until after the new year because the contingency fund may not have enough money to meet such an emergency situation.

Council's finance committee got the cold facts on the contingency fund balance Wednesday morning when they learned only $11,506 remains.

"One heavy storm could deplete this fund," warned controller-treasurer Mason Sheldrick.

The contingency fund began the fiscal year with $618,589 and by Oct. 17 was reduced to $89,354.

Police and fire department salary increases nipped the lion's share of the fund, taking over $387,000.

Since Oct. 17, council has dipped into the fund for $64,848 to pay its share of the $100 million overrun in the provincial human resources department.

Another $13,000 went towards improvements for the heritage house on the recently acquired Warren Tug property.

Labor parley cost

King won't tell

Labor Minister William King declined Wednesday to tell Social Credit MLA James Chabot how much it cost to take 250 labor department employees to Harrison Hot Springs for a two-day conference last month.

Chabot had asked during the question period how many employees had gone to the conference and what was the total cost. He also wanted to know why Harrison was chosen rather than Victoria or Vancouver where most of the people work.

"Harrison was central for those coming down from the north," King said. "I didn't take a head count, but I would say about 250 were there. The department workers appreciated it and morale is high."

The cost? That figure, said King, will be itemized in the public accounts report.

Brink's robbed

MONTREAL (UPI) — Two men with shotguns Wednesday held up an armored Brink's truck as it was making a delivery at a hospital credit union and escaped with $84,500, police said.

Rental aid won't get city grant

Victoria council's finance committee slammed the door Wednesday on an immediate grant of more than $26,000 to Victoria Rental Aid Service.

Jim Nelson, director of the service, which finds housing for low-income people and welfare recipients, said the committee's decision would shut his agency down.

Nelson appealed to council for support after the human resources department opted out of underwriting any housing service agency after Nov. 1.

Finance committee, in turning down Nelson's proposal, did not rule out future support for the group.

Ald. William Tindall said the group was performing an admirable service but council wanted to study its proposal along with a financial request which has been made to the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee by a rival rental aid agency.

Major cost in Nelson's proposal was $18,000 a year as salary for himself and a secretary.

Currently Nelson receives approximately $100 a month as do 18 other part-time workers in Victoria Rental Aid Service.

Seven bodies still missing

CALGARY (CP) — Divers were still searching for seven bodies in cold Arctic waters Wednesday where a Lockheed Electra aircraft crashed Oct. 30, killing 32 of the 34 men on board. The Electra, owned by Panarctic Oils Ltd. of Calgary, crashed short of the runway at Rea Point on Melville Island, 1,600 miles north of Edmonton. A Panarctic spokesman said 25 bodies have been recovered and identified.

Shoemaker cleared at last

A Victoria shoe shop owner was acquitted Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court after a long trial on a charge of fraud and Judge William Ostler indicated a key reason for his verdict was "a daring and well-orchestrated defence."

Ostler ended a five-day trial that had stretched over a period of more than five months by acquitting Guy Gaudio, of Gaudio Super Shoe Repairs, 772 Fort, with these words:

"I am very far from being free of any doubt but the accumulation of the evidence leaves me with a reasonable doubt and the accused is acquitted."

Gaudio and his father Raffaele had been jointly charged with defrauding a Victoria man of about $85 Sept. 20, 1972, by selling him "a pair of shoes purported to be handmade when such was not the case."

A mistrial was declared in the father's case in July when it was discovered he did not understand English well enough to realize what had been happening during the trial.

Wednesday, after the son won acquittal, Ostler approved a request by prosecutor Peter Birkett to withdraw the charge against the father.

The judge said the key to the case was not the quality of the material, the fit of the shoes or the reasonableness of the price. It was the duty of the crown to prove the shoes were not handmade and that the buyer was defrauded of about $85 as a result.

He said the original conversation between the younger Gaudio and the buyer did not rule out "use of a machine or other process" and there was no "guarantee that every step would be undertaken by hand."

Ostler said he believed, after listening to the "sincere" testimony of shoe experts called by both sides, that the shoes were "astonishingly similar" to navy "pusser bucks" issued in 1965. The buyer had been charged more than $100 where the navy shoes were worth about $35.

But such shoes sometimes are stripped to provide ingredients for new pairs and this was part of "a daring and well-orchestrated defence which, in my opinion, could have backfired."

He referred to the court's move in July to the Gaudio shop, at the request of defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, to see father and son built a shoe like the one involved in the case.

In this operation, he said, machines were rarely used.

Ostler described the case as long, difficult and "very suspicious." The charge was a serious one that questioned "the reputation and honesty of a tradesman" and the crown had to prove guilt beyond any reasonable doubt. It had not, he said, and Gaudio was cleared.

Jacques Brel successful but he's also an enigma

Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris may sound like the answer to a "Personal" ad, but it is the name of a highly successful show now playing at Open Space, 510 Fort.

The performance will be repeated for the last time tonight before the singers and musicians travel to Salt Spring Island where they will entertain audiences Saturday and Sunday night.

As presented by the Western Canada Theatre Company and directed by Tom Ken, the show, as a piece of theatre, is an enigma.

It can hardly be classed as a concert since members of the cast do not line up and sing one song after the next. But the performance is composed of a collection of songs written by Belgian poet-singer Jacques Brel.

Neither is it a musical-play. There is no plot, which makes it easy for the audience to follow, and the characters do not maintain one role from start to finish.

Rather the cast moves effortlessly from one song to the next with lighting, accompaniment and mood changing almost imperceptibly.

The singers alter their personalities every minute.

At one moment a singer is an Amsterdam fisherman, the next he embodies a young man experiencing love for the first time.

All the songs are sung in the style of Parisian street singers under the sign of a Paris restaurant. When characters are not performing they sit sipping wine at tables with checked cloths.

A highlight of the performance is a song called "Sons" sung by a short brunette.

As the lights brightened Wednesday night she looked like Edith Piaf standing outside a street-side cafe singing for her morning coffee.

Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris played to a packed house Wednesday night and the audience enjoyed a mixture of poetry, song and rock music.

Abortive escape sparks prison riot

BELFAST (UPI) — British soldiers broke up a mass escape attempt and rioting at Maze prison near here Wednesday, killing one inmate and injuring 35 others. Hundreds of Roman Catholics protested in the streets against the action.

In another incident, gunmen firing from ambush killed two British soldiers at the border village of Crossmaglen, 47 miles southwest of Belfast. A third soldier was wounded in the attack by six men with submachine guns.

In central Belfast a bomb exploded in a truck outside a police station. No one was hurt.

A government spokesman said 20 men tried to escape shortly after midnight by tunneling out of the Maze prison.

The Maze incident started a riot in which 35 inmates were injured. In Belfast, hundreds of Roman Catholics protested in the streets against the shooting of the inmate.

One of the tunnelers, Hugh Coney, 24, was shot to death when he and a group of others refused to halt as they scrambled over a road, the spokesman said. All but three of the others were rounded up within minutes.

Hundreds of other prisoners tried to rush the main gates and fought a two-hour battle with guards who used tear gas and rubber bullets.

Jail asked in wine trial

BORDEAUX, France (UPI) — The prosecution in the wine fraud trial Wednesday asked for prison sentences for eight of the 18 dealers charged with passing off ordinary wine as controlled-label Bordeaux.

Prosecutor Henri Dontenville called for a year in prison for Pierre Bert, the wine broker who admitted guilt and claimed thousands of others defraud, too.

The prosecutor asked unspecified jail terms for the Cruse cousins Lionel and Yvan, of the Cruse wine company, Bert's associate Serge Balan, wine retailer Lucien Castaign and three other dealers. He said he would accept suspended sentences in the ease of the Cruses, provided there was probation.

Ben and Gladys Caley

Golden wedding

A party to celebrate Mr. and Mrs. Ben Caley's golden wedding anniversary will be held at their daughter's house, 1521 Louise Place, Victoria at 2 p.m., Monday.

Caley of 958 Wollaston, Esquimalt came from Lancashire, England, to Victoria in 1919 and was a painter and contractor until he retired. He was on Esquimalt and Victoria school boards for 10 years and also served on the planning committee and health board in Esquimalt.

Gladys Caley came from Birmingham, England to Victoria in 1922 and they were married Nov. 10, 1924.

Their five children, Robert Caley, Mona Marshall, Gwen MacPherson, Pat Clayards and John Caley, are all resident of Victoria.

There are 13 grandchildren, children.

Pills help battle disease

Betty Ford's cancer fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford has started taking an oral anti-cancer drug described by medical specialists as "something everyone is quite excited about," a White House spokesman said.

The pill-form chemotherapy is designed to treat any malignancy which might not have been detected and removed during Mrs. Ford's radical breast cancer surgery six weeks ago.

Mrs. Ford started the therapy Monday. She will take one pill a day for five days and then will wait six weeks before repeating the cycle. A spokesman reported: "All's well."

The drug — L-Phenylalanine Mustard, or L-Pam — was hailed by the breast cancer task force in a study at the U.S. National Cancer Institute last Sept. 30.

An NCI spokesman said that the drug has minimal side effects but does cause brief nausea in patients who take it. It was approved by the Food and Drug Administration for prescription use against cancer in 1964.

The NCI study was conducted among 250 women at 37 different institutions over a two-year period. It showed that only one out of 30 women receiving L-Pam had a relapse with the spread of cancer cells.

"This is something everyone is quite excited about," the NCI spokesman said.

Dr. William Lukash said that Mrs. Ford has made "remarkable" progress in recovering from her operation.

"She's got the determination to carry on with her responsibilities," he said. "She wants to be a normal person."

Asked if she could maintain her normal life while undergoing the chemotherapy, Lukash replied: "Yes, she's basically doing that now." But he said it would not be advisable for Mrs. Ford to accompany her husband to Japan Nov. 17.

The drug was prescribed for Mrs. Ford following a series of diagnostic tests. Two of the 30 lymph glands when she underwent a radical mastectomy contained evidence of malignant cells. The drug was prescribed to halt the spread of any undetected microscopic malignancy and to insure "more inclusive treatment against any possible remaining cancer."

BISSELL

TORONTO, November 7th — As I write this I'm admiring my brand new SUPER GEMINI FLOOR AND CARPET SWEEPER. Made in Canada by BISSELL. Super Gemini . . . elegantly finished in rally red . . . has a 5 position selector lever for varying lengths of pile (including indoor-outdoor) — as well as bare floors. Along with cushioned bumpers for furniture protection . . . twin brushes for doubly effective cleaning results . . . large capacity dust pans . . . the light weight Super Gemini Sweeper has a new curved appliance handle with comfortable vinyl grip. And, of course, it folds flat for storage. Small wonder Bissell has been a household word for almost five generations! Write to Bissell Limited, Niagara Falls, Ontario for a free Home Carpet Care booklet.

Add wine to flavour stews. The alcohol in the wine boils away . . . the flavour remains . . . acts as tenderizer, too.

ARE CONVENIENCE FOODS WASTEFUL? Well, it all depends. Usually they cost more than foods bought in larger quantities and more completely prepared at home. For this reason they are condemned by many consumers as a rip-off. But convenience foods are good value if they are truly convenient. For example, large quantity purchases would be wasteful for single people or small families. Working wives often just have to take short cuts in food preparation. And lets face it, not all of us are the world's greatest cooks nor do we enjoy the effort required . . . so we welcome some help from the processor.

Little gown hardly covers subject

By MERCEDES MEYERS

A visit with a doctor can be great fun.

Where else can you play such amusing games?

It starts when the nurse gives you an oversize disposable toilet seat cover with extra holes for your arms. This is donned for modesty's sake.

The doctor's modesty, that is.

He doesn't want to walk in on a stripper or a streaker. The rules of the game call for him to find you like a candy bar with the wrapper intact. Then, the paper is turned back to expose the portion he is going to work on.

Besides, your clothes are probably loaded with germs. Hanged if he wants to get whatever ailment you have — not at today's prices of medical care.

Say your problem is in the lung area. Between thumps and prods on your back and diaphragm, the inevitable question is asked by the doctor: "Do you smoke?" Heck, doc, I don't even smoulder.

OK, OK, doc, remove the tongue depressor from my esophagus, I confess, "I do, I do."

"Ah-h, har-hh-h, how many packaes a day?" he says raising one then two fingers.

Game time again. So, you shoot out a matching two fingers. You don't win for matching him in the finger count. All you get is a "Tsk, tsk! You know they're not good for you."

All this while you assume through a guilt feeling he has provoked in you that he is talking about cigarettes. He may be talking about pot.

Nope, his last question assured you that it has to be cigarettes he is referring to. The department of national health and welfare has not determined that marijuana smoking is dangerious to your health.

OK, you admit that you know that cigarette smoking can irritate the lung area, et cetera.

Of course, it has not been determined that they are a prime causative of your problem, bronchial asthma.

In fact, I don't think that cigarette smoking has been proved to be a prime causative of anything.

The medical experts rub nicotine onto bared spots on monkeys and make their determinations. They don't have the monkeys smoke cigarettes in their testing. Do they?

I'd swear right now that I will never smear nicotine on my bare spots.

Prior to all this, the good doc thumped all over your back. This brings forth no sound from him. Turn over, thump the diaphragm. "Ah-h, hah-h-h-h, m-mm-m" and such sounds of a detective picking up clues are emitted from him now.

"There's a wheezing there and there," he says as he pokes the spots.

He sounds so happy that you'd like to wheeze all over the place for him. He sounds, in fact, as if he bottles wheezes and takes them home for his trophy case.

You've had Xrays showing where the problem lies. You've told the good doctor your symptoms.

Does he concentrate on that area?

Nope, he examines your throat, mouth, ears, mammaries and all vital life signs excluding only the ends of your hair before he focuses in on the problem area.

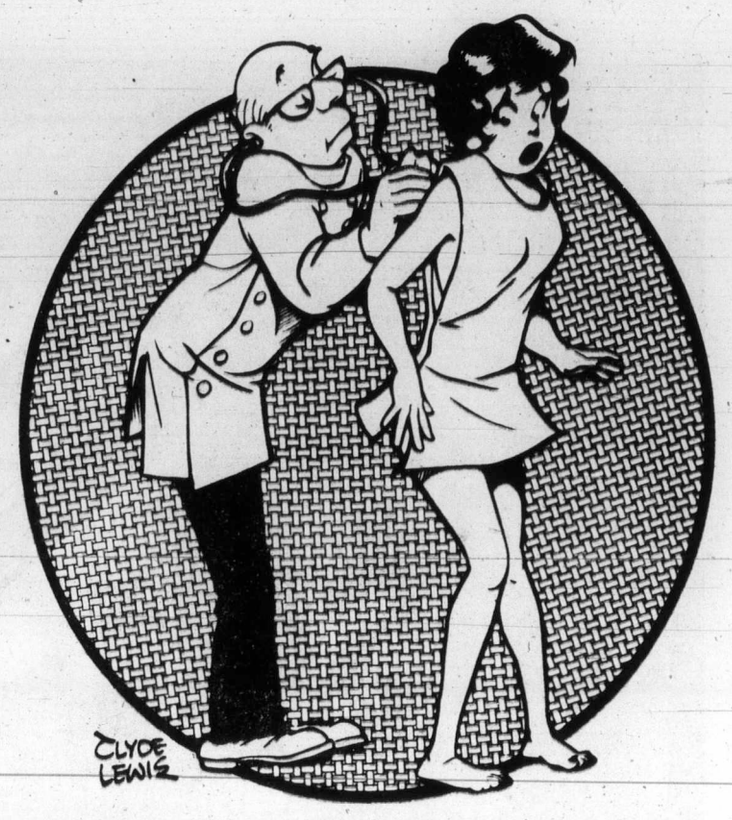
This is your first visit and, goldarn it, he is going to be prepared in case it's not your last.

If nothing else, you may come in with yellowing of your fingers from all that nicotine.

Above all, his nurse at the front desk has checked that you have health insurance. Hm-m, wonder how the doctors years ago managed to have charming homes, good cars and send their kids to college? They never checked your bankbook before considering taking you as a patient.

He gives you your prescription, says, "You'll stop smoking," and leaves telling you that you can dress now.

"Heck, doc, I wasn't about to walk out on the street in this paper wrapper—it's wrinkled." Besides, you can't wait to get outside where you can light up a cigarette now that you know you'll live.



French to test underground

PAPEETE, Tahiti (Reuter) — France's first underground nuclear tests will begin early next year, says Vice-Admiral Jean Tardy, commander-in-chief of the French test program in the South Pacific. The tests are expected to be on Fangataufa Atoll, near Mururoa Atoll, where France's controversial above-ground tests were carried out.

Safeway blames high wages

VANCOUVER (CP) — Food prices are higher in Vancouver than in Ottawa because wages are higher here, a spokesman for Canada Safeway Ltd. says.

Salaries in the Vancouver area are higher not only on the manufacturing and producing end, but also at the retail level, the spokesman said.

The Safeway spokesman's comments follow a statement by federal Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet Friday that prices for essential commodities are higher in Vancouver than in Ottawa, Toronto and elsewhere.

Ouellet went on a shopping tour with MP Simma Holt (L—Vancouver-Kingsway) in Vancouver Friday, and found that steaks priced at $1.98 a pound in Ottawa cost $2.99 a pound here.

Grade A medium eggs cost 83 cents a dozen here, compared with 59 cents a dozen in Ottawa, he said.

He suggested that part of the reason for the lower prices in Ottawa was an experimental program there conducted by the food prices review board. It involves weekly publication of food prices in stores working 40 hours a week in ister said that before the program started there was a difference of as much as 19 per cent in the prices of certain commodities in different stores.

The Safeway spokesman said a general Safeway clerk working 40 hours a weekk in Vancouver makes $5.95 an hour, compared with $4.66 an hour in Ottawa. She said checkers here also make higher wages than their Ottawa counterparts. She did not have comparative figures available.

The Safeway spokesman said it was critical that Ouellet make his across-the-country check at exactly the same time, not a week apart, for an accurate account of price variation.

Inadequacy big fear

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a bartender. I am not crazy about Jerry holding this kind of a job, but he enjoys it and makes good money. He works every day and two nights a week. Our children are grown and on their own, so the two nights he works I'm at home alone.

It seems that Jerry, just because he is employed at this place, things he is obliged to help all the customers have a good time. It came back to me through a friend that he often dances with the women who come in and on several occasions he has driven them home.

When I asked Jerry about this he admitted it. I then demanded to know why he didn't tell me himself. He said, "I knew you wouldn't like it and I didn't want to make you mad." I then said, "If you knew it would make me mad, why did you do it?" He answered, "Because it's my job to keep the customers happy."

We are at a standstill on this issue and it is creating a lot of trouble. Every time I bring up the subject (usually when he comes home late and I think he has driven a lady customer home) we get into a fight.

Tell me, Ann Landers, am I wrong when I say he should behave like a 45-year-old married man and not be dancing with women who hang around bars and driving them home? He said, "Write to Annie. She's got good sense and will set you straight." So will you please be the judge?—Crazy Or Not?

Dear Not Crazy: I know of no cocktail lounge where the bartenders are expected to dance with customers and furnish them with transportation. This is strictly Jerry's idea of "special hospitality."

Since he knows this is creating a problem in your marriage he should knock it off. And you can tell him Annie said so.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who is scared to death. I don't go steady, but there's this one boy I like better than all the others. He is really neat but he has a warped sense of humor.

We live in a courtyard apartment on the ground floor. My bedroom is in the back and there's a very nice terrace and lily pond with shrubs and bushes. This nutty kid has been coming to my bedroom window at night, sometimes rather late, and making like he is trying to get in.

I've told him to cut the comedy before my parents catch him, but he thinks it is very funny. Last night I locked my window, pulled down the shade and drew the draperies. He kept hanging around, tapping on the window for almost half an hour.

Please tell me what to do to make him stop the foolishness. If he is caught I know my folks will give me orders never to see him again. Shaky Shelly.

Dear Shell: Doesn't that clown realize he could be arrested as a Peeping Tom or even mistaken for a prowler and shot? For heaven's sake, tell him to cancel the alley cat act before he finds himself laughing all the way to the district attorney's office.

CALGARY (CP) — While most sexual problems used to come from guilt, today they come from the fear of being inadequate, says Dr. Sol Gordon, professor of child and family studies at Syracuse University.

In a wide-ranging talk on sex at University of Calgary, he said men as well as women have faked orgasms for centuries.

"People who boast are usually liars."

"Everyone's in search of the ultimate orgasm. Then they're in search of the ultimate multiple one. Now they're in search of the ultimate, multiple, simultaneous one. It's all a myth that somebody made up."

Can sex be just for fun? the audience asked.

"Sex is caring for another, it's intimacy, it's love," he said. Sex that isn't tied in with love usually becomes exploitive of the other person — or just another way of trying to prove oneself.

"I do believe that young people should not have intercourse. An early experience tends to be dreadful."

Dr. Gordon praised the women's liberation movement for speaking out against sexual exploitation.

He advocates a commonsense, loving approach to sex.

"Much of the work in the gield of human sexuality is based on a series of false assumptions carefully documented by research."

He advised parents to be askable" — answer children's questions as honestly as possible. Don't get upset about obscenty, or a child's exploration of his or her own body.

Several other talks on sex are scheduled at the university this week.

Simple Sensations

From Algo comes the super-feminine evening dress. The soft, flowing skirt of silky interlock polyester falls smoothly from a bodice gathered to the décolletage in a manner reminiscent of the Harlow era. Delicate maribou forms a halter front and fabulously finishes the lowered back with its feathery trim. In white, powder blue or slinky black. Sizes 7 to 15. With a price that's sensational too: just $45.00.

Lori Ann makes a lady very luscious in this classic halter gown of figure-flattering interlock polyester. Three dainty little fabric-covered buttons at the décolletage provide a subtle accent. Matching long-sleeved cover-up jacket is beautifully gathered to the waistband. And the final magnificent touch — a softly draping hood, trimmed with face-framing, oh-so-feminine dyed to match maribou. In blue, white, mint green. Sizes 8 to 16. Even the price is beautiful: $55.00.

THE SLIM GOURMET

CALORIE-CONSCIOUS COOKING

By Barbara Gibbons

Chicken a la King . . . a North American classic! It can be horrendously fattening, or cleverly calorie-wise, and delicious either way. As a weight-wary cook, naturally you'll opt for the leaner, less calorie-costly version.

Our fat-trimmed recipe is only 230 calories a serving, less than half the calories of conventionally prepared recipes. But it tastes so rich and creamy, nobody will suspect you've been tinkering with the calorie count.

In addition to being low-calorie and nutrition-rich, this recipe is so low in saturated fat that it's a must-have for all heart-smart recipe clippers:

SLIM CHICKEN A LA KING

2-pound fryer
Salt and pepper
3 cups water
¼ cup sherry wine
1 onion, quartered
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon MSG (monosodium glutamate)
13-ounce can evaporated skim milk
3 tablespoons arrowroot or cornstarch
½ green bell pepper, chopped
½ red bell pepper, chopped salt or butter-flavored salt pepper
optional: tumeric or yellow food coloring

The 2-pound chicken can be whole or cut up. Wash and rinse, season with salt and pepper. Combine water, wine, onion, nutmet and MSG in heavy covered pot or Dutch oven and place chicken into it. Simmer atop the range or bake in a 350-degree oven until tender, about 50-60 minutes. Pour the broth through a strainer and chill in the refrigerator or freeze so that the fat rises to the surface and hardens. When the chicken is cool enough to handle, cut the meat into bite-size chunks. Discard bones and skin.

Skim fat from broth's surface. Combine broth and chopped pepper in a saucepan and cook uncovered until the broth is reduced by half and the pepper is tender.

Stir the evaporated milk and flour together in a bowl until smooth, then add to the simmering broth. Cook and stir over moderate heat until sauce simmers and thickens. Stir in chicken. Continue cooking until heated through. Add additional salt and pepper if needed. Turmeric or a few drops of yellow food coloring will give the sauce a rich golden color (which will be lacking because you have skimmed off the chicken fat.) Serve on triangles of toasted protein bread if desired. Serves six, 230 calories each.

QUICKIE CHICKEN A LA KING

13-ounce can evaporated skim milk
3 tablespoons flour
2 chicken bouillon cubs
¾ pound cooked cubed chicken meat (2 cups)
¼ cup frozen chopped red or green pepper salt, pepper, nutmeg, onion powder

Combine milk, flour and bouillon cubes in a saucepan. Cook and stir until simmering. Stir in chicken, frozen pepper and cook till heated through. Season to taste. Thin the sauce with a little boiling water, if needed. Serves four, 241 calories each.

erma bombeck

My fifteen-year-old son said to me the other day, "Mom, I think I'm in trouble. Mitzi is referring my case to Mr. Weems."

"Who is Mitzi?"

"She's the girl at the record club who has been writing me letters saying I can't get out of the club because I still have to buy two more selections."

"Then who is Mr. Weems?"

"He's Mitzi's boss."

"Let me see the letter," I said.

Mitzi was a sweetheart. I could tell by the way she used phrases like, "You are forcing me to do something I really don't want to do, Mr. Bombeck, but you have left me no choice than to speak to Mr. Weems."

I had visions of Mitzi stamping out her cigarettes in her cottage cheese and letting her coffee get cold as she anguished over my son's case. I called her the next morning at the record club office.

"Hello, Mitzi Green please."

"Who?"

"Mitzi Green. She's the girl who has been corresponding with my son about his account."

"Oh, Mitzi isn't a person. She's a computer."

"So, put her on."

"You don't understand. Mitzi can't talk."

"Nonsense, she has just written us that she will be talking soon with Mr. Weems about the possibility of bringing legal action against my son."

"But Mr. Weems is a computer too."

"Can he listen?"

"Yes, but you have to understand computers. You can speak to them, but they will not answer you back. You can feed information into them, but it doesn't necessarily mean it will come out 100 per cent perfect. They're an important part of the family here at Freako Records, but they are without emotion and without income."

"You have described my son perfectly," I said. "He's an X-70 model we purchased 15 years ago. Unknown to us, he punched out a membership in your club. According to his print-out, he has already fulfilled his obligation. However, if these two machines want to battle it out, it's all right with me."

"You mean our computer has been corresponding with another computer?" she asked.

It was just a gut feeling, but I had the distinct sensation they were going to kick a few buttons in the Freako Record company.

REOX - For The Treatment of Respiratory Distress

Physicians and hospital authorities have been made aware of the unique advantages of the Reox oxygen separator in the treatment of respiratory ailments.

The Reox 2500 System — What It Is And How It Operates.

The Reox oxygen separator extracts nitrogen, carbon dioxide and water vapour from the air, while permitting the passage of almost pure oxygen. By this means a constant supply of oxygen-enriched air is maintained for an indefinite period. The air reaching the patient through a nasal canula is approximately 90% oxygen, with 4.5% argon and the remainder nitrogen. The system, housed in an attractive-looking cabinet, operates on standard 110V power - or can be adapted to suit other power requirements.

For The Treatment Of Emphysema, Chronic Bronchitis, Asthma, Bronchiectasis, Cystic Fibrosis

Previously sufferers from severe and chronic respiratory ailments had to be hospitalized for long periods of time. With the introduction of the Reox 2500 unit, the patient can live a more normal life at home. The apparatus is so simple anybody can use it.

Gouging claimed by Diefenbaker

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker Tuesday accused large supermarket chains of gouging the consumer and the farmer on beef prices in the interests of their own profits.

"While farmers are getting half of what they were receiving a few months ago, there has been no cut in consumer prices by the large chains," Diefenbaker said in a telephone interview.

The supermarket chains are charging 21 per cent higher for steak in Ottawa than in Toronto, he said.

"It is obvious someone is taking a great amount of lard out of beef profits."

"While the farmer is receiving less than the cost of producing his beef, no serious effort is being made by government to bring relief to the situation," he said.

Sympathizing with the plight facing beef producers, Diefenbaker said he does not condone the "senseless" protest slaughter of cattle by Quebec producers last week.

"When thousands face starvation daily in India, Bangladesh, and Africa, this kind of thing cannot be justified," Diefenbaker said.

He said one suggestion being considered at the world food conference in Rome this week is the establishment of a world food bank — an idea he originated in 1957.

"There is nothing more powerful than an idea that has come of age," he said, noting his earlier proposal fell through when the United States failed to participate.

He said he first suggested a world food bank during the 1957 North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference in Paris.

EXAMPLE of numerous rock paintings found throughout Rhodesia. Among animals depicted in this scene are elephant, rhinoceros, wildebeest and zebra. Paintings were executed by people who inhabited area before the coming of Bantu and Europeans.

Primitive art discovered

SALISBURY (CP) — Undiscovered art treasures await the intrepid visitor to Rhodesia.

They are the rock paintings of people who inhabited Rhodesia before the coming of the Bantu and the Europeans.

Already about 1,000 paintings have been recorded and experts say this is just a portion of the number that must exist. All are protected by law as part of the country's heritage.

Quite regularly hikers, campers, hunters and fishermen find new examples of the art work, some of it as old as 2,000 to 3,000 years.

The paintings are usually found under overhanging rocks or in caves chosen by the artists as protection against the weather. Most are painted on granite or quartzite.

Subjects depicted by the artists cover all aspects of their life. Most predominant are hunting and animal scenes.

The animals are lifelike and drawn with confidence. Some of the animals depicted have not lived in the area in living memory, enabling naturalists to establish the distribution of the country's wildlife in an era now almost forgotten.

Tribal life is often depicted ranging from dancing and domestic activities to the return from a successful hunt.

Rainmaking and burial ceremonies are also shown. Indications of the supernatural are usually shown by the merger of human and animal. This often results in strange creations such as crocodile men and bat men.

There are three stages in the rock paintings. Experts see a development from early beginnings to a classic period and then a degeneration.

The earliest paintings are 2,000 to 3,000 years old, reaching a peak in Matabeleland in the mid-16th to 17th centuries and in Mashonalaland in the mid-17th century.

After that the art quality drops off until it disappears with the Zulu invasions in the 19th century. The Africans now living in Rhodesia have no connection with the artists.

Paintings scattered over a wide area have been executed by the same artists. It is thought that they made their living travelling the country to carry out "commissions." Fine examples of the rock paintings can be found close to Salisbury. At Bushman's Point on Lake McIlwaine there are fine paintings of animals and fish.

At Domboshawa, a short drive out of the city, paintings depict rainmaking ceremonies.

At one site in Mashonaland is a painting of a female figure in a manner common to primitive cultures throughout the world.

The woman is fat and probably pregnant and has streams or hands coming from the lower part of the body. This has strong resemblance to the ideas of the earth mother or goddess of fertility found in early Mediterranean societies.

One of the paintings that has puzzled archeologists is found in a cave in the southwest. It stretches for half the length of the cave and is a fabulous monster of primitive imagination, a snake with awesome teeth, ears and a curly tail. From its nostrils appears a faint suggestion of smoke.

Unlike many rock paintings it is extremely colorful. The head and tail are in red, the body a faded white and the underside yellow, outlined in purple.

Strangest of the monster's features are 24 undulations along its back. On these are depicted 14 human figures, seven baboons, three buck and a baboon with the head of a buck.

Rhodesia's rock paintings are usually attributed to a race of bushmen who did not survive the vast migrations of tribes in Central and Southern Africa from the 17th century to the coming of the European.

Some will tell you this card costs you $2.50 a month.

Surprise!

Sure you pay for a Commerce Key Account. But with what you pay now for personal cheques alone, it's not going to be any $2.50 extra.

Think of it. If you write just ten personal cheques a month, at 14¢ a cheque you can spend $1.40 right there. So the most you'd possibly pay more for a Key Account would be $1.10.

And that soon pays for itself in benefits.

Take Bankplan Loans. With a Key Account, the Commerce gives you preferred rates on most consumer loans.

Travellers' Cheques. With a Commerce Key Account, you'll never pay a service charge to get them.

You'll never be charged for O'Canada or our new Key Account personalized cheques, using our 24-Hour Cash Dispensers, paying utility bills, purchasing money orders or domestic drafts.

A Key Account gets you a Commerce Chargex Card and overdraft protection. Plus an identification card that lets you cash your personal cheque, instantly, at any of more than 1600 Commerce branches in Canada.

Surprised?

Many are. But then, in the course of an average month, it's even more surprising how many times the need for a Key Account pops up.

Watergate cover-up

Three accused seek new trials

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three of the Watergate cover-up defendants asked Wednesday for new trials, claiming their cases have been irreparably damaged by prosecution trickery.

U.S. district judge John Sirica took no immediate action, but was expected to hear oral arguments on the demand within a few days, with the jury absent.

Motions for a mistrial were filed by John Mitchell and John Ehrlichman. Defendant Kenneth Parkinson — who already has a mistrial motion pending — asked to be tried separately.

The three claim the Watergate prosecutors deliberately caught them by surprise with crucial and damaging evidence making it impossible to redeem themselves in the jury's eyes.

"We urge the court to rescue Mr. Parkinson from a sea of prejudice which cannot be overcome short of a severance," Parkinson's lawyers said in their brief. "Mr. Parkinson is entitled to a trial under circumstances where his counsel can defend him forewarned of the existence of (evidence) which the government has termed 'a bombshell.'"

That "bombshell" is a memorandum written two years ago by bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt that links the administration to pledges of hush money and pardons for the Watergate burglars.

No graves found

SEATTLE (UPI) — After searches in five counties, the possibility that 18 circles on Washington state maps would lead to the location of grave sites seemed remote.

The marked areas were among 181 such areas found on maps provided by Harvey Carignan.

Carignan, investigated but not charged in connection with the slaying last year of Katherine Sue Miller, 15, of Seattle, is now in Minneapolis awaiting trial on several counts of sexual assault.

M.V. Chesnut's Garden notes

I have been devoting quite a bit of column space recently to discussing tulip and hyacinth bulbs suitable for potting up to grow indoors through the winter months.

As in all forms of gardening, there are a few tricks of the trade helpful in the indoor culture of bulbs.

One problem that always crops up is what kind of container to use.

Standard old-fashioned clay pots are quite satisfactory as far as healthy growth is concerned, but they DO have one serious disadvantage in that, with most of the common sizes, only one bulb can be planted in each pot, which makes for a rather inadequate display.

If you are buying new pots, then, try to get the squatty ones known as bulb pans, wider than they are tall and big enough to take several bulbs.

Earthenware pots are not much used nowadays — they are difficult to keep clean, for one thing — and the trend is toward lightweight rigid plastic materials that come in almost perfect proportions to take three hyacinth or four tulip bulbs.

While clay or plastic pots with drainage holes in the bottom provide the most healthful growing conditions, they are not particularly ornamental; in fact, the clay pots are positively ugly.

Fortunately, bulbs can be grown quite satisfactorily in pretty ornamental china bowls.

My wife has two especially prized bowls, a Coalport and a Moorcroft, which I have used — under protest — without harm to either bulbs or bowls.

On one occasion, when I had more bulbs than containers, I pressed into service an ancient Pyrex casserole to hold three hyacinth bulbs.

In selecting ornamental china bowls for bulb culture, they should be big enough to take from three to five bulbs.

They should be fairly deep, certainly not less than 3½ inches, and ideally they should have vertical or steeply sloping sides.

Shallow-sloping sides, as in so many of the Chinese bowls, don't give enough depth under the outer circle of bulbs for adequate rooting.

Such containers differ in one important aspect from flower pots: they have no drainage holes. Because of this, the culture is a little different.

Watering must be done with considrably more care and restraint, as there is nowhere for excess water to go.

And while sandy loam or purchased potting soil works fine in regular flower pots, soil of any kind tends to go bad — sour and stagnant — in an undrained bowl when overwatered.

For this reason, when planting bulbs in china bowls, I think it is best to use a substitute for soil — peat moss, vermiculite, perlite or any of the soil-less mixtures such as Redi-Earth or Jiffy-Mix.

Certain kinds of bulbs can be grown in pebbles and water, but this will be the subject of another column.

With flower pots, first cover the drainage hole and the bottom of the pot with a half-inch layer of wet peat moss, then start by putting in two or three inches of your potting soil or mix.

Make this firm with your fingers, then sit one of your bulbs on it to check for depth; the depth of soil under the bulb should be such that the nose of the bulb is just peeping over the rim of the pot.

With the depth adjusted, place your bulbs in position, packing them in as closely as you please but not quite touching one another.

Spoon more soil around and between the bulbs, firming it with the fingers, finishing off half an inch below the rim of the pot to allow for watering. The bulb's noses should be sticking up through the soil surface.

Water the pots, then store them away in a cold, dark place.

Success with bulbs — tulips, hyacinths, daffs, crocuses — depends more than anything else on very cool, dark storage for two to three months while the bulbs are getting themselves rooted.

A root cellar is ideal. A cold corner of the basement is good, or a fruit cupboard where the temperature remains consistently well below 50 degrees.

The soil or planting mix should be kept moist but never really wet. Give water only when the surface feels definitely dry to the touch, and avoid sogginess in the bottom of the pot or bowl.

Never allow water to stand in the saucers under the pots.

Introducing the rooted and sprouted bulbs into warmth and sunlight is a bit tricky, and I will be writing about this at the appropriate time.

Arthur Hoppe

What finally rekindled the dying interest in prizefights, experts agreed, was the prizefight in Kinshasha, Zaire, Africa.

Mohammed Ali, you will recall, rendered George Foreman unconscious at approximately 4:30 a.m. by the Kinshasha clocks for the benefit of hundreds of thousands of North Americans who paid up to $35 a seat to watch the proceedings in closed-circuit television theatres during prime time.

Ali's brilliant strategy, the sports writers concurred, was to lean against the ropes and let Foreman beat on him like a gong for eight rounds. When Foreman finally got tired of all this, Ali knocked him out.

Ali and Foreman each collected $5 million for staying up so late. The promoters realized they had a good thing going, all right. So the rematch was scheduled to take place in Kashintill, Outer Mongolia, Asia.

Newsmen who at last reached the scene by yakback reported that it was just as wonderful a fight as the first one.

The bout had to be postponed 60 days to allow Foreman to recover from a painful lama bite and increase closed-circuit television ticket sales. But once again in the eighth round, Foreman wearied of punching Ali, accepted his cheque for $10 million and got knocked out.

The mayor of Kashintill, whose name, freely translated from the Mongolian means "Xptl," said, "This historic event has really put Outer Mongolia on the map." But Foreman said he was sick and tired of hitting Ali and was retiring from the ring for ever.

A new challenger was found in the great Kurdish left-handed pacifist, Mohammed Ahmed. The time was set for 7:30 a.m. January 1, in Maybabuk, Von Baffleland, Antarctica.

"I will float like a butterfly and sting like a bee," Ali told his tens of Eskimo admireres on his arrival.

"Like a what?" they said.

"For I am the greatest," said Ali modestly, as he performed his famous Ali shuffle, "on showshoes."

Newsmen, who finally arrived by dog sled, asked the great Kurdish champion how he could possibly win. "Where there is a Kurd," replied Ahmed with a mysterious smile, "there's a way."

Because of brisk ticket sales in North America the fight had to be postponed only 30 days when Ali was kicked in the shin by a penguin.

From the opening bell, Ahmed's strategy was apparent. He danced about in the middle of the ring, beating his arms on his chest to keep warm, while Ali leans against the ropes in his now-famous Ail defence.

By the eighth round Alis was discovered to be frozen solid and his handlers had to throw in a hot towel.

Newsmen reported it was a wonderful fight. The Eskimo mayor said this historic event had really put wherever they were in the map.

Interest in prizefighting, however, unfortunately waned. But National Geographic subscriptions doubled.

Sydney Harris

A reader reminds me of a column I wrote many years ago, in which I pointed out that certain sounds seem to go with certain kinds of words, and asks if I can send him a copy of it.

It hasn't turned up in the files, but I dimly remember illustrating, for instance, the prevalence of "sexual" words beginning in English with an "l" — lewd, lecherous, lascivious, licentious, lustful, lubricious and others.

And the "j" sound seems curiously associated with joking and jesting and jeering and jibing and joshing and japing and jocularity and jollying and joviality and joy and jubilation — all gathered from many different languages and sources and roots, yet with a common core of meaning.

Recently I ran across a footnote by the sociological savant, Daniel Bell, remarking on the linguistic oddness of small groups of individuals beginning with the letter "c".

He started thinking about "circle" and "club" and then came up with a list that includes clique, crowd, curia, clan, cabal, cadre, camarilla, claque, council, church, cortes, cell, caucus cenacle, condominium, committee, conspiracy, college, coterie, cult and so on.

All this seems to be more than accident or coincidence (and may in fact be, as Bell suggests, an unrecognized example of the "Yule distribution" statistically in linguistics).

Words are not chosen wholly at random; those persist that seem to satisfy some sound with which they correspond; and certain terms tend to cluster around specific sounds.

The "sl" sound at the beginning of an English word somehow must seem unattractive to us — else how account for so many pejorative words like slimy and slummy and slurping and slush and slut and slattern and sly and sludge.

The "q" sound appears to have a tentative, almost apprehensive, feel about it for us — consider quiver and quaver, quail and quake, qualm and queasy, query and quiz, quibble and question, quirk and querulous. Almost all descriptive words beginning with "q" in English have this quintessential quality.

Some serious psycho-linguistic research in this neglected area may help explain why we are influenced by names more than we realize — why a Hitler is more listened to than a Schicklgruber, or a Stalin than a Dzhugashvili, both the childhood surnames they abandoned.

And when Dickens coined those wonderfully allusive names to describe his characters, he knew that "Scrooge" and "Gradgrind" and "Pickwick" suggested as much to the English ear as to the eye and the mind.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Elizabeth Taylor wears a double band ring on her third finger, left hand. Henri Wynberg wears a single band ring of the same design on the same finger.

But their closest friends still insist that they are not married. Just queer for matching rings.

Meanwhile, they no longer stay with friends. They have a home of their own in an exclusive West Los Angeles neighborhood.

Whatever happened to Randolph Scott?

He sat behind me at the World Series and looked fabulous.

Randy is the only actor-member of the Los Angeles Country Club which bars actors from its membership. Club officials once explained that the board of governors reviewed Randy's movies and decided that the ban didn't apply to him.

That was very unkind on the club's part because, with the exception of Gary Cooper, Randy was the screen's most heroic U.S. marshal.

Even Bob Hope is barred from L.A. Country Club and he plays golf with presidents and crowned heads all over the world.

It used to burn up Bing Crosby because he had a home on a fairway of the club and was barred from membership. That's one of the reasons he moved up north to Hillsborough.

Bing is a member of Cypress Point, the Merion Cricket Club and a few other clubs that make the L.A. Country Club look like a poor upstart.

Frank Sinatra's live concert from Madison Square Garden was one of the most exciting specials yet seen on TV and mostly because it was live.

Jerry Weintraub, who stages all of Sinatra's concerts, said he made sure that all tickets to the concert were sold to the public.

"We sold tickets over the counter because we wanted people to get involved. There is a need for people to get involved. I felt it. And Frank felt it.

"There was nothing mechanical about this show. People knew they weren't watching a little box with a show that had been edited and prepared.

"It took a lot of guts on Frank's part but he did it his way. The TV audience, for once, sensed the great excitement in that arena."

The show had a huge box office gross. Sinatra can do no wrong in New York and northern New Jersey.

Edy Williams' life in Rome is bringing back La Dolce Vita.

She sent me a packet of clippings from Rome magazines and newspapers with front page photo layouts of her actually being stripped bare by fans on the street.

The fans were all men of course. Roman men are notorious for fanny pinching but this is the first time I ever recall them stripping an actress bare on the street.

Edy, of course, didn't have much on to start with.

Her publicity, which is the most flamboyant since Anita Ekberg, is paying off.

She has just been signed for her first Italian film in which she will co-star with Simonet Stefanelli. It's called Sin in the Family.

"I do all the sinning," writes Edy.

Old friend Louis L'Amour, the noted author-historian of the Old West, has a rancher friend, Lou Beardsley, in Durango, Colo., who has two burros named Edgar and Rice.

This will answer those requests from people whow ant me to write more about Tarzan.

Star Mary turns director

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not one of our great shows, but the comforting thing is that even our worst shows are better than most of the other series that are on television."

Mary Tyler Moore was letting it all hang out. The show she referred to was A Boy's Best Friend, and it marked her debut as a director. She was frank about its quality, but she left no doubt about her pride in the series itself, the Mary Tyler Moore Show.

The CBS Saturday night romp remains a television phenomenon. Not only does the show itself maintain a consistently high quality of comedy, but her MTM Enterprises has also spawned winners in The Bob Newhart Show, Rhoda and Friends and Lovers.

Since she and her husband, Grant Tinker, head the enterprises, there is no need to ask how she got the job as director. But why?

"Last season we had a couple of directors on the show that were — well, less than exciting," she said.

"I thought about how hard all of us in the cast had to work in directing ourselves, without hurting the directors' feelings.

"Then a few weeks ago I was in Grant's office and we were talking with Arthur Proce (MGM executive) about a show that was coming up.

"You know," I said, "I think I'd like to direct.'

"They spun around and said, 'Good for you!' 'Terrific!' And so I was committed."

The story concerns Ted Baxter, the pouter-pigeon TV announcer, and his discovery of his mother's plan to be married.

"Ted completely falls apart," the star-director related. "He is a hypochondriac anyway, and now all of his Oedipal instincts well up and make him a complete wreck.

"Then he gets a call from his mother — we never see her in the show — saying that she isn't going to get married after all; she's just going to live with the man. That destroys Ted altogether."

The show is resolved when Ted has a man-to-man talk with his mother's suitor, who turns out to be a mild little 80-year-old who is only seeking her happiness.

The segment will appear Nov. 23.

Saudis hint lower oil price

AMMAN (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger flew to Jordan Wednesday night with new support from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Saudi Arabian King Faisal for his Middle East peace efforts and a Saudi promise to try and lower oil prices.

Kissinger said he had "good and useful" talks with Faisal and a vote of "fullest confidence" from Sadat in Cairo.

"I explained to his majesty and our friends in Saudia Arabia our policy which can be summarized as: If the parties concerned are agreed that we should continue our (peace) efforts, then we promise to continue those efforts untiringly for as long as we can," Kissinger said.

"I have found support from King Faisal for this objective — an attempt to reach a just solution of the Middle East crisis," he said.

"With the encouragement of King Faisal, the United States will continue its efforts to shrink the gap between the two parties so that we may make progress towards a just and permanent peace in the region."

He said he had managed to explain the effects of increased oil prices on the economic and political lives of consumer nations and "we hope Saudi Arabia will maintain its efforts at reducing oil prices."

Omar Saggaf, Saudi Arabian minister of state for foreign affairs, pledged his country would continue its policy "which is aimed at securing a reduction in the price of oil.

"We hope to achieve this through our sense of responsibility to the international community," Saqqaf said.

Saqqaf made a strong plea for Kissinger to continue his peace initiative.

"We do not wish to dispense with, under any circumstances, Dr. Kissinger's efforts and with the efforts of a friendly and major nation such as the United States.

A-G quotes report author:

He saw 30% rent sky

Tenants objecting to the latest 10.6 per cent rent hikes scheduled for January could have been hit instead with a 30 per cent boost, the B.C. Legislature was told Wednesday.

In response to requests from MLAs Tuesday, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald tabled the controversial Dr. J. G. Cragg report on rental accommodation.

In the report, Cragg stated that large cost increases have occurred in the last two years in rental housing and "various changes in circumstances in this period have produced an estimated increase of 40.4 per cent in the economic cost of providing rental accommodation."

Cragg added that the increase was double the rate of inflation over the same period.

As a result, and deducting the 8 per cent hike approved earlier in 1974, Cragg estimated "the increase in rents needed to compensate fully for the cost changes is 30 per cent."

But Cragg admitted that such a large increase "without specific justification might well appear unreasonable, indeed outrageous."

As a result, he finally recommended a rate increase of between 19 and 23 per cent and suggested that 21 per cent might be the starting figure.

"It is not suggested that the allowable rent increase be 30 per cent," the report states. "Instead it is suggested that the effects of dramatic changes should be spread over time. Doing so on a moderate basis would still give an allowable rent increase of 21.2. A more extreme form of distribution over time would produce a figure of 16 per cent."

Macdonald challenged Cragg's figures because, he said, the report used the broad picture of inflation over the past few years and applied it not only to new building but to buildings erected when land and construction costs were lower.

"Don't misunderstand me," Macdonald said, during an interview following tabling of his report. "This is a good report. It contains a lot of gold and some dross. But I think that had we followed the advice we would have provided windfall gains for the owners of older apartments and I wasn't going to allow that."

Macdonald also pointed out that Cragg, a UBC professor of economics, stated that 11 per cent is the average inflation rate.

Cragg does mention 11 per cent in his report. He stated: "A rent increase of 11 per cent would simply restore the price of rental housing relative to other items purchased by consumers. That is in terms of goods and services purchased, rental housing would not be getting more expensive.

"An 11 per cent increase would also tend to keep the proportion of income going to rents the same. An increase of less than 11 per cent would signal that rental accommodation is becoming relatively less expensive."

Cragg conceded that a precise figure for a rental increase is difficult to come up with, but said 13.7 per cent would tend to keep "the real return to capital constant though this rate would not maintain the real rate of return."

While Cragg was not available to answer questions, financial experts said they presumed he meant that 13.7 per cent would give rental accommodation investors their money back.

Macdonald introduced amendments to the Landlords and Tenants Act Monday setting the permitted increase at 10.6 per cent for existing accommodation and waiving the rental ceiling for five years on new accommodation.

Strachan 'owes apology'

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River) asked Wednesday for an apology from Transport Minister Robert Strachan for his comments that opposition members' statements on the Insurance Corp. of B.C. are "erroneous, misleading or completely false."

Strachan made the comment Tuesday outside the House following Phillips' charges that ICBC's start-up costs would be about $59 million — $40 million more than estimated.

Phillips rose on a question of privilege Wednesday to say that Strachan's comments amounted to a character assassination of the Social Credit member and he asked the minister to apologize if he couldn't prove that his figures were wrong.

Later in the sitting, Speaker Gordon Dowding ruled that the matter was not a question of privilege and could not be pursuied any furhter because, in making his statement about opposition comments on ICBC, the minister did not use the word "deliberately."

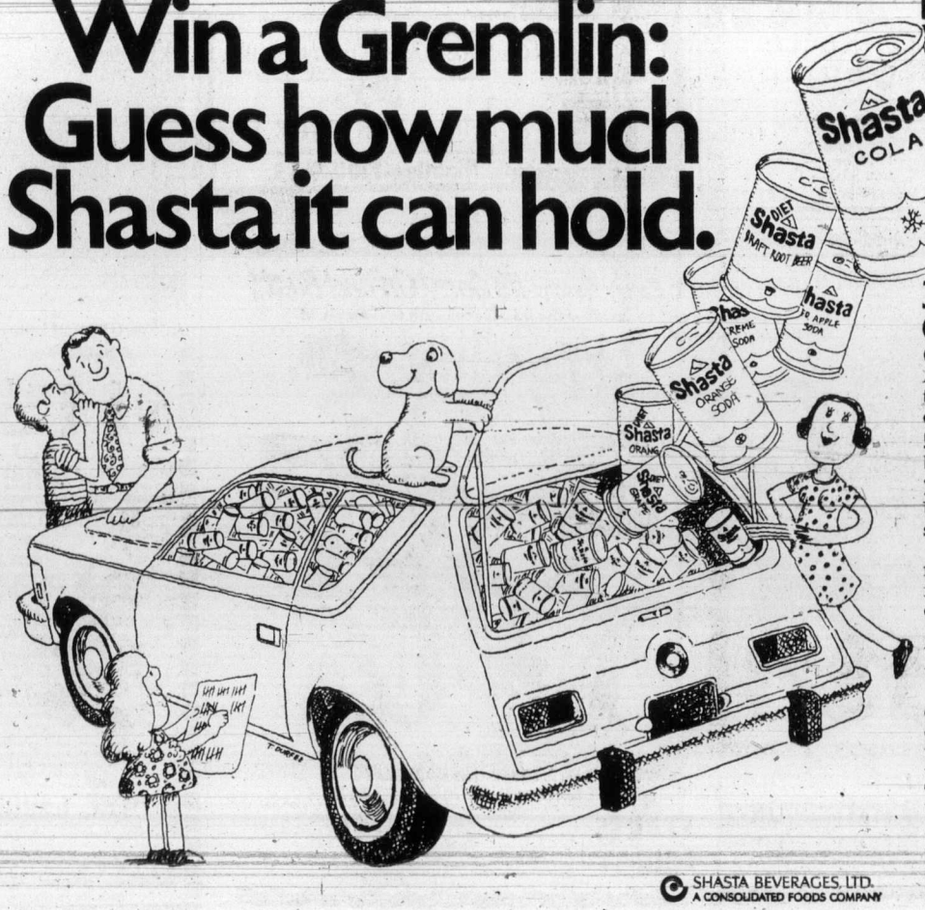
Win a Gremlin: Guess how much Shasta it can hold.



CONTEST ENTRY BLANK:
I think it takes _____ 10-ounce cans of Shasta to fill a Gremlin.
(Note: the number must appear on the outside lower left-hand corner of the mailing envelope)
Name_____
Address_____
City_____
Province_____
MAIL TO: Shasta, P.O. Box 69220, Vancouver, V5K4W5, B.C.

31 Prizes in all.
Grand Prize: a 1975 AMC Gremlin with all standard equipment, plus AM radio and automatic transmission, plus the number of Shasta cans noted on your entry, in the flavors of your choice.
5 Second Prizes: a Columbia 10-speed bicycle. (Lexington model, with a 23" frame.)
25 Third Prizes: a Tyco Pro "Over & Under" Figure 8 electric model car race system.
There's nothing to buy. Just tell us the number of Shasta 10-ounce cans it takes to fill a 1975 AMC Gremlin, excluding the engine compartment.
Prizes will be awarded on the basis of those coming closest to the right number, without exceeding it.
In the event of more than one person estimating the correct number, the entries of all those who have made correct estimations will be placed in a drum and winners will be selected by the judges by draw. Those entries remaining in the drum will be entitled to second prizes if the number of entries is less than the number of second prizes. If the number of entries in the drum exceeds the number of second prizes, the judges shall select, by draw from the entries, the names of those winning second prizes. The remaining entries shall be entitled to third prizes unless the number remaining exceeds the total number of third prizes; whereupon the judges shall, by draw, select the third prize winners.
In the event that all prizes are not won by those estimating the correct number in the manner set out above, or in the event that no one estimates the correct number of cans, all those who select the same number closest in order to the correct number, but not exceeding the correct number, shall be deemed to have tied and winners will be respectively chosen by draw by the judges in the manner as outlined above.
Enter as often as you like, but only one entry per envelope will be accepted. Your estimate of the number of cans must also be written on the outside lower left-hand corner of the mailing envelope.
Entries must be mailed separately, postmarked by Dec. 31, 1974, and received by Jan. 31, 1975. Contest is void where prohibited by law.
Complete contest rules are available at supermarkets where you find Shasta. Official contest rules can also be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Shasta Beverages, 1360 Vulcan Way, Richmond, British Columbia.

Riding show draws 45

The Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Association is co-ordinating the collection of information on all horse groups. Any details available should be sent as soon as possible to Horse Happenings, VIQHA, Box 162, Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Carley, of Victoria Riding Academy, hosted a fall horse show on Sunday, which attracted 45 entries.

The show was judged by Mrs. Daphne Brown of Cloverdale.

Some of the riders collected several ribbons throughout the day. One big winner was Karen Olson, riding Radio Hill, a horse owned by Mrs. Carley. She took home six firsts and a second.

She won first place ribbons in equitation 14 and under, Thoroughbred under saddle, show hack under 15' 2", hunter hack, green working hunter, and working hunter, and a second place ribbon in conformation hunter.

Lisa Curran, riding her horse Nitro's Rex, collected two firsts and a second. She picked up her firsts in green jumper and working hunter under saddle, and her second in road hack.

Julie Anderson rode a horse owned by Carley, Aesop's Fable, to first place in junior jumping and to second place in both working hunter and hunter hack.

Riding Gil-nih-kwa, owned by Jackie Patmore, Cindy Powell won first in show hack over 15' 2" and second in equitation 15 to 18 years.

Karen Olson, riding her horse Deseret, came first in open jumping and second in junior jumping.

Caraway, owned by Robert Todd and ridden by Julie Anderson, came first in equitation 15 to 18 years. In road hack, Wendy Ells rode Joey, a horse owned by Carley, to first place. Marjorie Shanks, riding Pal Joey, a horse owned by herself and her husband Bob, won first in conformation hunter. In western pleasure, Ashley's Polka Dot, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Allen and ridden by Debbie Bissenden, took first place.

Chris Williams, riding her horse Ivory Fashion, picked up two seconds, in green jumper and green working hunter.

Lorraine Brooks rode her horse Midnight Spree to second place in equitation 14 and under. Janice Swayze, who was riding Carley's horse, Little Wonder, took second in working hunter under saddle.

Solo Flight, owned and ridden by Terry Hanna, collected second place in Thoroughbred under saddle.

In show hack over 15' 2", Beth Howard, on Five Dimes, placed second; and in show hack under 15' 2", Jennifer Henderson rode Nize Fella, owned by H. Stanley, to second place. Mark Plank rode Gentle Honey, owned by Bob Plank, to second place in western pleasure. Stocking Foot, owned and ridden by Susan Pipes, placed second in open jumping.

Police boost asked

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald admitted Wednesday that the Lower Mainland is under-policed and told the Legislature he is negotiating with Ottawa for more RCMP officers.

He made the statement in response to a question from Progressive Conservative Scott Wallace.

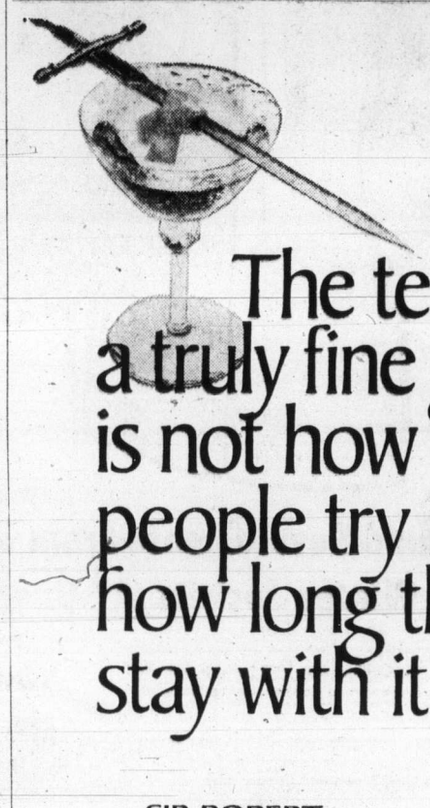
Wallace had asked if Macdonald was negotiating with Ottawa and if he had asked for 300 additional officers. He also wanted to know what such a boost in the force would cost.

Macdonald said he was negotiating actively with Ottawa particularly on costs. He added he was also seeking more men but that he couldn't "say specifically that we have asked for 300."

Cookies hijacked

YARDVILLE, N.J. (UPI) — A tractor trailer holding 15-tons of assorted Keebler cookies was hijacked Wednesday from a rest stop on the New Jersey turnpike.

Driver Frank Jones said he stopped at a service area restaurant and left his rig running. When he returned the rig and trailer were missing.



The test of a truly fine gin is not how many people try it, but how long they stay with it.

Canada seems sure of regular TV and radio coverage of the House of Commons early next year. The federal government said last week a resolution to that effect will go before MPs in December, with telecasts on a limited experimental basis at first.

All four parties support the idea for the obvious reason — they want free air time. These results also can be expected:

Early audiences will be large but viewing will soon taper off; all parties, fearful of voter backlash, will hesitate to interrupt popular evening shows; audiences will be large for telecasts of important debates — if the parties dare to show them; there'll be too much playing to the home folks, and hopefully voters will realize politicians are human.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's answer — Phoebe A. O. Mozee lived from 1859 to 1926, was portrayed by Barbara Stanwyck and Betty Hutton in two movies and will be famous forever under her two middle names, Annie Oakley. We give you all the news.

Today's question — This may be a bit ancient for even some of us in our 40s but the most famous newspaperman in Broadway and movie history was Hildy Johnson. That's Hildy, not Hilda, and all you have to do is identify the play-movie involved plus the actor who was Hildy. Answers Friday.

"SIT!"

Thursday highlights

7:00 p.m. — PBS repeats Devil by the Tail, a look at nuclear power in Washington state—9.

7:30 — Archbishop Fulton Sheen, who was a bishop when his early-TV ratings killed Milton Berle, returns with What Now, America?—9.

8:00 — The Way It Was and baseball's 1947 world series again—9.

8:30 — World Football, Chicago at Memphis—11.

9:00 — Soul returns with a Billy Preston hour—9.

11:30 — ABC takes 90 minutes to recall Harold Lloyd comedy—4.

CABLE 10 — 7 p.m., The Sky Tonight; 7:30, You and the Law; 8:00, Student Forum; 8:30 Project Travel; 9:00, Capital Planning.

Thursday movies

12:00 noon — The Tall Lie (fair 1952 anti-fraternity drama), Paul Henreid. Speaking of World Football teams like the Chicago Fire, I'd like to nominate more today; starting with the Spokane Word—13.

12:45 — Pork Chop Hill (above-par 1959 Korean war actioner), Gregory Peck, many familiar faces. In Korea, the Seoul Survivor—8.

1:00 p.m. — Honeymoon (1966 English romantic nothing), Anthony Steel. In England, the London Fog—11.

3:30 — Cleopatra (1963 Liz and Dick epic, part two). And in Egypt, what else but the Cairo Practor?—5.

8:00 — The Far Country (fair 1955 Alaskaction), James Stewart, Walter Brennan. In Alaska, the Fairbanks Junior—13.

9:00 — How Sweet It Is (1969 romanticomedy, new to me), Debbie Reynolds, James Garner, Terry-Thomas, Paul Lynde. The cast tells it all when it comes to quality —7.

9:30 — The Thomas Crown Affair (dullish 1968 post-robbery drama), Steve McQueen, Faye Dunaway. Only the opening robbery is exciting—12.

11:30 — Cobra (duller 1968 opium intrigue), Dana Andrews, Anita Ekberg. Any football team with Miss Ekberg would also have 10 tackles—12.

11:45 — Cry Rape (fairly good 1973 drama), Andrea Marcovicci. The Elizabeth Montgomery one was better—7.

12:00 — Victim (first-rate 1962 scandal drama), Dirk Bogarde, Sylvia Sims and, at his oilest, Dennis Price—2.

12:00 — Seventh Dawn (poor 1964 jungle actioner), William Holden, Capucine. When they were an item—6.

12:00 — Jessica (bearable 1962 modern Lysistrata), Angie Dickinson, Maurice Chevalier. A far cry from Police Woman—8.

2:20 a.m. — Lonelyhearts (pretty good 1958 soaper), Montgomery Clift, Myrna Loy, many more. Not for non-soap types—8.

2:35 — Monkey on My Back (so-so 1957 Barney Ross narcotics drama), Cameron Mitchell. And some final World Football teams, the Capetown Races, Duncan Hines, Halifax Ma'am, Charlotte Bronte and Bali Laugh. Enough—6.

Thursday radio

5:30 p.m. — NHL hockey, Vancouver at Kansas City — CJVI (900).

6:30 — Opera Time: Butterfly — CBU-FM (105.7).

8:00 — Encore repeats the Len Peterson drama Women in the Attic—CBU-FM.

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you information you give are the have to offer; the details and most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

CHEMAINUS — Brothers John and Jim Entzminger scored in the second period Wednesday night to give Esquimalt a 4-2 win over last-place Fuller Lake Flyers in South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League play at Fuller Lake Arena.

John's 11th goal of the season, at 11:46 of the second period, broke a 2-2 deadlock and younger brother Jim scored the insurance goal at 16:05.

John also picked up his 11th assist of the season to move two points ahead of Steve Leatham of Victoria Nixons in the scoring race.

Mark Bowles and Gordie Brooks gave Esquimalt a 2-0 lead in the opening period but Terry Puska and Don Stubbington tied the score in the first half of the second period.

Brock Davies made 26 stops in the nets for Esquimalt while Greg Harrow blocked 35 shots for Flyers, whose only victory this season came on a protest of an Oct. 16 game against Nixons. The Victoria club was using ineligible players in a 5-4 decision over the Flyers.

'Caps to play in tourney

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Whitecaps will play in one of the North American Soccer League's four regional indoor tournaments early next year, General Manager Denny Veitch said Wednesday.

Veitch said the Whitecaps will join San Jose Earthquakes, Los Angeles Aztecs and Denver Dynamos for the regional games, scheduled for San Francisco's Cow Palace Feb. 21-23

In addition to tournament play, Veitch said the Whitecaps will play an 11-game home schedule next season, with three pre-season exhibition matches and two international matches.

Couple celebrate anniversary

A Sidney couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Swan, of 2130 Weiler, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary today.

The Swans were married in Alberta, and have lived in Victoria since December, 1933.

Swan was owner of Cloverdale Jersey Dairy which he operated with his family from 1934 until his retirement a few years ago.

There are four children, Leonard of Cobble Hill, Wesley of Saanich, Donald of Williams Lake and Mary of Surrey. There are 14 grandchildren.

Open house will be held at the Swan home from 2 to 5 p.m. today.

The UIC maze: it's a job to get the benefits

Unemployment Insurance Canada

Working with you—between jobs

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

This is the parable of the two stationary engineers.

For years they had worked together in a mill in a small Vancouver Island town before the mill closed down, putting them both out of work.

Both applied for Unemployment Insurance benefits. Because the mill was the only place in town where they would be able to get a job, they were both waiting for the mill to re-open.

One filled in his form, in all honesty, stating that he was ready and available for work at any time. His claim was granted.

The second also filled in his form honestly, but, explaining his case more fully than the first, said he was waiting to be called back to the mill when it re-opened so he was really only available on a temporary basis.

His explanation disqualified him from receiving benefits.

Then there is the story of the cab driver who was laid off in Victoria.

He was granted benefits, and started looking for work, as all unemployed people must if they are to remain eligible for benefits.

There being no cab driving jobs in sight, he decided to move to new spheres and indulge in a life-long desire to write for a living.

There was no employment available in public relations so he set up his own company to work out of his home.

He hung out his shingle and was later cut off from benefits — and forced to repay money he had received from UIC after setting up the company.

He was classed as self-employed and therefore ineligible for benefits, although he had yet to make a penny out of his new business.

Such are the pitfalls for the unwary when they move unguided through the tangled bureaucracy called the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

It is a fallacy to imagine that the laid off worker has a right to unemployment insurance, commission officials say.

In order to qualify, the worker has a number of rights and obligations, with the emphasis on obligations — and the rights are a vague it - all - depends - upon-circumstances" collection.

In a general way the worker must be prepared to take any kind of job, at any time or place or wage, in order to be eligible for benefits — and must be actively seeking such work.

"In fact a worker could be cut off benefits for refusing to scab," says Al Carle, an official of The International Woodworkers of America.

And in a cautious sort of way UIC district manager Alison Fink confirmed the statement.

Argentina clamped by Isabel

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The Argentine government of President Isabel Peron clamped the country under a state of siege Wednesday to combat a mounting wave of political violence.

Interior Minister Alberto Rocamora announced the government decision after a meeting between Mrs. Peron and the three commanders-in-chief of the armed forces.

A state of siege — a lesser form of martial law — empowers security forces to search and detain without warrant and hold detainees without charges.

At least 130 persons have been killed since Mrs. Peron took over from her late husband Juan Peron last July.

A previous state of siege was lifted shortly after the Peronists returned to power in Argentina in May, 1973.

The violence, between rival factions within the Peronist movement and between Marxist guerrillas and security forces, burst into the open on the day Juan Peron returned from 17 years in exile.

Small-mill chip aid promised

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bill will be introduced during this session of the Legislature to protect small sawmill operators and their employees against price manipulations in the lumber chip industry, Premier Barrett said Wednesday.

Speaking before 700 delegates at the B.C. Federation of Labor convention here, Barrett said "lumber cartels are using chip prices as loss leaders."

The premier later refused to specify what action the bill will propose, only saying it would be introduced "very shortly."

"We intend to take action on behalf of the small indigenous operators and their employees to prevent the kind of huge cartel profits in this field that are currently being ripped off by the international oil cartel," Barrett told the delegates.

Anti-missile muzzle

Faster than a speeding bullet . . . he leaps for the highest frisbees . . . it's superdog . . . Lindsay Hunt, below Gito's back haunches, said his dog's wildness is because Gito is part coyote. Gito loves crowds that gather in Beacon Hill Park to watch him snap frisbees in mid-air and once sneaked out of house without his owner and returned with another frisbee for his collection. He jumps as high as six feet to catch anything. But Gito hasn't learned to throw yet.

Interim measure today

B.C. set to crack teacher impasse

B.C. teachers and school trustees could find themselves legislated to agreement today in their dispute on contract bargaining procedure.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said Wednesday she will introduce interim measures in the Legislature today "with reference to the present situation as it exists re teacher-trustee bargaining."

She declined to say what the legislation will be, but added "it is obvious that if I am introducing legislation it is certainly my intent to provide legislation which will prevent any further crisis from developing."

Trustees are insisting on province-wide bargaining or at least regional bargaining, while teachers want to continue the present system of local negotiations.

Mrs. Dailly said her main concern is to see that B.C. schoolchildren receive their education.

She stressed that the legislation "would be interim," applying only to the present situation.

The B.C. School Trustees Association, representing 68 of the province's school districts, reacted bitterly to the announcement of forthcoming legislation.

"There is no precedent for government intervention in a labor dispute before the bargaining processes have been completed," BCSTA president Eileen Madson said.

"When the school trustees met with the minister in 1973 and asked for changes in legislation, we were told that legislation could not be changed in the middle of bargaining."

Mrs. Madson added that, regardless of the nature of the legislation, the government should have waited for the report of its 17 conciliators "before deciding that intervention by the Legislature is necessary."

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn expressed fears that the legislation "will reflect the power of the teachers' union. I expect a decision based on political expediency, not education needs."

The dispute has led to rotating strikes by teachers in Co-

Those job-creating trips

A scoreless tie

Opposition leader William Bennett asked Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk in the Legislature Wednesday how many jobs his spring industry-seeking trip to Japan had created for British Columbians.

"More than your daddy's trip to Europe created," answered Lauk.

"Am I to take it then that no jobs were created?" retorted Bennett.

And the house collapsed in laughter.

Canada may double grain aid to hungry

ROME (CP) — Canada told the United Nations food conference Wednesday it plans to pump much more grain into hungry poor countries and revamp its aid program to help them grow more of their own food.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the conference that Ottawa will commit an average of a million tons of grain — about 37.5 million bushels — to aid needy countries annually for the next three years.

And in Ottawa, government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday that Canada might be able to give more than its pledged one million tons of grain annually in international food aid over the next three years.

Sharp, acting external affairs minister in the absence of Allan MacEachen, said in the Commons the government "hasn't closed the door" on more aid if it is possible to give it.

Canadian grain aid came to 600,000 tons this year, the million tons a year merely returns food aid to the level of 1971-72, when Canada last had large unsold reserves.

MacEachen told reporters the Canadian International Development Agency will buy the grain — all wheat — from the government's marketing

Chartered 707 brings widow, horses to B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A wealthy German widow, now a landed immigrant in Canada and owner of the Empire Valley Ranch in the Cariboo, arrived here Tuesday aboard a Boeing 707 jet, specially chartered for the trip, with her daughter, 13 horses, a cage of live pigeons and crates of household goods.

Mrs. Sophie Stegemann bought the ranch, one of the largest in B.C., in August for an undisclosed price from Robert Maytag of Woodland Park, Colorado.

She moved to the ranch with her son and daughter shortly after buying it but took several months to arrange flying her horses and household goods to Canada.

The cost of transferring her animals and possessions was estimated from $38,000 to $55,000.

Mrs. Stegemann has grazing permits allowing her to run 2,000 head of cattle on the ranch, which includes 500 square miles of crown land.

She stayed aboard the jet an hour after it landed at the Vancouver airport to avoid facing the press. Later she refused to speak to reporters except to shout at photographers in German.

'Ambassador' makes bid to Alaska

Take us, Island's north asks

PORT HARDY — The northern part of Vancouver Island wants to secede from British Columbia and join Alaska — or at least that's what some northerners say.

The threat of secession has become so serious that Mount Waddington Region Board last week named an "ambassador" to Alaska.

He is Port Hardy Mayor Brian Klaver and already he has forwarded his credentials to Alaska Governor William Egan.

Klaver, at the same time, asked Egan if Alaska is interested in 8,000 square miles on the northern tip of the Island and a small piece of the mainland coast.

Egan couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday night but Klaver had lots to say about the move.

Real reason behind it, he explained, is that the north Islanders are testing the provincial government, trying to find out how much the government thinks they're worth.

No premier has ever visited the north end of the Island, and government promises are still only promises, Klaver said.

Sewer, water and the ferry systems are inadequate in the area, Klaver claimed, and he added that the Kelsey Bay-Port McNeill highway, promised in 1928, has been stalled until 1978.

"On the mainland the essential services are installed and then the property is sold — up here we're lucky to see those services," the 28-year-old mayor and ambassador said.

Ferry service between Kelsey Bay, the end of the Island Highway, and Beaver Cove, 40 miles away, can't handle the traffic and so gives preference to passenger vehicles, he said.

Klaver said 13,000 people in the region want to know how important they are to the provincial and federal governments.

Asked if Alaska would help them more than B.C., the ambassador said "probably not ... but at least we'll get our message across.

The 13,000 residents are unconcerned that the nearest Alaskan point is 350 miles away, while the provincial capital of Victoria is only 250 miles away.

Nanaimo

Nomination day Nov. 25

NANAIMO — Nomination day for this city's 1974 civic election will be Nov. 25.

Chris Woodward, associate deputy minister of municipal affairs, said in an interview it would be senseless to delay beyond that time.

The election to choose eight aldermen and a maybr for the newly amalgamated city will be held Dec. 14, Woodward confirmed.

He also said the old letters patent for the City of Nanaimo will be withdrawn when the city ceases to exist, but will be returned to the city for storage in the municipal archives.

The city's date of incorporation will remain as 1874, but it will be re-incorporated on Jan. 1, 1974, the date the amalgamation becomes effective.

Only one member of the present Nanaimo city council, Ald. Arnold Dugan, remains uncommitted on whether he will seek a seat on the new council to be chosen Dec. 14.

The new council will administer the newly-amalgamated Nanaimo when it takes office Jan. 1. Voters Saturday approved a merger of Nanaimo city with five improvement districts and parts of two others, to increase the population from 15,000 to 35,000 and the size from four square miles to 26 square miles.

Ald. G.A. MacKay declared his intention to run Tuesday.

He joins aldermen Ken Medland, William Hunter, Gino Sedola and Mrs. G.L. Hall for the three available city centre seats.

Others in the race include Ray Brookbank in Departure Bay, Ray Stacey of Petroglyph, James Moffatt, Reginald Gates, and Nelson Allen in Northfield and Alex Virotsko of Harewood.

North Wellington is the only district which so far does not have a candidate.

Incumbent Frank Ney and Ted Barsby will battle it out for the job as mayor of the enlarged city.

There are 21,027 persons eligible to vote.

$3,000 salvage offer

The provincial government has made a $3,000 offer to a Nanaimo man seeking salvage fees for rescuing a drifting government ferry last July.

John Martin, along with Nanaimo lawyer Donald Bohun, towed the 77-foot Rolf Bruhn, which operates between Nanaimo and Gabriola Island, to a dock after spotting it adrift near a marine gas station. The pair then claimed salvage compensation of 10 per cent of the vessel's value.

In October the highways department offered Martin about $1,800 which, he said, was not enough.

Well known carver, Simon Charlie of Koksilah, at work

Only very best lumber will do

HONEYMOON BAY — The best trim ends from lumber manufactured here at the Western Forest Industries lumber mill are helping to keep alive the centuries old wood carving skills of the native Indians of central Vancouver Island region.

Carver Simon Charlie of Koksilah, about 35 miles north of Victoria, and several other carvers in his area, have for many years obtained basic materials from the Honeymoon Bay mill, says Alex Walker supervisor personnel.

"In recent years, it has been difficult for the carvers to obtain the virgin timber from which the knot-free material is obtained," Walker said. "We have assisted them wherever possible.

"The trim ends from yellow cedar pilings, short lengths of red cedar and also western white pine are the woods best suited for their works."

The carvers shape the wood ends into small totems, war canoe paddles and figures from Indian legends, all of which are sought after by collectors of Indian artifacts throughout North America.

Nanaimo seaport relocation

SPEC backs Duke Point

By FRED CURRIE
Colonist Correspondent

NANAIMO — The local branch of SPEC (Society for Pollution and Environmental Control) announced Wednesday it will support the bid by Nanaimo Harbour Commission to locate a major seaport and forest products terminal at Duke Point.

The commission suggested the Duke Point location earlier this year, after the original proposal in the Inner Harbor was rejected because it could cause serious damage to the delicate ecological balance to the Nanaimo River estuary. The plan calls for creation of a major deep-sea terminal, capable of handling ships at least twice the size of the port in the Inner Harbor, along with major storage and handling facilities, for forest products from all over the Island and parts of the Mainland.

The SPEC statement said the only condition attached to its full support of the Duke Point proposal is that adequate green belt space be allotted to ensure the industrial establishment does not encroach too closely on residential property.

The group said it would also support the idea of re-location of oil storage tank farms from the downtown waterfront into the Duke Point area. This, SPEC said, would release waterfront area for recreational use.

The Duke Point port proposal, the society said, would help prevent dangerous oil spills in the estuary. It also suggests that when the new port is established marine traffic should be re-routed away from the estuary, and that a waterfowl sanctuary should be established there.

The group would also like to see limitation of noise in the area.

The harbor commission has not yet completed its studies of the port proposal.

City, RCA undertake hall expansion study

COURTENAY — Expansion of the Courtenay Recreation Association hall is to be studied by members of the CRA executive and two aldermen.

Mayor William Moore Monday named Ald. George Cochrane and Ald. Robert McPhee as council representatives to meet with the CRA.

Discussion on the issue was sparked by the release of letters sent to council by CRA president James Akeroyd, and program director Tony White.

Akeroyd said although cooperation from the school board has been excellent the population increase and the number of programs are beginning to overburden the facilities.

White said it has become increasingly difficult to schedule many events at the CRA hall because of lack of space.

He said the city is growing and will continue to grow because "the Comox Valley is one of the last retreats available to many seeking an enriched way of life.

"We therefore have the duty to maintain adequate recreational facilities to house the needs of our community," he said.

A blueprint of the proposed expansion facilities will be one of the first items tackled by the committee.

Last year, the CRA discussed with council a proposal for a $300,000 addition to the hall. However, the plan was shelved owing to lack of funds and because some residents thought the expansion would take too much valuable parkland.

They argued the CRA hall should be moved out of Lewis Park and be relocated elsewhere in the city.

Marina plan step closer

COMOX — Plans for a municipal marina and adjoining park moved a step closer to realization with the announcement Tuesday by Comox MLA Karen Sanford that an order-in-council has been passed releasing the land from a prior reservation in favor of the federal public works department.

The original lot, containing 25 acres, has been re-surveyed, and a 10.89-acre section, divided into two lots, will be made available for purchase by the town.

The order-in-council is the result of almost two years of correspondence between municipal and provincial governments.

Carpenters wanted

COURTENAY — A drastic shortage of carpenters is slowing work on the $1.8 million arena-pool complex, Mayor William Moore told city council this week.

He said nine carpenters are needed by the contractor but he has been able to hire only two men.

Because of this manpower shortage, the recreational complex will not open until January, about six weeks later than had been anticipated.

Official opening of the building will take place in February.

The project is being developed by the Courtenay-Strathcona region board.

Town within town

'Utopian' concept gets public airing

By BILL SMITH
Colonist Correspondent

COMOX — Population growth of the Comox Valley, which is now 8.6 per cent, well over the five per cent B.C. average — will increase as much as 20 per cent annually, area residents were told Tuesday by the author of the Comox Complex Concept.

A few eyebrows were raised when Hilary Place, of Malcolm Boot Realty, Vancouver, told the public meeting that "the Courtenay-Cumberland-Comox area is being studied by many major retail outlets across Canada.

"These people know more about the trading habits of consumers here and the economy of the area than you would imagine possible," Place said.

Reaction to the concept was favorable and council will now meet in special session Nov. 13 to decide whether it should give the developer the green light to proceed with detailed drawings.

Place told the Colonist that if approval is forthcoming, he will have an application for a land use contract before council within a few weeks and hopes to have 30 homes built in the first phase of the development by February, with 100 lots built on by next summer.

Major features of the development include homes for between 1,800 and 2,000 persons, a 10-acre site for light industrial development and approximately 35 acres of commercial development as well as parks, recreational facilities, schools, civic centre, office buildings, building, farmers' market and twin movie theatres.

The development would take place on a 160-acre tract of land bounded by Noel, Anderton and Guthrie — an area which only recently was taken into the city limits.

Overall residential density on the site would be four housing units an acre, half to be detached single-family residences with the remainder set aside for clustered medium density homes.

Place said the idea behind the concept is to supply some of the amenities necessary for a community which is going to grow as quickly as Comox.

He acknowledged his proposal was going to have a great impact and would affect all future development plans throughout the entire Comox Valley.

"People are going to come and live in this most desirable area and we feel you should be planning for this growth," Place said.

He said in response to a question, that he is confident the proposed commercial development outlined in the concept is economically feasible.

In answer to other questions about the multi-million dollar shopping centres planned for neighbouring Courtenay, Place said these centres would generate their own growth rate.

Mayor Richard Merrick pointed out that 250 building lots will be coming available shortly with the completion of a sewer project to serve the northeast section of the town.

However, school teacher Ronald Black said this growth was going to create serious problems for the municipality.

He cited pressures that would be exerted on existing schools and recreational facilities.

Stressing the "desperate need for more housing lots in Comox" Mayor Merrick said if the developers go ahead and fill the 160 acres with single family dwellings, "we will be in an untenable position."

The mayor asked the residents if they want to continue fighting traffic snarls to shop in Courtenay, or did they want amenities any municipality should offer.

"Do we plan or do we bury our heads in the sand?" he said.

Merrick stressed that the onus will be on the developer to provide services for the development and he suggested that taxes could drop if the proposal goes ahead.

The mayor warned that growth is inevitable and the population explosion predicted for this area is very real.

He urged citizens to opt for planned growth and orderly development as outlined in the concept.

Comox developer Jim Rutherford admitted there is a desperate shortage of residential lots but he questioned the advisability of incorporating a light industrial development in the concept, and disagreed with Merrick's suggestion that the downtown core not be extended.

One person who called the concept utopian said it was 25 years in the future.

City solicitor leaving post

COURTENAY — City Council accepted Monday, with regret, the resignation of city solicitor Terry Ryan.

He is leaving general practice to assume full-time duties with the attorney-general's department as crown prosecutor for Courtenay and district.

Council appointed David L. Gibson of Ryan's firm, as successor to Ryan until the end of the year.

Ryan and Murray Mitchell have been the only men to have served as city solicitors in the 60 years since Courtenay was incorporated.

COMOX GOLFERS RECEIVE AWARDS

COMOX — Awards have been presented at the Comox Golf and Country club end-of-season banquet.

Club championship trophies went to Jack Vanetta and Myrn MxQuinn, with Bernice Sutherland and Jack Hoult capturing the Tip Top event.

The McQuinn Cup went to Elsie MacLean, and Timothy Kennelly. Marg Stevenson and Ralph McKenzie were presented with the Comox Days trophy.

Stanley and Lorraine Nixon received the husband-and-wife event trophy, and the father-son tournament trophy went to Fred and Tony Pisto.

Dave Lockhart captured the Filberg cup and the Murtrie cup was presented to Jack Hoult.

Brown trophy, Cherry Aitken; Francis trophy, Eileen Orpen.

Booth trophy event wound up in a tie between Edith Hoult and Bernice Sutherland. No playoff was possible because Mrs. Hoult broke her wrist in an accident on the course. Fairbairn trophy went to Georgette Drake.

The McQuinn Cup for two ball championship went to Edith Hoult and Lorraine Nixon.

The Florence Filberg seniors' trophy was won by Eileen Orpen. Closing Day event, low gross winners were Ann Bing and Edith Albrecht; low net, Mamie Aitken and Kay Dick.

Cherry Aitken was named most improved player, and Bef Aitken the most improved player with high handicap.

Canadian Ladies' Golf Association pins went to Wyn French and Bernice Sutherland.

Coach directs team on length of hair

By BILL SMITH
Colonist Correspondent

COURTENAY — A storm in a teacup is brewing here over a directive by the coach of the Mr. Mike's Junior "B" hockey team over the length of player's hair.

Goaltender Jack Kines has asked for his release from the squad over the issue.

Coach Derek Duvall termed the incident comical, and said "only one player has raised a stink.

"We want our players to look respectable in their appearance," he said.

Duvall, at the start of the season, after discussions with team executive members and officials of the Comox Valley Minor Hockey Association, laid down the following rules:

Dress neatly for games.

Haircuts must be reasonable. Just below the helmet.

The coach also ordered his players not to retaliate when a fight starts and said anyone retaliating would be benched.

He admitted that his players may be at a big disadvantage with this rule and cited incidents in a game last Friday when two Mr. Mike's players were "pretty badly beaten up" during a fight.

"We lost that game 10-3, Duvall said, "but I don't care if we lose all our games as long as we play a good, clean brand of hockey.

"I am amazed how well our boys are responding to the directive.

"I want to see our team play hockey, not fight. We can't win games in the penalty box," he said.

Orv Malcomson, team director and a past president of the Comox Valley Minor Hockey Association, said the haircut and cleanliness rules are rules that apply in junior "A" hockey.

"We pay the shot and we are entitled to make some rules."

He said it is not true that several players have quit the team over the issue. He noted that players—Harry Onno, Steven James, Kevin Woodman and Robert Hitchcock — who allegedly left the team over the issue, went of their own choice.

He said Onno is attending school in Nanaimo and told the team he could not make the practises.

James, who at first balked at the haircut directive, later said he was not able to play because of other commitments, Woodman notified the team he was unable to play, and Hitchcock has gone into a business venture and is unable to devote time to hockey, Malcomson said.

"The only player who has asked for, and been given his release, is Kines," he said.

The team plays its home opener tonight at Glacier Gardens arena when they host Nanaimo.

HEAVY RAIN and strong wind didn't keep these Nanaimo people from participating in the Guy Fawkes Day celebration sponsored by the city centennial committee. About 100 people showed up for the fireworks display Tuesday, behind the Vic Arena. Guy Fawkes, an Elizabethan folk hero, tried to dynamite the British parliament buildings in the 17th century.

Streaking Sabres claim fair share of attention

New York Islanders and Los Angeles Kings have earned much of the early-season notice in the National Hockey League but Buffalo Sabres are making a strong bid for equal attention.

Unbeaten in six games, Sabres have had great success against pre-expansion opposition in the past two weeks, posting four wins and a tie along with a victory over the St. Louis Blues.

Their latest win came Wednesday in Buffalo, a 6-4 decision over the Chicago Black Hawks before a capacity crowd of 15,863.

Since losing to Los Angeles on Oct. 24, Sabres have posted wins over St. Louis, Montreal, Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, and New York Rangers and played to a tie with Boston Bruins.

Wednesday's win moved the Sabres five points up on second-place Boston in the Adams Division.

In other games, Montreal and Detroit Red Wings fought to a 4-4 tie while Toronto Maple Leafs added to the Minnesota North Stars' woes by registering a 7-4 victory at Maple Leaf Gardens.

At Buffalo, the French Connection line of Gilbert Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert scored four of the Sabre goals and it was Perreault's goal, early in the third period, which proved to be the winner.

The flashy centre also set up a first-period tally by left-winger Martin and Robert, who scored the first Buffalo goal on a brilliant rink-length dash, closed the scoring with an insurance marker late in the final period.

At Montreal, Red Berenson scored midway through the second period to pull the Wings into a 4-4 tie.

The goal came when Detroit pulled its goalkeeper in favor of an extra attacker as a penalty was about to be called on the Canadiens.

Marcel Dionne also scored for Detroit in the same period when the Wings enjoyed a two-man advantage.

Ever-improving Guy Lafleur scored two goals for the Canadiens, who inched to within five points of the front-running Kings in the Norris Division.

In Toronto, Darryl Sittler fired three goals and defenceman Jim McKenney added two others to give the Leafs only their fourth win in 13 starts.

McKenney, returning to the lineup after missing three weeks with a leg injury, added an assist on Sittler's third scoring shot.

Tightest NHL race gets even tighter

Things tightened up considerably Wednesday night in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division.

Atlanta Flames, third in the already-close, four-team division, moved to within two points of leading Philadelphia Flyers by edging New York Islanders, 2-1, in Atlanta. The triumph also prevented the second-place Islanders from jumping over the idle Flyers.

And last-place New York Rangers rebounded from a 2-1 defeat at the hands of Vancouver Canucks on Tuesday to down California Golden Seals, 7-3. That moved the Rangers to within four points of the Flyers.

Tom Lysiak, who led the Flames last season in scoring with 19 goals and 45 assists, banged in a rebound from Curt Bennett's second-period shot to break the 1-1 tie.

Islanders, who have been one of the early-season NHL surprises, took the lead on Andre St. Laurent's first goal of the season, on a close-in shot which didn't give goalkeeper Dan Bouchard any chance.

However, a minute later in the opening period, Eric Vail tied the score on a power play, tipping in a blue-line drive by defenceman Dwight Bialowas.

Goalkeeper Billy Smith was often spectacular for the Islanders, making several tough saves to keep the New Yorkers close.

Smith finished with 28 saves while Bouchard stopped 19 of 20 Islander shots.

Rod Gilbert scored three goals to lead the Rangers, who snapped a losing streak at three games and a winless skein at four.

Gilbert opened the scoring, cashing in a rebound, but the stubborn Seals grabbed a 2-1 lead before the first period ended.

Goals by centre Jean Ratelle and Gilbert gave the lead back to the Rangers but Wayne King evened the score again.

Rangers then put the outcome out of doubt by scoring four times in less than seven minutes.

Roberts' bid for injunction before Ontario judge today

By STAN COOPER

Victoria Cougars should know today whether or not defenceman Gordie Roberts will be allowed to resume his playing career with the Western Canada Hockey League club.

A Toronto judge will hear an application for an injunction filed Tuesday by lawyers for Roberts' father, John Roberts of Detroit, seeking a ruling which will allow the 17-year-old American citizen to play hockey here pending the settlement of a dispute with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The application claims the CAHA is denying Roberts his human rights by refusing to grant him the necessary east-west transfer form.

The promising defenceman, a member of Detroit Junior Wings of the Southern Ontario Hockey League last season, was selected by Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association in a draft of graduating 16-year-olds.

But Roberts, who was placed on the Cougar negotiation list on Jan. 28, agreed to join the WCHL club after visiting Victoria with his parents this summer.

Sudbury claims his Canadian playing rights and has filed a protest with the CAHA.

And Roberts, who played the first 10 games of the season for the Cats, has been under WCHL suspension since Oct. 22, pending a decision.

Cougars who obtained Roberts' release from Detroit have made several attempts to settle out of court but Sudbury officials have refused all offers and an emergency meeting of OHA governors in Ottawa, Tuesday, failed to break the deadlock.

"We're hoping Gordie will be allowed to play here at least until the matter is settled," Cougar-manager Pat Ginnell said Wednesday, "as this thing has dragged on for nearly three weeks now."

Cougars play their next game Saturday against the Flin Flon Bombers at Memorial Arena.

In other Wednesday developments, leftwinger Eric Sanderson, obtained Tuesday from New Westminster Bruins, arrived in camp while rookie defenceman Wade Smith, an 18-year-old from Nanaimo, left.

Smith, unhappy over the lack of action he's seen during the first 19 games of the season, has received permission to try out with Lethbridge Broncos. If the 190-pounder makes the Lethbridge squad, a suitable arrangement will be made, Ginnell said.

And Ginnell is recommending centre Mel Bridgman, leading the WCHL in scoring with 47 points, and defenceman Rick LaPointe as the two Cougars to represent Victoria on the WCHL all-star team which will play in the world junior hockey tournament in Winnipeg, Dec. 26-Jan. 5.

Ginnell and Jackie McLeod of Saskatoon Blades are co-coaches of the Canadian squad while Del Wilson of Regina and Ernie McLean of New Westminster will serve as managers.

The full 24-member team — two players from each club — will be announced following a governors' meeting, Nov. 17, in Calgary.

Teams from Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Finland, and the United States will also compete in the round-robin tournament which will be staged in Winnipeg, Brandon, Fargo, N.D. and Minneapolis.

In the only game Wednesday, Lethbridge scored a 7-1 win over the visiting Bombers.

Alex Tidey scored twice for Lethbridge and Bryan Trottier, Ben Richardson, Greg Woods, Don Eastcott, and John Lutz added single goals.

Rich Gosselin, Dan Kuntz, Tom Cullen and Scott Williams scored for Flin Flon.

Award winner

Marshall weighs baseball future

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Marshall, the first relief pitcher to win the Cy Young Award, says he will weigh his future until next March before telling Los Angeles Dodgers whether he will pitch in 1975.

"I'm putting off my decision about playing until March," said Marshall. "By making this statement, I do not mean to say, or to imply, that I do not intend to pitch again."

Marshall made the comments in a telephone interview Wednesday.

"What I'm saying is that I simply will weigh the various ingredients, my family, my academic pursuits, my feelings, and baseball at that time, then make my decision. Not before."

Marshall, who was named to the National League's top pitching honor after appearing in a record 106 games during the regular season, said he already has started his off-season regimen of running and throwing while he lectures and works on his doctorate in kinesiology at Michigan State University in East Lansing, Mich.

He polled 17 of a possible 24 first-place votes to outscore teammate Andy Messersmith, 96 points to 66, in the tally by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Marshall said the Cy Young Award and withholding his plans are not wedges to get a richer contract from the Dodgers. The Dodgers paid him $87,500 in 1974, when he reported late to spring training because of his educational commitments.

"I don't need it as a financial wedge. I'll get paid what I want, or I won't play. It's that simple," said the 31-year-old right-hander who came to the Dodgers in a trade with Montreal Expos last winter.

Morris walks out of Dolphin camp

MIAMI (AP) — Injured running back Mercury Morris walked out of Miami Dolphins' camp Wednesday and may be suspended from the National Football League team, says coach Don Shula.

"I was very upset when I called him into my office this morning because he missed two days of treatment for a knee injury," Shula said at a news conference. "He told me he's ready to play.

"I told him I didn't think he was and he said, 'Go ahead and suspend me,' and he walked out.

"Suspension is one of the possibilities I am now considering. In the next day or two, I'll sit down face-to-face with him and discuss the situation."

The coach said Morris had been fined $600 for missing treatments.

Ali selected boxer-of-year

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Muhammad Ali was named boxer of the year Wednesday by the 10th convention of the World Boxing Council, in its opening session here.

More than 40 WBC officials, managers, and promoters from around the world are attending the conclave. Among the participants are representatives of the British Boxing Board of Control, the European Boxing Union, the African Boxing Union, the American Federation of Boxing, the Central American Federation of Boxing, and the South American Boxing Federation.

Tht convention will study modifications in the council's rules, and delegates are scheduled to discuss promoters' problems.

Next games: Wednesday — London Boxing Club vs. Stevens Interiors, James Bay Athletic Association vs. Victoria Junior Men, Victoria High School.

Victoria Junior Men put on a late charge Wednesday night at Victoria High but couldn't catch unbeaten London Boxing Club in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game.

The Boxers, who jumped out to an early, 18-2 lead, watched the new-entry Juniors pile in 15 straight points in the late stages but hung on for a 70-57 triumph.

Second-place Hotel Douglas kept pace by defeating Stevens Interiors, 79-62, with Tom Hatcher and Corky Jossul supplying most of the firepower.

Jack Robinson scored 16 points in the first half and had four more points before fouling out to lead the Boxers.

Doug Irving had 14 points to top the Juniors, who were trailing, 40-68, when they put on the spurt.

LONDON BOXING (70) — Jack Robinson 20, Dave Wirtanen 4, Loris Corletto 6, Daryl Glanville, Rich Connelly 12, Bill Hingley 2, Alf Hass 12, Jim McKay 10, Bob Wiley 4.

Riders content at home, thank you!

REGINA (CP) — The president of British Columbia Lions unsuccessfully suggested two weeks ago that this Sunday's Western Football Conference semi-final game be moved from Regina, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Lion president Wes Munsie, president of the WFC, wrote to Saskatchewan Roughrider president Al Sangster the day after Roughriders clinched second place in the conference, winning the right to have the semi-final playoff game in Regina.

The key sections of the letter, a copy of which was obtained by The Leader-Post, were:

"You will recall at the last Western Football Conference meeting I indicated my concern on behalf of the conference as to the small revenue derived from the 9000 people who attended the semi-final game in Regina last year.

"You will also recall the reason given by Bill Clarke was that the fans thought it would be a cakewalk for the Roughriders.

"The purpose of this letter is to ascertain if the same review exists this year, and if it does it might be in the best interest of the conference and the league to play the game in a centre which would attract the maximum number of fans and to generate up to $200,000 in additional dollars for the conference."

Sangster said in an interview Wednesday that "Munsie has nerve."

"No doubt about that. I wrote him back and I was really quite gentle with him.

"I told him the people here are quite capable of supporting their own team."

Riders have already sold about 18,000 tickets for the game, aided by mild fall weather that contrasts sharply with the cold spell at playoff time last year.

Star Mary turns director

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not one of our great shows, but the comforting thing is that even our worst shows are better than most of the other series that are on television."

Mary Tyler Moore was letting it all hang out. The show she referred to was A Boy's Best Friend, and it marked her debut as a director. She was frank about its quality, but she left no doubt about her pride in the series itself, the Mary Tyler Moore Show.

The CBS Saturday night romp remains a television phenomenon. Not only does the show itself maintain a consistently high quality of comedy, but her MTM Enterprises has also spawned winners in The Bob Newhart Show, Rhoda and Friends and Lovers.

Since she and her husband, Grant Tinker, head the enterprises, there is no need to ask how she got the job as director. But why?

"Last season we had a couple of directors on the show that were — well, less than exciting," she said.

"I thought about how hard all of us in the cast had to work in directing ourselves, without hurting the directors' feelings.

"Then a few weeks ago I was in Grant's office and we were talking with Arthur Proce (MTM EXECUTIVE) ABOUT A SHOW that was coming up.

"You know," I said, "I think I'd like to direct.'

"They spun around and said, 'Good for you!' 'Terrific!' And so I was committed."

The story concerns Ted Baxter, the pouter-pigeon TV announcer, and his discovery of his mother's plan to be married.

"Ted completely — falls apart," the star-director related. "He is a hypochondriac anyway, and now all of his Oedipal instincts well up and make him a complete wreck.

"Then he gets a call from his mother — we never see her in the show — saying that she isn't going to get married after all; she's just going to live with the man. That destroys Ted altogether."

The show is resolved when Ted has a man-to-man talk with his mother's suitor, who turns out to be a mild little 80-year-old who is only seeking her happiness.

The segment will appear Nov. 23.

An extra lens for sharper viewing. That's the whole idea behind our new Panasonic Quintrix tube.

No other color picture tube has it.

We put an extra lens into the new Panasonic Quintrix picture tube. To give you a sharper, brighter picture than ever before.

Television manufacturers put electron lenses in their picture tubes to focus the image. We put in an extra lens to make the focus even sharper.

And because the Quintrix picture tube is mounted on a more powerful chassis you get a brighter picture too.

Panasonic color portables with the exclusive new Quintrix tube, in five models and three different sizes. From a compact light-weight 14" to the popular 20" sizes. Every one gives you the sharpest, brightest picture ever. And after all, isn't that the whole idea?

9 IN MEMORIAM

STANCIL — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law, Robert Alfred Stancil who passed away November 7, 1971.
Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loveliness never dies
You live in a land of Glory
Amidst the blue and gold of the sky.
Your life a beautiful memory
Your absence a silent grief,
You sleep in God's beautiful garden
In the sunset of perfect peace.
Lovingly remembered always,
your sisters-in-law, Dorothy Grexton, Mabel Stenseth and family.

STANCIL — In loving memory of my dear brother (Bob) Robert Alfred Stancil who passed away November 7, 1971.
I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind
The days I do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
They say time heals all sorrows
And will help me to forget
But time so far has only shown
How much I miss you yet.
—Remembered with love always, your sister Dorothy Simms.

STANCIL — In cherished and loving memory of Robert Alfred Stancil, dear husband and father, who passed away November 7, 1971.
There is no parting from those we love,
No distance can divide.
For each day in memory's garden,
We still walk side by side.
Wherever life may take us
Whatever we may do
The memory of the years we shared
Will keep us close to you.
They are not lost our well beloved
Nor have they travelled far
Just stepped inside God's loveliest room and left the door ajar.
—Lovingly remembered always, wife Lillian and daughter Barbara.

du TEMPLE, G. W.—Sadly missed by his loving wife Alice, sons Wally and Barry and all the grandchildren and all who knew him. November 7th, 1961.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE. SANDS.

The UIC maze: it's a job to get the benefits

Unemployment Insurance Canada

Working with you—between jobs

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

This is the parable of the two stationary engineers.

For years they had worked together in a mill in a small Vancouver Island town before the mill closed down, putting them both out of work.

Both applied for Unemployment Insurance benefits. Because the mill was the only place in town where they would be able to get a job, they were both waiting for the mill to re-open.

One filled in his form, in all honesty, stating that he was ready and available for work at any time. His claim was granted.

The second also filled in his form honestly, but, explaining his case more fully than the first, said he was waiting to be called back to the mill when it re-opened so he was really only available on a temporary basis.

His explanation disqualified him from receiving benefits.

Then there is the story of the cab driver who was laid off in Victoria.

He was granted benefits, and started looking for work, as all unemployed people must if they are to remain eligible for benefits.

There being no cab driving jobs in sight, he decided to move to new spheres and indulge in a life-long desire to write for a living.

There was no employment available in public relations so he set up his own company to work out of his home.

He hung out his shingle and was later cut off from benefits — and forced to repay money he had received from UIC after setting up the company.

He was classed as self-employed and therefore ineligible for benefits, although he had yet to make a penny out of his new business.

Such are the pitfalls for the unwary when they move unguided through the tangled bureaucracy called the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

It is a fallacy to imagine that the laid off worker has a right to unemployment insurance, commission officials say.

In order to qualify, the worker has a number of rights and obligations, with the emphasis on obligations — and the rights are a vague it - all - depends - upon-circumstances collection.

In a general way the worker must be prepared to take any kind of job, at any time or place or wage, in order to be eligible for benefits — and must be actively seeking such work.

"In fact a worker could be cut off benefits for refusing to scab," says Al Carle, an official of The International Woodworkers of America.

And in a cautious sort of way UIC district manager Alison Fink confirmed the statement.

Argentina clamped by Isabel

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The Argentine government of President Isabel Peron clamped the country under a state of siege Wednesday to combat a mounting wave of political violence.

Interior Minister Alberto Rocamora announced the government decision after a meeting between Mrs. Peron and the three commanders-in-chief of the armed forces.

A state of siege — a lesser form of martial law — empowers security forces to search and detain without warrant and hold detainees without charges.

At least 130 persons have been killed since Mrs. Peron took over from her late husband Juan Peron last July.

A previous state of siege was lifted shortly after the Peronists returned to power in Argentina in May, 1973.

The violence, between rival factions within the Peronist movement and between Marxist guerrillas and security forces, burst into the open on the day Juan Peron returned from 17 years in exile.

Small-mill chip aid promised

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bill will be introduced during this session of the Legislature to protect small sawmill operators and their employees against price manipulations in the lumber chip industry, Premier Barrett said Wednesday.

Speaking before 700 delegates at the B.C. Federation of Labor convention here, Barrett said "lumber cartels are using chip prices as loss leaders."

The premier later refused to specify what action the bill will propose, only saying it would be introduced "very shortly."

"We intend to take action on behalf of the small indigenous operators and their employees to prevent the kind of huge cartel profits in this field that are currently being ripped off by the international oil cartel," Barrett told the delegates.

Anti-missile muzzle

Faster than a speeding bullet . . . he leaps for the highest frisbees . . . it's superdog . . . Lindsay Hunt, below Gito's back haunches, said his dog's wildness is because Gito is part coyote. Gito loves crowds that gather in Beacon Hill Park to watch him snap frisbees in mid-air and once sneaked out of house without his owner and returned with another frisbee for his collection. He jumps as high as six feet to catch anything. But Gito hasn't learned to throw yet.

Interim measure today

B.C. set to crack teacher impasse

B.C. teachers and school trustees could find themselves legislated to agreement today in their dispute on contract bargaining procedure.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said Wednesday she will introduce interim measures in the Legislature today "with reference to the present situation as it exists re teacher-trustee bargaining."

She declined to say what the legislation will be, but added "it is obvious that if I am introducing legislation it is certainly my intent to provide legislation which will prevent any further crisis from developing."

Trustees are insisting on province-wide bargaining or at least regional bargaining, while teachers want to continue the present system of local negotiations.

Mrs. Dailly said her main concern is to see that B.C. schoolchildren receive their education.

She stressed that the legislation "would be interim," applying only to the present situation.

The B.C. School Trustees Association, representing 68 of the province's school districts, reacted bitterly to the announcement of forthcoming legislation.

"There is no precedent for government intervention in a labor dispute before the bargaining processes have been completed," BCSTA president Eileen Madson said.

"When the school trustees met with the minister in 1973 and asked for changes in legislation, we were told that legislation could not be changed in the middle of bargaining."

Mrs. Madson added that, regardless of the nature of the legislation, the government should have waited for the report of its 17 conciliators "before deciding that intervention by the Legislature is necessary."

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn expressed fears that the legislation "will reflect the power of the teachers' union. I expect a decision based on political expediency, not education needs."

The dispute has led to rotating strikes by teachers in Co-

Those job-creating trips

A scoreless tie

Opposition leader William Bennett asked Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk in the Legislature Wednesday how many jobs his spring industry-seeking trip to Japan had created for British Columbians.

"More than your daddy's trip to Europe created," answered Lauk.

"Am I to take it then that no jobs were created?" retorted Bennett.

And the house collapsed in laughter.

Canada may double grain aid to hungry

ROME (CP) — Canada told the United Nations food conference Wednesday it plans to pump much more grain into hungry poor countries and revamp its aid program to help them grow more of their own food.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the conference that Ottawa will commit an average of a million tons of grain — about 37.5 million bushels — to aid needy countries annually for the next three years.

And in Ottawa, government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday that Canada might be able to give more than its pledged one million tons of grain annually in international food aid over the next three years.

Sharp, acting external affairs minister in the absence of Allan MacEachen, said in the Commons the government "hasn't closed the door" on more aid if it is possible to give it.

Canadian grain aid came to 600,000 tons this year. The million tons a year merely returns food aid to the level of 1971-72, when Canada last had large unsold reserves.

MacEachen told reporters the Canadian International Development Agency will buy the grain — all wheat — from the government's marketing

Chartered 707 brings widow, horses to B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A wealthy German widow, now a landed immigrant in Canada and owner of the Empire Valley Ranch in the Cariboo, arrived here Tuesday aboard a Boeing 707 jet, specially chartered for the trip, with her daughter, 13 horses, a cage of live pigeons and crates of household goods.

Mrs. Sophie Stegemann bought the ranch, one of the largest in B.C., in August for an undisclosed price from Robert Maytag of Woodland Park, Colorado.

She moved to the ranch with her son and daughter shortly after buying it but took several months to arrange flying her horses and household goods to Canada.

The cost of transferring her animals and possessions was estimated from $38,000 to $55,000.

Mrs. Stegemann has grazing permits allowing her to run 2,000 head of cattle on the ranch, which includes 500 square miles of crown land.

She stayed aboard the jet an hour after it landed at the Vancouver airport to avoid facing the press. Later she refused to speak to reporters except to shout at photographers in German.

'Ambassador' makes bid to Alaska

Take us, Island's north asks

PORT HARDY — The northern part of Vancouver Island wants to secede from British Columbia and join Alaska — or at least that's what some northerners say.

The threat of secession has become so serious that Mount Waddington Region Board last week named an "ambassador" to Alaska.

He is Port Hardy Mayor Brian Klaver and already he has forwarded his credentials to Alaska Governor William Egan.

Klaver, at the same time, asked Egan if Alaska is interested in 8,000 square miles on the northern tip of the Island and a small piece of the mainland coast.

Egan couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday night but Klaver had lots to say about the move.

Real reason behind it, he explained, is that the north Islanders are testing the provincial government, trying to find out how much the government thinks they're worth.

No premier has ever visited the north end of the Island, and government promises are still only promises, Klaver said.

Sewer, water and the ferry systems are inadequate in the area, Klaver claimed, and he added that the Kelsey Bay-Port McNeill highway, promised in 1928, has been stalled until 1978.

"On the mainland the essential services are installed and then the property is sold — up here we're lucky to see those services," the 28-year-old mayor and ambassador said.

Ferry service between Kelsey Bay, the end of the Island Highway, and Beaver Cove, 40 miles away, can't handle the traffic and so gives preference to passenger vehicles, he said.

Klaver said 13,000 people in the region want to know how important they are to the provincial and federal governments.

Asked if Alaska would help them more than B.C., the ambassador said "probably not ... but at least we'll get our message across."

The 13,000 residents are unconcerned that the nearest Alaskan point is 350 miles away, while the provincial capital of Victoria is only 250 miles away.

Hot feet

Only thing in mind when taking off through fields at Beacon Hill Park is getting to finish line and Wednesday girls from Braefoot school seemed to get to there before anyone else in Greater Victoria elementary school's annual cross-country championships. Sir James Douglas came second and Glanford-Northridge and Monterey tied for third. (See story page 15).

Opposition melts to realization of regional plan

Approval of the Capital Region development plan became an unexpected probability Wednesday, following a special meeting of the Capital Region Board.

Opposition to the plan melted away as regional directors labored through a multitude of minor and major amendments recommended by municipalities, the regional planning department and the public.

The biggest threat to the regional plan came from Saanich but the three aldermen representing that municipality on the regional board dropped their opposition after some of their demands were met.

Their biggest concern was that the regional plan would ultimately ruin Saanich's tax base by restricting the municipality's future development.

Saanich's tentative plans foresee a population growth from its present 70,000 to 225,000. The regional plan, on the other hand, places the limit at 140,000.

Only after aldermen William Noel, Fred Severson and John McDonald were assured that these figures are only "projections," and would be flexible, did they indicate likely support for the plan.

Another area of concern was a section of the regional plan which made submission of "official community plans" mandatory for the Capital Region's seven municipalities.

That problem was overcome by a proposal from Victoria Ald. Michael Young which was accepted by the board.

Young's proposal was to file community plans with the regional board, rather than the provincial government. This would require a change in the B.C. Municipal Act, as well as in the regional letters patent which spell out the rules under which the regional board operates.

The board finally decided not to make the community plans mandatory for another two years. If, at the end of that time, the region has jurisdiction over community plans, they must be filed with the regional board.

If the province retains the right to keep community plans under its jurisdiction, a two-thirds majority of regional board votes will be necessary to compel municipalities to file community plans with the province.

Explaining his proposal, Young told the meeting he didn't like the idea of the provincial government having the "key to the chastity belt" of community planning.

The community plans are to complement the regional plan by spelling out in greater detail how each municipality should be developed in the future.

Fears that the provincial government might blindly begin depeloping the Highlands, north of the city, were also a stumbling block for the regional plan.

Those fears were allayed by the board's decision to require detailed environmental studies prior to any development of the Highlands.

In a number of separate interviews following the meeting, directors from all areas of the Capital Region said they were satisfied with the results.

Regional board chairman James Campbell, who has been urging speedy approval of the development plan, said he is confident it will be approved next Wednesday on final reading.

In essence, the plan provides a framework for the orderly development of the entire Capital Region over the next 25 years.

It anticipates a total population growth from 225,000 to 375,000.

Much of this growth, according to the plan, is to be channelled into the western part of the region — Colwood, Langford, and Metchosin, including the Highlands.

First court test under Trade Practices Act

B.C. sues for buyer over car sale

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

In a precedent-setting move, the provincial government is taking a Victoria used car dealer to court for having "engaged in a deceptive act or practice."

Palm Motors Ltd., 2936 Douglas, is being charged under the Trade Practices Act, passed by the B.C. Legislature last spring.

The charge has been laid on behalf of a consumer, William Switley, of 2945 Colquitz, by the consumer services department's director of trade practices.

Trade practices director Michael Hansen confirmed Wednesday afternoon that a summons was served on Palm Motors earlier in the day and was registered in the small claims court.

This is the first time the government is enforcing a section of the Trade Practices Act.

It is also the first case in Canada in which a government has taken legal action on behalf of a consumer.

The summons charges Palm Motors with having sold a defective car to Switley on or about June 11, 1974.

It says that "at all times, the defendant represented the car (a 1966 Chevrolet Caprice) to be reliable and in a roadworthy condition."

The summons goes on to say that Palm Motors "failed to disclose that the car didn't have a reverse gear, and the defendant knew this or ought to have known this."

Switley, according to claim particulars, didn't know the car had no functioning reverse gear.

"Failure to disclose the lack of a functioning reverse gear was a deliberate and intentional act on the part of the defendant and constituted gross and wanton misconduct, much below the general industry standard," the summons said.

The director on behalf of Switley, is seeking $259 for repair of the car's transmission, plus $741 "punitive or exemplary damages."

The authority to launch a civil suit on behalf of consumers is given to the trade practices director under section 24 of the act.

Before taking such action, the director must obtain written consent of the consumer and the consumer services minister.

The Trade Practices Act is generally considered the most effective legislation of its kind in any province.

Several other provinces, including Ontario, are in the process of preparing similar legislation, based on B.C.'s Trade Practices Act.

The legislation was enacted to protect B.C. consumers against unethical and unconscionable trade practices.

Palm Motors has 10 days in which to pay the damages, or file a counter claim.

Talk planned on retiring

Dr. Herbert Otto, chairman of the National Centre for Exploration of Human Potential, will give a public lecture on preparation for retirement Friday at 8 p.m., in the Provincial Museum's Newcombe auditorium.

Holiday hours

The Legislative Buildings will be closed Monday for observance of the Remembrance Day holiday. The Provincial Museum will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. that day.

Region urged to immunize for diphtheria

Eight cases of diphtheria have been reported in the Captial Region this year and chief medical officer Dr. Allan Arneil is predicting an outbreak similar to last year's when 90 cases were reported.

None of the eight "has been really ill, the most they've had is sore throats," Dr. Arneil said Tuesday and all are safely quarantined at home or in hospital.

Once again the health officer has urged parents to immunize children against what is still "a dangerous disease . . . this isn't a common cold we're talking about."

Arneil said that immunization — which ideally should start when the child is very young, say, three months old — does not stop children contracting the disease but only from suffering associated ill-effects.

This year's outbreak, which started in the middle of last month, appears to be "following the same pattern" as last year's diphtheria wave which began Oct. 1973 and petered out last April, he said.

Arneil says there is not as yet any question of mass immunization for adults because the fully-grown often seact quite severely to the injections. "The younger they are the less effects they get," is the general rule voiced by Arneil.

The number of school children immunized in the region is now running at 80 per cent of the total — which he says is "not as high as we would like" but is better than many areas in North America.

Cases are now being reported every second day, Arneil said, but there is no cause for panic.

Victoria's Basil Wallace

This rentalsman not the real one, only his legman

Basil Wallace is not the B.C. Rentalsman.

But the former manager of the defunct Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau finds a lot of Victorians think he is.

The phone in his Pandora Street apartment rings daily with requests for assistance in housing disputes between landlords and tenants.

Since Oct. 19, Wallace has "run errands" in Victoria and up-Island for Rentalsman Barrie Clark.

"I can't act on my own. I can't make decisions," he said in an interview Wednesday, "but I do the investigations and the legwork."

He is making about three investigations a day at Clark's request and receives $7 an hour plus expenses.

Deputy-Rentalsman Phil Barter confirmed Wednesday that a rentalsman office would be established in Victoria.

However, Barter refused to set a date for its opening, saying that depended on the availability of trained staff.

Wallace said that, at the age of 69, he was not interested in full-time employment with the rentalsman's office.

Barter said the Victoria office would not be a part of a rental service agency as Jim Nelson of Victoria Rental Aid Service had suggested.

$3,000 salvage offer

The provincial government has made a $3,000 offer to a Nanaimo man seeking salvage fees for rescuing a drifting government ferry last July.

John Martin, along with Nanaimo lawyer Donald Bohun, towed the 77-foot Rolf Bruhn, which operates between Nanaimo and Gabriola Island, to a dock after spotting it adrift near a marine gas station. The pair then claimed salvage compensation of 10 per cent of the vessel's value.

In October the highways department offered Martin about $1,800 which, he said, was not enough.

Hospital board sees dark lifting

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

After years of frustration the Capital Region Hospital Board looks to be one week away from getting it all together — or at least two sizable chunks of it.

At its regular meeting next Wednesday, the board should take two significant steps towards shaping the future development of hospitals in the district.

The meeting should see regional hospital directors give their approval to the appointment of a new regional hospital planner now recommended at committee level.

The new man will fill the post left vacant since August when John Forrester, the region's first director of hospital planning, resigned to take a position with the Alberta government.

At the same time the board should have the necessary provincial go-ahead by next Wednesday to give first readings to a bylaw setting up a new hospital planning group — the hospital and health planning commission.

Regional hospital board chairman Art Young says the new commission should be ready to make "some fairly firm decisions" in the New Year.

The new commission will have a 12-person board, will have the authority to hire staff, and its executive director will be the region's director of hospital planning.

To date, hospital planning on a regional basis has been frustrated by the lack of an agency with sufficient muscle to be able to co-ordinate the often conflicting aims of special interest groups.

Young told the Colonist: "I feel this is the first step in actually giving the region the authority to move.

"Now the regional board will be really held responsible for any lack of progress and for decisions that will be made."

Most obey new 50 limit

Pat Bay Highway drivers are slowing down to the new 50-miles-an-hour limit and police are finding their pockets full of unissued speeding tickets.

Both Sidney RCMP and Central Saanich police reported Wednesday that fewer than usual speeding tickets had been issued on the highway since the new limits went into effect Monday.

A Sidney RCMP spokesman said the majority of tickets issued were for speeds in excess of the old 60-mile-per-hour limit.

He said traffic counts showed the majority of drivers were staying well below the provincially imposed new maximum.

Condition still poor after burns

Betty Blade, 39, remained in poor condition Wednesday at Victoria General Hospital with burns received in her apartment at 840 Craigflower Tuesday morning.

Esquimalt police said the woman fell asleep on a sofa while smoking and awoke to find her pyjamas and blanket on fire.

She was discovered by her husband Robert who returned home when he could not contact her by telephone.

Student wins scholarship

Lorie Bradley of Victoria, a student at the University of Waterloo school of optometry, has been awarded a $250 scholarship by the B.C. Optometric Association.

Spoiled too long, says Lorimer

'Pay your share of transit'

The Capital Region has been "spoiled' too long and starting next year will have to pay its share of transit operating deficits, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer announced Wednesday.

The move, which also applies to Greater Vancouver, requires the district to pay 50 per cent of the operating losses for area bus service, up to an amount equivalent to what could be raised by a two mill assessment.

Other municipalities such as Nanaimo, West Vancouver and Nelson have long contributed to transit operations, Lorimer said, and before the NDP government was elected many municipalities provided transit systems without any provincial assistance.

Lorimer said the province will continue to pay capital costs for Capital Region transit service.

He added, however, that legislation will be introduced in the spring session to allow regional districts to assess commercial areas, such as shopping centres which benefit directly from transit service, for the total municipal share.

Lorimer explained that the districts would also be allowed to finance their share by a general assessment on all property, but said he is suggesting that businesses which benefit from transit service should pay the bill.

Changes in legislation would be required before municipalities could levy varying mill rates within the district, he said.

Despite the new municipal sharing arrangement, transit services will continue to be a provincial responsibility since capital costs are the biggest expense, he added.

Capital Regional board chairman Jim Campbell said he was informed of Lorimer's proposal more than a year ago and at that time asked the minister to reconsider.

The proposed arrangement, Campbell said, would put extra financial burdens on the district's taxpayers without giving any additional source of revenue.

He said he is eager to meet with Lorimer "on a moment's notice" to discuss the proposal, "but they are apparently not prepared to listen to our modifications.

"Ever since the board said it didn't like the financing formula there has been no more communication."
